Best Minds Come Back.
Mule and Driver.
Roosevelt Autocracy.
What Is Equitable?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 14.

GREAT BUSINESS men, heads of all our big industries, with their big brains and solemn looks, are invited by the Senate to tell what is the matter with us and how to prevent it and stop it, whatever it is.

This seems a good idea. Those that have been hardest hit should know what hit them.

Some may remember anxiously how all the great ones summoned to the White House at the beginning of our depression came in squadrons and platoons, with remedies ready-made, and how THE DEPRESSION DID NOT STOP. The result of that congregation of "best minds" was the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has handed out hundreds of millions to "best minds" and corporations in need of ready cash, but has not done much for the small individuals in need of a job.

BESIDE THE Seaboard track at this moment, just north of Savannah, Georgia, a colored man is driving a mule fastened to a wagon, loaded with heavy, watersoaked firewood from a swamp. The mule st..ggles desperately, the ground is soft, the more he strains with his hind legs the deeper his hoofs sink into the muddy shortcut that his driver has chosen.

THE COLORED man, weighing about 200 pounds, could lighten the load by getting down and leading the mule. That does not occur to him. He feels that he is doing his full duty with the whip and such vocabulary as he possesses.

Put the American taxpayer in place of the mule and government in place of the colored driver, and the scene shifts to Washington, D. C.

WILLIAM HARD in Washington says Mr. Roosevelt will be a constitutional dictator "directing the nation's destinies." Too many conflicting opinions delay recovery and the return of normal times, according to Mr. Hard.

The country needs "drastic vivid stimulants," so Mr. Roosevelt is to do whatever he thinks best, Constitution or no Constitution.

ALL VERY interesting, if you have a plan, if it happens to be the right plan, and if you have the will power to carry it out. Mussolini, for instance, could stop our racketeering and crime wave. Kemal Pasha, of Turkey, or Stalin, of Russia, could make us do whatever he chose. He would hang us if we refused.

But Italy, Turkey and Russia, with populations largely homogeneous, take orders more readily than the mixed population of America would take them.

JAMES M. COX, once presidential candidate, agrees with Mr. Hard that Gov. Roosevelt must have the power to do something. Mr. Cox says:

"I am in favor of delegating unusual powers. The business of government and of the country has been be-deviled by the pettiness of politics, and it is time to deliver it."

PROF. DEWEY wants Congress "to bring about equitable distribution of the national income immediately" and would pile up surtaxes and inheritance taxes.

The question is, what is "equitable distribution of national income?"

When a farmer raises and feeds two hundred hens and they lay fifty eggs daily, how many of those eggs should the farmer keep? How many should he be compelled to give to neighbors that don't care to raise hens but do want eggs?

IF AN American like Edison, instead of raising hens, raises ideas that produce billions in wealth and tens of billions in wages, and in the process gets forty of fifty millions for himself, how much of his share should he be allowed to keep?

How much must he give to those that never had an idea in their lives, but would like to have some millions?

IT IS a problem difficult to settle, but it is not difficult to discourage enterprise and ideas and the raising of hens and other things.

Let the government continue its present policy, "you earn it, and I shall take it away from you as fast as you earn it," and there will be little income to distribute.

THE REV. BILLY SUNDAY, who is 69, and works too hard, fainted twice in one week, conducting a revival in Des Moines, Iowa.

Acute indigestion caused the fainting, and Billy Sunday, who knows that the devil is a real person, employing many fiends that stick pitchforks into you, while you swim around in boiling pitch, through all eternity, hates the devil intensely. Says Mr. Sunday.

"He, the devil, never faints, never has indigestion, never stops his soul-destroying work. All the more reason for fighting him until your last gasp. He may seem to have the better of it for a little while, with underhand attacks on me and other enemies. But those that are saved will have the last laugh, looking down on him in the black pit in which he will, eventually, be shut up forever.

Mr. Sunday's great regret, as he tells his friends, is his inability to meet the devil face to face and tell exactly what he thinks of him.

Martin Luther saw the devil and they still show you the stain on the wall in Luther's house made by the inkstand that Martin Luther threw at the fiend.

But Billy Sunday has never seen him. If he did, Satan would hear language that, temporarily, at least, would make him wish he had not called on the evangelist.

HINT SUASION IN BURGOYNE TRIAL

BULLETIN.

The jury trying Arthur G. Burgoyne, Roy D. Schooley's aide, while City Treasurer, retired shortly before 3 o'clock.

Inferences of jury suasion were made late today by Assistant District Attorney B. Meredith Reid, as he closed the state's case against Arthur G. Burgoyne, investigator for former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley on charges of embezzlement and fraudulent conversion.

Judge Sylvester J. Snee charged the jury after Reid, in his closing argument, had said:

"You are the kind of people that don't want to be bothered by extraneous influence being brought to bear. This case has been interrupted and interrupted by people coming in and going out. Some of these people had occasion to talk to counsel for the defense and to others.

"Maybe you noticed what I noticed. Maybe you know that some people came in and looked right into the eyes of a particular person in the jury box."

HIRSH PROTESTS

At that point Attorney Hiram D. Hirsh, who, with Register of Wills J. N. Mackrell is counsel for Burgoyne, objected to Reid's remarks. Hirsh said:

"Mr. Reid is talking for the newspapers."

Hirsh asked that the court stenographer take down the essence of Reid's remarks and then repeated them. He quoted Reid as saying:

"Certain people came over to the counsel table and shook hands."

Judge Snee overruled a motion of Defense Counsel Hirsh for a directed verdict on all counts, but ordered a verdict for Burgoyne on the count charging misdemeanor in office.

This is the second day of the trial resulting from the disappearance of $60,000 in bonds which presumably had been posted by the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, now closed, as a part of the security for city funds deposited there.

SECRETARY TESTIFIES

Aside from character witnesses, the only witness for the defense was Mrs. Rhoda Turets, secretary to Schooley, who testified that letters of authority such as that issued by Schooley to Burgoyne

SUNDAY SPORTS HEARING ON

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The second public hearing in two weeks on a proposal to permit Sunday afternoon sports in Pennsylvania was held today in the Senate.

The first hearing was held in the House before the Law and Order Committee. It resulted in the House passing the Schwartz bill which the Senate Law and Order Committee made the subject of its public hearing today.

John M. Hemphill, West Chester, Democratic candidate for Governor in 1930, was the first speaker for the Schwartz bill.

There was only a small audience in contrast to the crowd which attended the House hearing. The presence of Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics base-

County Salary Cut Bill Goes to House

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—The Mansfield bill authorizing 15 per cent salary cuts for county officials whose salaries are fixed by statute was before the House today for consideration. It passed the Senate last night.

The bill opens the way for county officials to return a portion of their pay to the county treasury, and closes the way to future sur-charges should the officials voluntarily abandon the salary allotted them.

Buying Valentine, Boy Killed by Truck

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Harry Hood Esker, 9, is dead today because he stopped to play tag in the street while downtown to buy a valentine.

A. B. Huff, of Uniontown, Pa., driver of the truck which killed the boy, was not held. Police said the lad ran in front of the machine.

Court Battle To Save Doomed Dog Opens

A petition was filed in Criminal Court today by Attorney Charles D. Coll on behalf of Sandy, the mongrel dog of Frank Sechan, East Pittsburgh, in the first legal step taken to have set aside the decree of death imposed last week by Visiting Judge R. L. Reed.

The petition asked for modification of Sechan't parole, a condition of which was Sandy's death. Judge Reed paroled Sechan for six months, provided he kill the dog. Cechan pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a vicious dog.

In the petition, Attorney Coll, retained by an unidentified Carrick woman, asked that the death sentence be rescinded so that Sandy could be given "a home in the country." The "nuisance" (which Sandy through his alleged viciousness is said to be) will have been abated, according to the petition which further sets forth a full denial of the allegations of viciousness, and states:

". . . and we have dog experts to prove it."

The petition acts automatically as a stay of execution for Sandy, who after an exciting week-end visit among dog-lovers, is back home with his master in East Pittsburgh.

POLICE CHIEF IDENTIFIES KIDNAPERS

Abduction of Denver Man Charged to Racketeers

DENVER, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Identification of two men who kidnaped and are holding for $60,000 ransom, Charles Boettcher, II, wealthy Denver investment broker, was announced today by Chief of Police A. T. Clark, who said the abductors were "a couple of racketeers who have been here the last year."

The chief declined to reveal how the identification was made, but it was presumed Mrs. Boettcher, who was with her husband Sunday night when he was bustled into the kidnapers' car, had identified the men from rogues' gallery photographs.

Previously Clark had said:

"We'll have the case cleaned up in 48 hours."

FIRST CONTACT MADE

Clark said he believed a telephone call received last night at the home of Claude Boettcher, Colorado multimillionaire and father of the missing man, was the first attempt of the kidnapers to contact the family.

A butler answered the telephone, Clark said, and a voice asked if it was the Boettcher home. Answered in the affirmative, the butler was told to "hold the wire." Five minutes later the Butler said he heard the click of the receiver as the line was disconnected. Charles Boettcher, 80, founder of the Boettcher fortune, said:

"I believe my grandson is safe and will be returned to us safe and sound. Whether the ransom will be paid, I cannot say. We are completely in the dark.

"We know no more now than we did a few hours after the kidnaping."

Chief Clark said he had been informed by Chicago police that Louis (Diamond Jack) Alterie, former Chicago gangster, who was at first sought for questioning in connection with the kidnaping, is living in Santa Fe, N. M., under an assumed name. Clark said yesterday he had abandoned the search for Alterie.

U. S. AIDS HUNT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, today ordered two agents to co-operate with Denver authorities in the search for Charles Boettcher, II., missing broker.

The agents, pending determination of the bureau's jurisdiction in the matter, will work with Denver officials.

Under the Federal law enacted after the Lindbergh kidnaping, the government has authority to act only when ransom is demanded through the mails or the kidnaped person is taken across a state line. If the entire crime is committed within a state, Federal agents have no jurisdiction.

Oldest Garage Here Being Torn Down

What is believed to be the oldest garage in Pittsburgh is giving way to the march of progress. Workmen are tearing it down.

It is located in the rear of a lot at South Beatty street and Tamello way, East Liberty, where it was erected many years ago, and since that time has been used to house many new models of cars.

Swallows Pin, Dies At Mayview Home

BULLET THREAT SENT JUDGE

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Feb. 14.—A threat against Judge A. R. Chase was being investigated by state police and county authorities today. The judge received a letter mailed in DuBois threatening him with "what McCall got," referring to the shooting of Attorney L. D. McCall, of DuBois, at his country estate last Friday night. The letter was received Sunday, but authorities refused to divulge its contents.

McCall was shot four times as he put his automobile in his garage. Accompanied by his wife he drove three miles to a hospital and is still in a serious condition there.

The receipt of the letter by Judge Chase served to convince District Attorney S. Cortz Bell that the motive behind the McCall attack was revenge and not robbery.

PRIMO FREED IN DEATH OF SCHAAF

Natural Causes, Not Punch, Blamed; Probe Ordered

Schaaf, Dying, Revives to Say 'I'm Okay, Mom'

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The one lucid moment Ernie Schaaf the boxer, had before he died was reserved for his mother, who drove through a heavy snowstorm to be at his side as soon as she heard of his injury in his bout with Primo Carnera in New York last Friday night.

Just before he was operated on yesterday afternoon for the removal of a blood clot on his brain, Mrs. Lucy Schaaf managed to rouse her son from the coma into which he had lapsed. She pleaded:

"Honey, are you my sweetheart?"

"Yes, mom."

He could only whisper the words.

"How are you?"

"I'm okay, mom."

He couldn't be roused again.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Primo Carnera, giant Italian, was released today after an hour of questioning by the District Attorney's office into the circumstances surrounding the ring death of Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight.

Carnera, however, was ordered to return later in the day for a final inquiry, together with William F. Carey and James J. Johnston, of Madison Square Garden; Dr. William Walker, the official physician, and all others actively identified with the fatal fight.

Carnera told Assistant District Attorney James Daly, in explaining the tragic finish:

"I did not intend to knock Schaaf out. I was intent only upon winning."

The Italian was questioned about his gloves and bandages and replied that they not only were legal in every way, but that they were adjusted in the presence of a boxing commissioner and Johnny Buckley, Schaaf's manager.

QUESTION CAUSE OF DEATH

One of the developments of today was an intimation that

It was Zuziak's first bout.

ROBBED LEAVING BANK, KIDNAPED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 14.—S. Levine was held up by a lone bandit and robbed of $1,900 today as he left the First National Bank, pushed into his own car, carried out the New Wilmington road, and thrown to the roadside. The bandit escaped with Levine's car.

A description of the bandit was broadcast over the police teletype system. The broadcast said the robber was armed.

Suit for $1,000,000 Love Balm Settled

DETROIT, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Attorneys for Mrs. Ada Lee Porter Kinard, of Kansas City, said today that a motion for discontinuance of her $1,000,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Gail Stephens Kinard, Michigan lumber heiress, has been filed and the matter has been "amicably adjusted."

Public Caught 'Short' Of Cash in Detroit

DETROIT, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Michigan was a confused and harried commonwealth today as cash became king and then went into hiding.

Conditions in Detroit grew acute at noon, as the full import of the closing of all banks in the state for a period of eight days broke upon the city.

Nobody would accept checks and after a three-day holiday, few people appeared to have any cash. Big theaters and stores which did a rushing business on Monday, however, found themselves in a situation almost as acute but exactly the reverse.

They had too much cash, and no place to put it. Armed guards watched the offices of several theaters, and police scout cars redoubled their efforts to protect filling stations and restaurants where the receipts of three days remained in the tills.

The payroll situation was in a state of utmost confusion. The state had only $3,765 cash on hand at the treasurer's office in Lansing. State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry said no disbursements would be made until further notice. State employes will get scrip for the $500,000 due them in payrolls tomorrow. But the scrip will be worth only the paper it's printed on unless and until banks are re-opened.

City Treasurer Charles L. Williams said the $1,000,000 payroll due city employes tomorrow cannot be issued.

SAYS FORD ACTION LED TO EDICT

8-Day Moratorium Decreed But Later Modified

International News Service.

DETROIT, Feb. 14.—Gov. William A. Comstock today, after issuing a formal proclamation declaring an eight-day bank holiday throughout Michigan, issued an interpretative ruling designed to soften somewhat the effects of his proclamation.

The Governor's interpretative ruling said his earlier edict, calling for the closing of the state's 500 banks and trust companies and $1,200,000,000 deposits for eight days, beginning today, was "a permissive" proclamation and not a mandatory order.

Banks may reopen "to whatever extent seems wise," the Governor said in his interpretative ruling.

BANKS REOPEN

In accordance with this ruling the Upper Peninsula's 50 banks opened for business, relieving the pressure on the northern part of the state.

Comstock declared that refusal of the Ford Motor Company to subordinate its $7,500,000 deposit in the Union Guardian Trust Company to claims of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and smaller depositors brought on the closing edict.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 in gold arrived from Chicago early today to aid the beleaguered Detroit banks. It was carried on two trains, and convoyed from the Michigan Central Station to Detroit by a small army of detectives.

Gov. Comstock also declared that Reconstruction Finance Corporation officials are now in the offices of the Union Guardian Trust Company and "a new loan has been promised."

The Governor said:

"I think the bank will be saved."

"INSIDE" STORY

Comstock revealed what he said was the "inside" story of the bank holiday. He declared:

"Here is the situation as it was given to me. The Union Guardian Trust Company had been doing both a bank and a trust company business. Like all other institutions, its assets dropped in their liquid value. They decided to get out of the banking business and do a strictly trust company business. To do this they decided

Davis Lottery Trial Postponed Again

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—The new trial of United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, charged with violating the national lottery law, was postponed today until February 27.

Senator Davis is alleged to have profited by $173,000 from two lotteries conducted for the Loyal Order of Moose, of which he is the director general. The first trial of the Senator ended in a mistrial when a juror was reported by Chief Defense Counsel Charles J. Margiotti, of Punxsutawney, Pa., to have visited him.

Barbara Stanwyck Ill; Show Halted

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—In progress for half an hour, a presentation of the musical revue "Tattle Tales," came to an abrupt halt at a theater here last night with a stage announcement that Barbara Stanwyck, movie star and leading lady, was ill.

At Miss Stanwyck's hotel, the management said she returned to her room after the performance was halted, but that no doctor was summoned.

King Shuns London In Fear of 'Flu'

LONDON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The return of King George and Queen Mary to Buckingham Palace from Sandringham has now been fixed for February 18. The return was postponed from February 6 on the advice of the King's physicians owing to the prevalence of influenza in London.

ECONOMIC WAR IMPERILS WORLD, HOOVER DECLARES

PRESIDENT ASKS STABILIZATION OF CURRENCY

Action Must Be Taken To Avert Disaster, He Declares

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A call for co-operation in a drive to stabilize currencies as the only way to avoid economic ruin, stood as the final public utterance of President Hoover to the American people today.

Speaking as the head of his party, the man whose administration coined the phrase, "Prosperity is just around the corner," warned an economic war impends "which threatens to engulf the world." Addressing the Lincoln Day conclave of the National Republican Club in New York, he told his colleagues to forget political affiliations and pull with the Democratic regime in every constructive remedy.

CONFIDENCE IN G. O. P.

Mr. Hoover expressed confidence the Republicans would be returned to power but added the present was no time to think of political advantage. He returned to the White House by special train after his speech, arriving early this morning.

The address sounded the basic note that world currencies must be stabilized through return to and maintenance of some sort of a gold standard. Mr. Hoover recommended at the same time an endeavor to find a place for silver in enlarged subsidiary coinage, but pointed out that gold must be the basic standard.

dent said, were of secondary con-

Even the war debts, the Presi-sideration. He put forward the suggestion that if war debts were temporarily set aside as part of an international bargain to place the world on a gold standard, the sacrifice would be worth while, but warned the American people not be fooled into believing cancellation of the debts pointed the way to recovery. He spoke of a "continuous stream" of foreign propaganda to this effect as a doctrine to which the United States should turn deaf ears.

ECONOMIC CHAOS

The President pitcured the economic disintegration of some countries, and told of abandonment of the gold standard in efforts to inflate currencies. It all provided a vicious circle, he said, and instead of bringing stabilization resulted in wild movements of gold from one country to another. He said:

"Thus, a mass of gold dashing hither and yon from one nation to another, seeking maximum safety, has acted like a cannon loose on the deck of the world in a storm . . ."

SUCCOP FACES SURCHARGE

City Controller J. P. Kerr today promised to take up with the City Solicitor's office the matter of surcharging Bertram L. Succop, former city purchasing agent, on the contracts which led to Succop's conviction for misdemeanor.

Kerr is expected to ask Solicitor Charles Waldschmidt whether the city can recover any of the moneys on contracts awarded to high rather than low bidders.

In the trial of Succop and Mayor Kline at Butler, scores of such instances were brought out.

Succop surrendered Sunday to serve the one-year sentence imposed after his conviction. Mayor Kline is trying to win an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Holland to Remain On Gold Standard

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Replying to the Senate's preliminary report on the budget, the government declared today it regarded it as a duty to maintain Holland on the gold standard by all available means.

The government looked upon the gold standard as one of the conditions whereby a sound recovery of the economic situation was possible.

BURGOYNE JURY SUASION HINTED

under which Burgoyne was said to have turned back to the bank the bonds posted as security for the city deposit, were a matter of form and quite common.

Attorney Joseph N. Mackrell, in opening his argument for the defense, said:

Character witnesses for Burgoyne included Recorder of Deeds Samuel Foster, Clerk of Court S. J. Topley and Attorney Edward G. Coll.

Near the close of the prosecution, Jacob Brooks, state employe who assisted in taking over the affairs of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, said the bank sold $60,000 in Liberty bonds in August, 1931.

Yesterday's principal witness for the state was Charles A. Bardolph, president of the bank, who was himself indicted after the bank's collapse. Bardolph testified that Burgoyne, with a written order from Schooley in 1931, turned back to the bank, at Bardolph's request, the bonds which had been posted. Bardolph said:

"We needed quick assets."

OBJECTIONS UPHELD

Assistant District Attorney Reid yesterday encountered difficulty in associating Burgoyne with the disappearance of any city bonds when Judge Snee frequently sustained the objections of defense counsel.

Controller J. P. Kerr testified that Burgoyne had shown him a packet of bonds, when there were reports that the bank's security was missing, and declared:

"The butter's in the cooler."

But, Kerr added, Burgoyne hadn't said these were the bank's bonds; Kerr had simply presumed so. This presumption was stricken from the record on motion of the defense.

Roosevelt Island Gets T. R.'s Name

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—In order that there might be no mistake concerning a memorial to a Roosevelt who occupied the White House in the past and a Roosevelt who will occupy it in the near future, President Hoover today signed an act changing the name of "Roosevelt Island," in the nearby Potomac River, to "Theodore Roosevelt Island."

JUDGE VOIDS 46 BALLOTS

Judge W. Heber Dithrich, sitting as recount judge, today threw out 46 ballots in the Sixteenth District of the Fourth Ward for the most part because of improper markings.

When the ballot box was brought in, it was disclosed there were only 343 ballots in the box, although there were 349 on the voters' list. Twelve of the ballots voided by the Judge were marked with two different kinds of pencils, and 30 had so-called "phantom" markings.

The box from the Tenth District of the Thirteenth Ward was also brought in. The count there was under suspicion because the Democratic nominee for Congree received only a small fraction of the votes cast for Roosevelt.

5 Cowed, But Woman Foils Bank Robbery

SALINA, Kan., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Emma McConnell spoiled the plans of two men who attempted to rob the Planter's State Bank here today.

Arriving for work, she was commanded by one of the men to go to the directors' room where five other employes of the bank were held captive while the would-be robbers waited for the time lock to open the safe.

Mrs. McConnell ran screaming into the street, instead. The men fled through a rear window and escaped.

LINDSAY ON WAY BACK TO U. S.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Still adhering to "the gold standard of silence," Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay sailed for the United States aboard the Majestic today to launch the Anglo-American war debt discussions.

In London, he had rushed to the station from breakfast with British cabinet ministers at 10 Downing street, carrying an "important message" for President-elect Roosevelt on war debts.

Just as he was boarding the train, the Ambassador narrowly escaped injury when a photographer's flashlight bulb exploded, scattering fragments of glass between Sir Ronald and reporters who crowded him. A similar accident, it was recalled, slightly injured Ambassador A. W. Mellon in New York last year.

Following Prime Minister MacDonald's revelation that Great Britain would be willing to discuss world economic problems during the forthcoming conference at Washington, the British debt discussions were kept up virtually until the moment of Sir Ronald's departure.

Scotsman Hides From 'Free Trip'

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 14.—To avoid a free trip to Europe, a Scotsman in Pierpont dug a tunnel from the cellar of his home. Immigration authorities, who deported James McGrath to Scotland yesterday, said McGrath has slipped illegally into the country twice. The officers were given a "tip" on the tunnel in which McGrath hid whenever anyone entered his home.

PUBLIC WORKS BONDS URGED BY BLOCK

Publisher Proposes Sales Tax to Aid Recovery

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A vast public works program financed by a federal bond issue was urged upon the Senate Finance Committee today by Paul Block, newspaper publisher, as a major point in a program for economic recovery.

Appearing at the "prosperity hearings," Block also advanced a "small manufacturers' sales tax which may be eliminated once the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed."

Other proposals he advanced included rigid government economy and prompt balancing of the budget, adjustment of European debts to the United States on a scale downward, drastic reduction of the hours of labor and a moratorium on farm mortgages.

AGAINST INFLATION

Block warned against inflation of the currency, asserting:

"If our people and the people of the world were to lose confidence in the American dollar, the withdrawal of invested money and the hoarding of gold would be so great it would bring chaos to our financial system."

A slash in veterans' expenditures was proposed as one method of reducing the cost of government. He stated:

"I would suggest a coalition cabinet. But I fear our two-party system is in the way of this and more is the pity."

In urging a public works program the witness asserted:

"I regard it as imperative to undertake public works on a large scale to provide a way for a general revival of business and to expand the credit of the country.

END HOARDING

"I believe the money which thousands of people are hoarding and that some of the money which is now almost overburdening our savings banks, which are unable to employ it profitably, would be released for the purchase of 10 or 20-year bonds yielding a moderate interest, possibly 2½ per cent or 3 per cent at the outside.

"Such funds would be put into circulation immediately and they would not, in my opinion, affect investment in good municipal, real estate or business issues. Further, such a bond issue, which could be sold the same way we marketed Liberty Bonds, would help to stop the agitation for inflation of the currency, which is too dangerous to be attempted.

"Commercial banking houses, however, should not have the privilege, if it is possible to withhold it from them, of purchasing these bonds except for customers. Otherwise they might invest in this issue funds which they should loan to business."

Dehnert and Banks 'Celebrate,' Jailed

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 14.—Henry (Dutch) Dehnert, 34, and Dave Banks, 31, members of the Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics, celebrated another victory here early this morning, but found their basketball prowess meant little to the police. They were arrested in the business district on charges of disorderly conduct.

Dehnert and Banks were stopped by police as they walked up Market street at 3 o'clock. They carried the source of their merriment. Dehnert, originator of the basketball pivot play, had three quarts of home brew and one pint of wine, while Banks, midget member of the champions, had four quarts of the brew. Both spent the remaining hours of the morning in the city lockup awaiting a hearing.

BROTHER 'LIAR,' SAYS HUEY LONG

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Senator Huey P. Long today called his brother, Earl Long, a "liar" when Earl testified on the stand that Huey Long had been paid $10,000 by Harry Abel, who he said was a representative of the "power interests."

Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, counsel for the Senate committee investigating John H. Overton's election to the Senate, had asked Earl Long if any money had ever been passed by Abel in connection with state legislation. Earl Long said:

"Yes, my brother told me Abel had given him $10,000."

Senator Long shouted:

"You are a liar."

Senator Long then interrupted the proceedings and, turning to Senator Robert B. Howell, committee chairman, said:

"Mr. Chairman, I wish to apologize for the statement I just made."

Daladier Upheld After Long Session

PARIS, Feb. 14.—(AP.—The) two-week-old government of Premier Edouard Daladier, protege of ex-Premier Herriot, has survived the fire of another parliamentary test in winning approval of a $210,480,000 financial project.

'Free Silver' Loses In House Committee

MACHADO ADDS TO GUARD

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—President Gerardo Machado has ordered the strengthening of the defense of his government by a special decree bringing police into the ranks of the national militia.

Rumors of a threatened invasion of Cuba by exiled citizens in the United States and other American countries and of revolutionary plots in the interior have been current in the past few days. It was believed the President's army of 12,000 soldiers could cope with any emergency as it did in the August (1931) rebellion.

But yesterday the President added the judicial, harbor and secret police, guards of various island prisons and all special agents for the interior department to the recently formed national militia, which originally included only national forces.

Sugar mill operators in Santa Clara Province complained to the government that bands of men were threatening their workers and inciting them to strike.

U. S. IN REVOLT, BORAH RELIEF PLEA HOLDS

Protests Considering Dry Bills Ahead of Aid for Needy

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A biting protest against considering prohibition repeal without first legislating relief for farmers who are losing their homes, and for the suffering millions of unemployed Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, told the Senate today "there is revolution in this country," as debate opened on the Blaine resolution, proposing repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Borah declared the farmers were in revolt against constituted authority. He called attention to the action of farmers from Pennsylvania to Idaho in using force to prevent or control the foreclosure sales on farm montgages.

Unless relief measures are passed before March 4, said Borah, there will be no practical relief until long after May 1.

'REVOLUTION HERE'

Borah said:

"It is often said there is a revolution pending in this country. There is already a revolution. It's been consummated in many places. There are now places in the United States where the courts cannot operate, where the processes of the courts are frustrated by sheer force. That situation exists from Pennsylvania to Idaho.

"I read the other day that farmers took possession of a sale on a mortgage foreclosure in Pennsylvania and dictated how it should be conducted and what should be paid. In my own state, they tarred and feathered a gentleman who sought to foreclose a mortgage. We all know of like conditions in Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa.

"If nothing is done to relieve them before March 4 this condition will be accentuated and aggravated beyond the power of language to describe."

DEBATE ON REPEAL

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader, meanwhile served notice he would give the Senate an opportunity to vote upon direct repeal, in contrast to the Blaine resolution, which carries federal protection for dry states and a ban on the saloon. The debate opened on the question of considering the repeal resolution.

Borah, the acknowledged leader of Senate drys, declared he was opposed to the resolution but added:

"I can see nothing to be gained by delaying action on submission of this question to the states."

He conceded that both major parties had adopted platforms calling for submission of the issue.

SENATE SPEEDS RELIEF BILLS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Two gigantic relief bills—one for destitute unemployed and the other for mortgage burdened farmers and small urban home owners—were approved today by the Senate Banking Committee.

The committee recommended Senate approval at this session of the Wagner unemployment relief bill, providing an additional $200,000,000 for direct relief loans to states and legislation to speed up construction loans from the Reconstruction Corporation's $1,500,000,000 fund.

It also recommended the Hull-Walcott bill to create a $500,000,000 fund under the Reconstruction Corporation for a two-year moratorium on foreclosures on farm and small urban mortgages.

The bill was recommended as an emergency relief measure. The committee voted unanimously to proceed immediately with the framing of permanent mortgage relief legislation and to ask the Senate for permission to sit between this session ending March 4 and the extra session in the spring to complete the work.

The Wagner bill, coming to the Senate with strong Democratic support, will be offered as a substitute for the LaFollette-Costigan bill already pending to provide $500,000,000 for direct relief grants to states.

Stranger Hands Hoover $30,000 Bill for U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Despite the fact President Hoover was being guarded by 800 New York police and the usually heavy secret service detail when he came here to deliver a Lincoln memorial address, a New York electrical contractor got to him personally with a bill for $30,382 which he said the government owed him.

This became known today after Joseph Schoenbach had been released after questioning at a police station.

Schoenbach, who says the money is due him for installation of the lighting system on the Statue of Liberty, told reporters calmly how he reached the President. He said:

"Why, I just walked to him and stated my case."

The President replied:

"Remind me of that later."

When Schoenbach undertook to remind Mr. Hoover later at his suite in the Waldorf Astoria, he was hustled away by detectives, quizzed and released.

Schoenbach said previous efforts to collect the money in Washington had failed.

BROWN SLAYING LINKED WITH DEATHS OF GIRL, YOUTH

FATHER OF BOY REOPENS OLD MYSTERY

Three Jersey Killings Connected by New Secret Clues

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Breaking a three-year silence, a father today had paved the way for the reopening of the investigation of the deaths in Moorestown, N. J., of Horace Roberts, Jr., youthful social registerite, and Ruth Mowdray Wilson, a wealthy girl the young man hoped to wed.

Horace Roberts, Sr., the parent, said he is convinced the deaths in 1929 of his son and Miss Wilson, found unconscious from bullet wounds in the young woman's bedroom, are in some way connected with the mysterious killing of Bradway Brown, who was a close friend of the young couple.

BROWN SLAYING

Brown was found dead in his Palmyra, N. J., home the night of January 16. The 28-year-old Philadelphia printing company executive at first was thought to have killed himself, but police later agreed he had been slain. He was a witness three years ago at the coroner's inquest which resulted in a verdict that Roberts, his college chum, shot to death Miss Wilson, presumably because of lost love, and then ended his own life.

At that time, Brown, then living across the street, testified Roberts had "jokingly" threatened to commit suicide because of Miss Wilson's cooling affections. He declared Roberts told him:

"If she doesn't marry me, she won't marry anyone."

Testimony at the inquest showed that Roberts had been shot four times and Miss Wilson twice. The senior Roberts said:

"I don't see how anyone can believe my boy fired four shots into his own head. Two of the bullets had entered by the same hole, I understand.

"To my mind, these things alone show that Horace never fired all those shots."

NEW CLUES FOUND

Roberts' father said he has several valuable new clues, but would not divulge the nature of them. He asserted:

"At the time of the tragedy we were all so broken up that we felt it best to let things be as quiet as possible. I thought we'll just wait awhile, and sooner or later there will be some real information to come to light some place."

Roberts revealed that his son carried $51,000 in insurance. Of this amount, he said, $20,000 has been collected. The remainder has been unpaid because of suicide clauses in the policies. Should the case be reopened and Roberts be declared slain, the victim's parents could collect the balance.

LOVE TRAGEDY

The Wilson-Roberts tragedy was one of the most startling cases in the history of Burlington County. Returning to the girl's home from a seashore trip, the young couple, members of widely-known families, found the girl's parents at a bridge party.

The parents returned home about midnight. The father testified at the inquest he found the front door locked, and climbed to the second floor, where a light was burning in his daughter's bedroom. There, he testified, he looked through the glass and "saw both children lying on the bed." Neither was clothed, though Miss Wilson had a coat about her shoulders. Both were bleeding profusely from wounds that quickly caused their death.

CHINA TO DEFY JAPS ON JEHOL EVACUATION

Refuses to Give Up Battle to Save Province

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Feb. 14.—The Japanese and Manchukuo governments have drafted three ultimata demanding immediate withdrawal of Chinese troops from Jehol Province, the legation announced today.

Advised of the announcement, T. V. Soong, finance minister in the Chinese Nationalist government, declared that the ultimata would be rejected flatly regardless of consequences.

One ultimatum is being dispatched to the Nanking government by the Japanese government. Another is being sent to Gen. Tang Yu-Lin, governor of Jehol, by the Manchukuo authorities. The third is addressed to Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, Chinese northern military commander, and bears the seal of Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, Japanese military commandant in Manchukuo.

League Group Rejects Japan's Compromise

GENEVA, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—The League of Nations' Sino-Japanese Committee of Nineteen today rejected Japan's final effort to conciliate the Manchurian dispute.

The committee's decision was transmitted to Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate, who immediately cabled his government in Tokio.

The decision made a rupture between Japan and the league only a matter of time.

Japan Votes Largest Budget in History

TOKIO, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—The largest budget in the history of Japan containing huge appropriations for military expenditures, was passed by the cabinet and house in full session tonight. The burget totals 2,200,000,000 yen (approximately $460,000,000.)

The budget was attacked by Socialists, who charged it was "aimed at saving capitalists who have been distressed by the financial panic."

Opposition members charged the budget failed to provide for adequate national defense and attacked the government for its failure to control exchange.

Domestic government bonds were extremely depressed today on the Japanese market as traders anxiously awaited news of the outcome of the Japanese-League of Nations impasse. Stocks were stagnant, following yesterday's huge declines.

Japanese General Periled By Attack on Train

SHANGHAI, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—General Nishi, who probably will be named commander of the Japanese drive in Jehol province, narrowly escaped with his life today in an attack upon an armored train in which he was returning to Mukden from Tahushan.

The attack upon the train was by soldiers of a Chinese volunteer army, who then proceeded to loot it. A battle ensued. Gen. Nishi's aide-de-camp falling dead in the half-hour's fighting.

The attackers finally were repulsed.

Gen. Nishi had been inspecting his troops at Tahushan.

DIVORCE DENIED W. G. SWANEYS

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Swaney were refused divorces today by Judge Harry H. Rowand, in Common Pleas Court. Both charged cruelty.

The wife, Clara Swaney, filed her libel first, asking a legal separation. The husband, with his answer, filed a petition for an absolute divorce.

He charged his wife was extravagant. He said he had agreed to give her $350 a month for household expenses, but, he declared, in 1929 he was compelled to pay $10,588 in bills she contracted. His salary at that time, he said, was $11,000 a year. He also alleged his wife beat him, once, he said, with a slipper, and another time she tried to push him down some steps.

In her suit the wife declared her husband fought with her, struck her with a hot water bottle and then pulled the telephone from the wall when she attempted to call her cousin for help.

Hit by Own Auto In 'Runaway,' Captures It

Fred L. Schramm, stenographer in the Bureau of Elections, today had the experience of being hit by his own automobile. The car was parked on a grade in front of his home, at 6060 Omaha street, when Schramm saw it start to move. He rushed out and in attempting to jump on the moving car was struck by the front, his leg being injured.

Regaining his balance he got into the car and stopped it.

GUY TO TESTIFY IN YACHT DEATH

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Fate of William J. (Curley) Guy, handsome young soldier of fortune, accused of the murder of Capt. Walter Wanderwell on the eve of the latter's scheduled departure for the South Seas with a crew of eight beautiful women and seven men, neared the jury today.

Defense attorneys indicated that Guy would take the witness stand in his own defense in the closing hours of the trial late today to deny that he had shot Wanderwell in a darkened cabin in the rakish adventure yacht Carma in Long Beach harbor the night of December 5.

The state contended that Guy's motive in the killing could have been a hatred born under tropical skies following a quarrel over money between Wanderwell and Guy. Guy admitted he "hated" Wanderwell, but said that on the fatal night he (Guy) was at the home of his friend, Edward Delarm, the Indian aviator, in Glendale, 30 miles from here.

GOVERNOR SILENT

Regarding the ending of the case which shook Hawaii to its social and governmental foundations had no comment to make, and Admiral Yates Stirling dismissed questioners by saying:

"I wouldn't have anything to say, it's legal matter."

A private detective agency's report which said its investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of the defendants as her assailants was made public by John C. Kelley, who prosecuted Mrs. Fortescue and the three naval men for the slaying of Kahahawai and obtained their conviction of manslaughter. Although sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment, Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and the two enlisted men had their sentences commuted by Gov. Judd to one hour in custody.

FLAWS IN CASE

Kelley, in asking dismissal of the charge, submitted a brief in which he said an analysis revealed several weaknesses in the prosecution's case against the four remaining defendants. He noted as "weaknesses" the method used on obtaining identification of the defendants by Mrs. Massie; "lack of medical, physical and material evidence" of the alleged attacker's alibi.

The attack upon Mrs. Massie occurred the night of September 9, 1931, after she had left a party at the Alawai Inn and gone for a walk along a lonely road nearby.

Freed Guilty Men, Darrow Believes

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Clarence Darrow, attorney for the defense in the Massie trial, said last night:

"I still believe, firmly, the persons Mrs. Thomas Massie identified as her attackers were the guilty ones."

Darrow's comment came on learning that charges were quashed in Honolulu Circuit Court against the four men accused of criminal assault upon the young naval lieutenant's wife.

4 GUILTY MEN FREE, INSISTS MRS. MASSIE

Awaits Reply to Her 'Important' Cable To Honolulu

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Thalia Massie, who accused four men of mixed blood of an attack upon her in Hawaii, said today she was positive of the identifications she made at that time.

Her reiteration of the identifications follows the action of the prosecution in Honolulu yesterday dropping the case against the accused men.

She said at East Lansdowne, near here:

"I sent an important cablegram to Honolulu today. When I receive a reply to this I may have something startling to say."

Mrs. Massie, wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, who is stationed aboard the battleship New Mexico at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, declined to make public the contents of her message.

Speaking of the report of a detective agency made public in Honolulu that an investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of her assailants, she said she would prefer not to offer any public defense of her identifications until she received a reply to her message.

This was Mrs. Massie's birthday and she remarked that the dropping of the case against the accused men was an "awful birthday present." She said:

"They wanted to satisfy the natives, who were angered when we were given our freedom. This private detective the Hawaiian dispatch refers to was hired by the Governor. All he did was sit in the hotel lobby in Honolulu and issue public statements that anybody who had anything to say about the case could come to see him there. There was no necessity for an investigation except that they were looking for an excuse to drop the case."

Private Sleuths 'Justify' Freeing of Accused Men

HONOLULU, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Ala Moana assault case in which five men of mixed blood were accused of criminally attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of a naval lieutenant, was closed today as far as territorial courts were concerned.

At the request of the prosecution, Circuit Judge Charles Davis yesterday ordered the discharge of the four living defendants in noting a nolle prosequi, or discontinuance, in the case. The defendants freed are Ben Ahakuelo, Henry Chang, Horace Ida and David Takai.

The action also cleared in the prosecution's eyes the name of a fifth defendant, Joseph Kahahawai, who was kidnaped by Mrs. Massie's mother, Mrs. Granville Fortesque; her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two enlisted naval men, and shot to death by Lieut. Massie in Mrs. Fortesque's home.

Lawmaker Takes Lash As Colleagues Laugh

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A lashing across the back with a cat-o'-nine tails was given Delegate Frank J. Hirt in the Maryland State House as a personal illustration of his assertion the whipping post was "a delic of the days of barbarism."

Standing coatless and leaning against a pillar in an ante-room, Hirt, a representative from Baltimore, was struck by a colleague, Delegate Norman S. Short, of Hurlock.

Hirt's test followed an address on the House floor in defense of his bill for the abolition of the whipping post as a penalty for wife beating in Maryland. The proposal was reported from committee last night and after the lashing passed to the third reading.

The author of the bill said any man who beats his wife "should be punished but I don't think the whipping post is proper in these days."

The House broke into laughter as Delegate Francis A. Bichell produced a cat-o'-nine-tails and remarked he had been informed Hirt "is willing to make the sacrifice of stripping to the waist and taking a whipping as it would be given at the whipping post."

A large portion of the House members crowded into the ante-room to see the demonstration as Short lightly applied the whip.

Bankers Aghast at Man Who Found $20 Bill

An honest man has been found where $20 bills lay around on the floor.

W. R. Park, bill collector of the Investment Building, Fourth avenue, made a deposit in the Mellon National Bank this morning. As he turned from the teller's cage, his eye glimpsed a piece of money on the floor.

He picked it up and to his amazement discovered it was a $20 bill. Turning back to the teller, John Cochran, he handed him the bill and remarked:

"Here's $20 I just found on the floor."

The surprised clerk replied:

"Aw, you're kidding."

Park had to explain and then complained good naturedly over the penalty of being honest.

He said:

"Just think . . . all that red tape. They took my name, address and I had to tell the story over half a dozen times before they would take the money."

EIGHT-DAY BANK HOLIDAY IN MICHIGAN

"The trust company already had a $15,000,000 R. F. C. loan. The R. F. C. was checking quick assets and was about to make another loan of $23,000,000 to enable the company to pay its depositors and withdraw from the banking business.

"The Union Guardian Trust had many big depositors, including General Motors, Chrysler and the Ford Motor Company. Big depositors such as Chrysler and General Motors agreed to allow the little fellows to withdraw their deposits first and also consented to permit the R. F. C. to have a prior claim.

FORD DEPOSIT

"The Ford Company had $7,500,000 on deposit and refused to enter into the agreement. This left the company a couple of millions shy of the amount needed to pay depositors and close out its banking business at once.

"The board of the trust company decided to close. If that happened, no one could possibly foretell the results. The bank holiday was declared so that everything could be straightened out in an orderly way. I am sure that can be accomplished, whereas had there been no holiday in three or four days, we might have had banks toppling over like a stack of dominoes."

The closing edict came with dramatic suddenness at 3 a. m., while the state's millions in their cities, villages and farms, slept, unaware of the danger that threatened. Only a small group of financial and political leaders remained in sleepless conferences behind locked doors, seeking a way out of the dilemma.

SECRET CONFERENCES

After three days of secret conferences, the group of industrial and financial leaders decided the Union Guardian might be saved if a breathing spell could be given it.

From Washington came Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin, and from New York Walter P. Chrysler hurried home to lend his counsel. The Governor said:

"It was the consensus of opinion that matters might be ironed out, provided time could be had for negotiations."

Meanwhile, the State Public Utilities Commission declared an eight-day moratorium on al bils for gas, light, power, telephone and similar utility services.

Acting to halt spread of false rumors about the banking situation, Bert C. Brown, district chief of the United States Secret Service, dispatched 350 special agents to all sections of the state.

The holiday, Brown said, may give Communists and anti-government groups an opportunity to spread false information against sound institutions."

U. S. Works to Stabilize Michigan Bank Structure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—All Federal financial agencies were working today on plans for stabilizing the Michigan banking structure, following the moratorium declared by Gov. Comstock. Hope was expressed the situation could be worked out satisfactorily.

Secretary of the Treasury Mills and George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, conferred with President Hoover at the White House.

Mills, Harrison and Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, later went into conference. The Treasury, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Federal Reserve Board were closely in touch with the Michigan problem and were spending all efforts to reach a solution in co-operation with the Michigan authorities.

Meanwhile, the Michigan banking situation had its repercussion in Congress with Speaker John N. Garner reiterating his support of Federal guarantee of bank deposits, and Representative Cannon (Dem.) of Missouri, charging Congress with responsibility for the closing of a thousand banks.

Fox Terrier Routs Three Robbing Safe

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A fox terrier did most of the routing of three men who broke into a Brooklyn coal yard last night and attempted to break into a safe.

The dog, Jerry, and his master, Raymond Knies, drove off two of the three who entered the Knies coal yard and captured a third, holding him until police arrived.

SMOKE IN AIR 'POISONOUS'

Smoke is not only a "nuisance," but a poison, it was disclosed today at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The announcement came after an 11-year study of city smoke and its effects on the human system by the institute. H. B. Meller, head of the air pollution investigation, writes in the current issue of Aerologist:

"It may not be possible to recognize definitely any acute mental disorder or specific disability, yet the process of slow poisoning may work insidiously upon vital tissues, making it impossible for the brain to function at maximum efficiency."

The investigators have found that impurities in air cause irritation to sensitive membranes of the eyes, nose, throat and lungs, increasing susceptibility to disease.

NAZI HURLS FOE FROM 'CHAIR'

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Reichstag's committee for safeguarding parliamentary rights broke up in disorder today when Chancellor Adolf Hitler's close friend, Hans Frank, pushed the Socialist chairman, Dr. Paul Loebe, bodily off the presidential seat and occupied it himself. Frank declared:

"The Nazi party no longer can tolerate a slanderous Marxist in the chair."

PARK TO PROBE 'FIX' CHARGE

A story that Rodger Watkins, alias H. Tressler, alleged stock swindler and bail jumper, had paid two attorneys $10,000 to "fix" charges filed against him here, was to be investigated today by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Watkins, who was arrested in Hartford, Conn., last week was returned to Pittsburgh on a fugitive warrant, county detectives said, and committed to the county jail last Friday. He was convicted here for swindling a North Side resident out of $8,000 by selling worthless securities in an automobile concern, they said.

Woman Hurt On Car Wins $7,500 Award

Mrs. Beulah McHendry and her husband, Herbert McHendry, of the East End, were awarded a verdict of $7,500 in their suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company for injuries received by Mrs. McHendry, July 16, 1928. It was testified Mrs. McHendry was on a trailer car which split a switch at Penn and Euclid avenues and was thrown to the floor, injuring her head and back.

CREDIT OFFERED BY WATER FIRM

A proposal from the Pennsylvania Water Company offering Wilkinsburg Borough a credit of 15 per cent on all bills for water used for fire protection in 1933 was read last night at a meeting of Council.

The letter, signed by Joseph T. Miller, secretary of the water company, stated the offer must not be considered as a rate reduction or rate discrimination, and stated that it must be accepted or rejected by councilmanic action.

Three unmarried men employed by the borough public works department have been discharged and replaced by married men with families, Councilman James Steele reported.

Demand Tax Slash In North Braddock

A large delegation of citizens tonight will ask North Braddock Borough Council to reduce the 10-mill borough tax to seven mills. A petition for tax reduction bearing 3,000 signatures is to be presented tonight at 8 o'clock. John Hanna and Michael Stretaski, minority members in Council, are reported as saying the borough can be run on eight mills for 1933.

Destitute to Get Red Cross Bedding

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Chairman John Barton Payne announced today the Red Cross would begin immediately distribution to the nation's destitute of bedding made from a second grant of Farm Board cotton—an amount estimated to supply only 20 per cent of the need.

The organization also will buy 18,000,000 articles of underwear, hosiery, trousers, knickers, overalls and jumpers for early distribution.

Things I Never Knew Till Now
(I mean until readers wised me up!)

That the Seminole Indians are the only injuns Uncle Sam can't control. If one kills a person, the Government is powerless to act. He can't be tried by the courts—his Chief gives him a scolding.

That Boston once was the capital of New Jersey!

That it is illegal to serve hot tea in glasses in New York restaurants, but nobody pays any attention to it.

That the word "technocracy" was coined by a New York engineer in 1919. (Huh, 1919! Hoofin' on the Pantages Time!)

That despite the to-do in Russia about the equality of the sexes, only one woman holds a really important job in the Soviet Gov't.

That pretzels were first baked not for saloons—but for German monks who gave them to kiddies as a reward for piety.

That one of the major rackets in Hollywood is that of quack hair doctors. The greatest fear of the male stars is that their hair is thinning and they try everything from violet ray to prayers.

That the average American citizen earning $3,000 a year pays $250 a year of it in taxes. (So Uncle Sam can be Europe's sucker.)

That psychologists claim the emotions of love, shyness, embarrassment, anger and joy can be expressed by the position of the legs.

That the third degree is practically unknown to the police of England, France and Germany, yet they have less crime than the U. S.

That the present boundaries of Illinois violate legislation of 1787—but I don't care, either.

That Ben Franklin thefted his ideas for his almanacs from other almanacs and became famous for his stolen wit. (As who hasn't?)

That after-dinner speaking is taught at the United States Naval Academy. (Oh, deah me, Reggie. Pass me a split-infinitive!)

That a group of Plymouth (Ind.) jury commissioners drew the names of jurors for a murder trial and drew the name of the victim!

That raffling is considered the lowest form of gambling. (But marriage is the greatest risk—even Lloyd's won't insure you!)

That Jimmy Walker has gallstones and his doctors have numbered his years. Mebbe that's why James wants to "live"—while he can.

That Al Jolson has a brother-in-law in Yonkers whose name is Cantor. (Jesselittle coincidence, doncherknow.)

That there are over 50 prisoners in Sing Sing who are eligible for parole, but they won't come out into the depression.

That everybody has a goitre. There are 37 varieties of them.

That on those vacation boats to Nassau—beer is six cents a glass. One man got a bill for 94 cents for five cocktails!

That if ice is frozen too hard it is useless for skating.

That the state of Florida gets most of its milk supply from Wisconsin and Illinois — 1,500 miles away—or almost.

That the lovely song: "I've Told Ev'ry Little Star," is reminiscent of "And Then My Heart Stood Still." (Sing it, then!)

That there are hundreds of 25-karat diamonds embedded in the floor of the Cuban Capitol. (Anything to make the poor madder.)

That we were twitted for saying that 20s were made at the mint when they aren't. Twice in the Cagney flicker "Hard to Handle," however, James says the same thing. (Good actor, though.)

That the silver in the American silver dollar coin is worth 25 cents. (It used to be, at any rate.)

That a baseball thrown by a speedy big league pitcher reaches the plate approximately 2-5 of a second after it leaves his paw.

That New York City has about 35 per cent less sunshine than cities on the West Coast, where they always have "unusual" weather.

That the house which inspired John Howard Payne to write "Home, Sweet Home," supposedly is in Kentucky, but really is in East Hampton, Long Island.

That police cars and police trucks must have license plates but fire apparatus needn't. (Oh, for the life of a fahrman!)

That cigarets are not allowed in Auburn Prison until the cellophane wrapper is destroyed. They fear that the convicts will use it to make gunpowder. (It is supposed to have a TNT base.)

And there are 1,763,740 old joke-tellers among our foreign-born population. Plus Bernie and Cantor, that makes 1,763,742.

The Art Society again chose well in presenting Heinrich Schlusnus last night in Carnegie Music Hall. This baritone has for many years been a prominent singer in opera and concert throughout Europe and it is our loss that we have had him among us only a few years.

Mr. Lissfelt

The voice is adaptable to lyric or dramatic singing with equally excellent results. What he has learned upon the operatic stage stands him in good stead in his lieder, but he never permits an intrusion of that broader technique in declamation upon those gems of Schubert and Schumann. We may name and have often named Schlusnus, as a musician, unique among male singers, for today there is no other to sing for us those wonderful miniatures in song literature.

With but a few exceptions his songs are untried in America, and therefore his program was all the more important to music lovers. At random we may choose "The Atlas" and "Auftraege" as the most imposing and the most delicate, both the most difficult among songs. Where else might we hear them with such satisfaction and exaltation?

Of the Wolf and Strauss music we speak in utter admiration and his two operatic airs were of tremendous artistic proportions. A magnificent Handel Arioso followed as encore into which the singer poured his whole heart. The "Serenade" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," was added too with all its impudence, also Strauss's "Zueignung" and the anti-depression "When Dull Care" of Leferidge.

Franz Rupp, whom we have admired during his many performances here with Schlusnus and Onegin, again played brilliantly.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

The Polyglot Cinema which has already shown German, Russian, French and Polynesian films, turns Italian this week with "Terra Madre" (which is "Mother Earth" in Inglese), a symphonic piece of realism in which polenta and rustic dances mingle with romance and Sabine scenery. It is a very simple story of a prodigal Duke who returns to his estate in order to sell it. He has taken up with a pleasure-loving vamp from the city, but he meets the beautiful daughter of the overseer and falls in love with her. After the lure of the city has again torn him away from the pastoral polenta, a terrible fire breaks out on the estate. Everything seems to be turning to cinders, when he returns and rallies the peasants to fight the flames. Of course he remains with Emilia and the indolent Daisy is forgotten. "Terra Madre" is a very interesting film, with splendid bucolic acting and effective pictures that remind you of Millet.

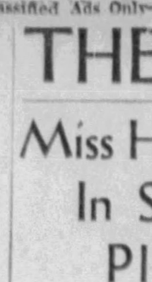
Miss Hepburn In Secret Plans

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14.—Though nobody will peep about it, Radio is hoping to star Katharine Hepburn in a story called "Regiment of Women."

Thanks to all the secrecy, there are only two things to be told about the picture for the present. Clemence Dane, author of "A Bill of Divorcement," wrote the story, and Richard Wallace will direct—that is if RKO can lure him back to Hollywood. Dick is now aboard the S. S. Santa Paula headed for the Canal. He intends to go on to Europe. RKO wants him to return here from New York. And the offer is an attractive one.

In view of the rush, I wonder about "Little Women," which the star was supposed to make next.



Miss Hepburn

Also about that vacation Katharine was planning for herself.

The last place to find information about the latter is the young lady in question. Though less eccentric in behavior than she used to be, Katharine still insists upon the sacredness of her private life. She won't even let the studio take pictures of her Beverly Hills home.

Worthy of "Once In a Lifetime" is Harry Brand's story of the writer who worked six months for a studio without an assignment, and then was let out.

"What are you going to do now?" asked a friend.

"The same thing," replied the writer, "only I won't be getting paid for it."

Racket Movie In Variety

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

Providing alibis for a gangster chief in a dangerous game, as Merna Kennedy, blonde leading woman in "The Red-Haired Alibi," in the Variety, finds. Miss Kennedy gives a pleasing, natural performance as counter girl who goes to a big city to accept a rather mysterious job, offered by a casual acquaintance, the debonaire Theodor Von Eltz.

The story moves evenly and tensely as Gangster Von Eltz fights against the ring of enemies closing around him, and our heroine discovers too late in what sort of business she is enmeshed. Von Eltz plays vigorously and nervously through a role which, introducing him as a benefactor, finally strips him to evil reality. With luck coming finally to the aid of virtue, the picture is pleasing, except for some unnecessary platitudes on life.

The stage show leads off with the Variety Gems, dancing chorus, whom Nat Nazarro, Jr., master of ceremonies brings on again later. The Merrymakers, a quartet, present negro songs, and Jack Rill does an amusing jugling act. John Dancy and snappy dancing, followed by Will J. Ward, at the piano, conclude the program.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Hope of presently seeing Katharine Cornell's second production this season, "Alien Corn," by Sidney Howard, which had its premiere in Baltimore, vanished when an announcement from Miss Cornell's office came yesterday, stating that the Baltimore week will be the only one for the "road" at this time. "Alien Corn" will move into the Belasco Theater, New York, next Monday. It is Mr. Howard's first play since "Half-Gods" in 1929. In the interim he has visited Hollywood. The story is that of a woman who has inherited musical talent and is loved by three men, each in a different manner. The conflict of love and her ambition for a career forms the basis of the drama.

All of the free-will offering received from the presentation of the Pinero comedy, "The Magistrate," in the Hillsdale School Auditorium in Dormont Thursday and Friday evenings will be devoted to Dormont local relief. War Drama's Premiere in Temple

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Two dozen of us thronged the Moose Temple last night to witness the premiere of "The Unknown," a war play by James Moore and Henry Glance. It seems to be much easier to fight and win a war than to put a drama across, even with the assistance of a drum and bugle corps that made the welkin ring. But two dozen of us came and stayed until the war was over, and admired the courage of the gallant playwright and his heroic actors as they struggled to the epilogue, when Jimmy Moore's own song is sung at the grave of the Unknown Soldier by Samuel Galer.

George Seibel

The drama begins near London in the home of the Joneses. Mrs. Jones, played by Mary Kontowicz, is not feeling well. Her husband, Bob, goes for the doctor though a storm is coming. In the second scene of the act a pair of twins have arrived, the father has been killed by a falling tree, and the mother dies of shock after bequeathing one twin to her sister, the other to a visiting German friend.

In the second act, 21 years later, the London twin, played by Henry Glance, celebrates his birthday and gets engaged to Helen, played by Edith Cataldo. Then Bennit, the maid, played by Mildred Fall, comes back from an errand with news that the war has been declared. Helen and the foster mother, played by Vivien Morgan, persuade Twin Jimmy not to go to war. But in the second scene, a week later, Jimmy enlists, thinking the war will "last no time."

In the third act it has lasted four years. General Morgan, played by Joseph Homyak, is in a dugout near Ypres, consuming great quantities of brandy, furnished by Jarvis, played by Edward Glance. The General wants a German prisoner, and Lieut. Conley, played by Alex Fall, goes out and captures one. While they are waiting, Richard Stuart as Sergt. Bradley, goes insane because the war is never going to end. Then the German prisoner is brought in and the General demands to know when the Prussians will attack.

Of course the prisoner, played by Martin Gailliot, will not tell, and when he is searched for papers, the picture of his mother proves he is the long-lost brother of Jimmy. When a runner brings the announcement that the war is over—it being late evening of November 10, 1918—everything ends happily.

It took lots of courage to play all this for the two dozen who thronged the Moose Temple. Nat Lee and Val Walker furnished a comedy skit to ease the tension, just as the drum and bugle corps with a dexterous drum major had furnished the opening fanfare. John V. Mullen directed the play, which pleased the valiant two dozen.

'Cavalcade' in Nixon Begins New Week

"Cavalcade," photoplay attraction playing twice daily in the Nixon, began the second and final week of its engagement there yesterday. It is being proclaimed in Pittsburgh and elsewhere as one of the finest things ever turned out by a Hollywood studio, and critics in towns where the picture has been shown have given "rave" notices to Diana Wynyard, who plays the principal feminine role. Opposite her is Clive Brook. Others prominent in the cast include Ursula Jeans, Herbert Mundin, Baryl Mercer, Frank Lawton, John Warburton and Margaret Lindsay. The picture, screen version of a play by Noel Coward, has been running for weeks in the Gaiety Theater in New York.

HOTEL GRANDE BRETAGNE, ATHENS, Greece.—When in Greece, do as the tourists do. That's my motto and, to prove it, I was up at an early hour this morning to see the Acropolis, the Parthenon and all the other spots that I haven't been able to pronounce since they threw me out of high school. But I have now seen these places, which is more than my Greek teachers themselves ever did. So I guess I'm one up

I think there must be something radically wrong somewhere in my make-up. I lack the proper appreciation for so many things that other humans consider beautiful and thrilling. Ruins of beautiful buildings that were erected in ancient days fail to give me a lasting kick. It's all very nice, but what of it?

Nine-tenths of all art collectors, tapestry lovers and portrait students are complete fakers. If it weren't for the question of price and the fact that they rely upon their agents, doggone few of them would have any idea of what they possessed.

In years gone by, when anyone showed me an expensive painting or a precious tapestry, I would nod and shrug my shoulders.

"Yes," I would say, "that certainly is a glorious piece of work. But frankly, I don't know anything about it. I never had much opportunity to study art, you see, and—well, my knowledge is quite limited. I just don't understand."

My host would then quote prices and, if I still failed to appreciate his art, he would give me up as a bad job. But today, I have grown wiser. When my host guides me to a rare tapestry, I stand back and clasp my hands in awe.

"Beautiful," I murmur. "Absolutely gorgeous. What work! What precision of detail! How lucky you are to have it! Beautiful! Beautiful! Beautiful!"

Such an attitude costs me nothing, and it gains me many friends. I know no more about the situation than I did in previous years, but it does me no harm to pretend an appreciation that I really do not feel.

Out in California a few years ago, for example, I became quite friendly with a motion picture magnate who has since been ridden out of the business entirely. He was then riding the crest of the wave, however, and there was apparently no limit to either his wealth or his power.

In his home one night he showed me three paintings he had just purchased at a fantastic figure. There was no need for me to adopt a pose with him and I told him quite frankly that I didn't understand why those three paintings should be worth so very much money.

"That's because, my dear boy," he returned, "you have never studied art as I have. When I was only a young boy—and a poor one, mind you—I dreamed of the day when I might own such treasures as these. As I grew older, I kept studying. All of my spare time was spent in museums. I was preparing for the day that might some time arrive.

"Now that day is here. I became successful beyond my highest hopes. And I turned to the art that I had always loved. I have many paintings here, but these three mean that I have attained my goal.

"Look at those pictures, Mark. See how they live. Study them. And as you study, you will grow to understand. You think the price was high? My friend, as I look at them now and glory in their beauty, I'm quite ready to admit that I would have paid three times the price for them."

His enthusiasm—and the prohibitive cost—were wearing me down. I studied the pictures far more carefully than before, and I, too, began to sense their delicate beauty.

"Yes," I murmured honestly, "I begin to see what you mean. It takes me a little time, but even my dull brain begins to appreciate them. They do live. They are beautiful."

A few weeks later it turned out that I had almost become as crazy as he was. Although the story never reached the papers, the scandal and the people involved are well known along the coast. For, although he had no knowledge of it at the time, my friend had bought his precious art treasures from racketeers—and the three paintings he had shown me were just as phony as they could be! . . .

What did I start to write about in the beginning of this article? Oh, yes. The Acropolis and the Parthenon and so forth and so on. So far as I could make out, the Acropolis goes back in portions to the years between 2000 and 1000 B. C.

Back in 480 B. C., which was when they were first beginning to hear about Fanny Ward, the Persians came along and captured the beautiful hill. But the Greeks—probably realizing that it would be a great spot some day for American tourists—drove the Persians out again a year or so later. Reginald "Battling" Themistocles won the referee's decision after a gruelling 10-round encounter and gave the Acropolis back to Greece again. But not until the Persians had done much toward ruining the showplace of the ages.

The Greeks then went to work to rebuild their prize possession. And the results—the Parthenon, the Propylaea and the Erechteum—were in almost a perfect state of preservation until 1645 A. D. In that year another explosion hit the powder magazine in the Propylaea and wrecked that marvelous building.

Everything rolled along smoothly until 1687, but that turned out to be a depression year for the Acropolis. The Venetians, under the leadership of Phil "Knockout" Morosini, tossed a bomb into the Parthenon and wrecked it. And just to make matters a little worse, the Turks came along a few months later and demolished the elegant temple of the Winged Victory.

In other words, the Acropolis turned out to be the Phil Scott of the world's ancient ruins. No sooner were the temples standing than someone knocked them over again. But, unlike Phil Scott, the Greeks never gave up. They kept rebuilding and rebuilding no matter what happened. Until today they have in an excellent state of preservation one of the great sights of the world—if you happen to like that sort of sight.

Personally, I enjoyed my visit. The thing is so vast and so beautifully constructed and so magnificent that it all seems a little strange. You look about you with a sense of awe and, as you walk along the classic corridors of the ancient structures, you harbor a sensation that is sometimes stirring and sometimes chilling. It is as though you were a privileged character who was being permitted to stroll among the ghosts of a glorious past.

Coming from a mug who admits the lack of proper appreciation, I consider the last sentence a pretty good effort. I think that, in the future, I will make many explorations of a similar nature. And there's just a slight possibility that we'll both learn something.

Incidentally, speaking of learning things, I hope the historical information contained in this column is absolutely correct. If it's not, I'm out the quarter that I paid for the nice guide book with the blue cover.

HOUSE REJECTS RESOLUTION OF REBUKE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Amid stormy debate and a lengthy parliamentary tangle, the House today defeated a resolution condemning the Legislature for accomplishing "absolutely nothing" on unemployment relief.

The resolution was sponsored by Representative James Malina, Philadelphia Democrat. It brought Republican organization leaders to their feet, defending the progress of the session against alleged attacks of the press. Democratic state chairman and legislators who "lack knowledge of what is going on."

The Senate stepped quickly through a humdrum session in which the only ripple was a disagreement on the Pethick resolution urging Congress to maintain an adequate national defense. The resolution is a substitute for the one the Governor vetoed three weeks ago. When it was called up for consideration today, Senator George Woodward, Philadelphia, objected to an immediate vote and it was laid on the table. It probably will be considered again Monday night.

TO HEAR PINCHOT

Both houses recessed before noon to reconvene late in the afternoon to hear Gov. Pinchot's message on unemployment relief.

Last night the House passed the Fitzgerald (Erie) bill abolishing constables returns in all counties except Philadelphia.

A bill appropriating $13,210,219.55 from the motor license fund to the Board of Finance and Revenue for payment into the sinking fund, was introduced today by Representative Joseph G. Steedle, Allegheny. The funds are to be used to meet interest and sinking fund requirements on the state debt for the two fiscal years beginning June 1, 1933.

Other bills include:

Representative Dane, Crawford, permitting collectors of local taxes to go into other taxing districts within the same county to collect taxes by distress and sale of goods and chattels and by imprisonment or the delinquent.

Representative Steedle, Allegheny, bill appropriating $30,000 from the motor license fund to the Board of Finance and Revenue for the payment of compensation if the commonwealth's loan and transfer agent for services rendered in connection with the registration transfer and payment of interest on highway bonds.

INSURANCE BAN

Representative Kane, Allegheny, prohibiting advertisements relating to foreign insurance companies not registered to do business in this commonwealth, and appropriating $325,000 to the Western Pennsylvania Hospital, Pittsburgh.

Representative Quinn, Allegheny, appropriating $70,000 to the Braddock General Hospital.

Representative Maloney, Allegheny, restricting the jurisdiction of county and city inspectors of weights and measures to their respective sub-divisions.

Senator Morris Einstein, Allegheny, authorizing Allegheny County commissioners to appropriate a maximum of $500, per unit for each unit of the United States Army Reserve Corps in the county.

Representative Walker, Allegheny, appropriating $94,341 to Sewickley Valley Hospital.

Register of Wills Fee Cut Proposed

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 14.—Fees of registers of wills are slashed in a bill introduced in the House of Representatives John J. O'Keefe, Democrat, Pittsburgh.

The bill cuts the fees on the first $50,000 gross receipts from 5 per cent to 3, on the second $50,000 to 2 per cent from 3, and allows the charge on the second $100,000 to remain at ½ of 1 per cent. The fees on receipts above $200,000 and under a million would be fixed at ¼ of 1 per cent, and over a million the fee would be ⅛ of 1 per cent.

Woodward Offers Tax Recipe for State, Nation

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—State Senator George Woodward, Philadelphia, has a recipe for the tax problems confronting the various states and the nation.

As printed in his own publication, the Pennsylvania Legislator, it is:

"Take freshly-made income and inheritance and sales taxes. Drop into a common pot and bring to a boil. Add tobacco and gasoline. Stir vigorously with the hand of bureaucracy until all taxpayers are cooked. Strain out all dead taxpayers, serve one-half of the stew on a large Federal platter, the other half on 48 small platters, each state receiving its share."

PROBE POLITICS IN ROAD WORK

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Its progress marked by sharp words and pointed charges, a joint legislative committee moved yesterday to investigate charges of political activity in the Highway Department.

At the close of a turbulent third hearing, it was authoritatively learned that the committee will devote an early, full-day session to this matter. By doing so, the investigators will begin where the 1932 special session left off.

The impending inquiry will cover the use of federal money for road work relief. Representative Morton Witkin, Philadelphia, who prior to the present session repeatedly charged Gov. Pinchot was "playing politics" with road work, brought the federal question before the committee. He said:

"The Governor and the Highway Department are cheating the federal government by using Reconstruction Finance Corporation money, repayable with regular federal aid money, for building low-type roads instead of high-type roads."

WAR ON SLUMS URGED IN BILLS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—Bills designed to pour millions of dollars into Philadelphia and other Pennsylvania cities in a combined drive against unemployment and slums were introduced in the Legislature today by Representative Nathaniel E. Jaffe, of Philadelphia.

The aim of the bills is to provide machinery through which funds of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation can be obtained for removal of slum areas and erection of modern, sanitary homes which would rent at low cost.

One bill would set up a state board of housing in the Department of Property and Supplies which would have power over corporations participating in the model housing program similar to those exercised over public utilities by the Public Service Commission.

Another bill defines the powers and duties of housing corporations which would come under jurisdiction of the board for the purpose of borrowing federal funds. Such corporations would be limited in their earnings to 7 per cent of their investment. A third measure gives such corporations the right to acquire sites and buildings under certain conditions.

The bills are similar to the measures sponsored by Representative Jaffe at the last regular session. They passed both houses but were vetoed by Gov. Pinchot because of technical defects.

Prize Winning Pup Fails as Watchdog

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 14 — (AP.) — Even prize-winning Pekingese are failures as watch dogs, Mrs. Violet Boucher, of Los Angeles, told police here.

Mrs. Boucher's Pekingese won a prize at the Oakland dog show last night. But, while Mrs. Boucher was at the platform accepting the award, the prize-winner permitted a thief to steal her purse, containing $300 in currency and $1,000 worth of jewels.

SUNDAY SPORTS HEARING ON IN SENATE

FOR LOCAL OPTION

Hemphill said the 115,000 population of his county, Chester, has a feeling of tolerance towards Philadelphia in its fight to remove "this obsolete" law from the statute books.

He asserted that the Schwartz bill provides local option on Sunday afternoon sports — permits each community to allow or prohibit Sunday afternoon sports.

Hemphill pointed out that the Schwartz bill would be amended to make the local option feature more definite by requiring ordinances to be passed to permit Sunday sports. As it is now, the bill provides a referendum on the Sunday sports question, he said.

He urged a return to the "pure democracy" of government by providing "home rule" akin to the town meetings of New England.

Organized baseball leagues in which Pennsylvania cities are represented will be relieved of "the stigma of Sunday sports ban" if the bill is enacted, he said.

The House approved last night, 126 to 55, the Kane (Allegheny) resolution asking Congress to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and then adopted the Sowers (Philadelphia) resolution providing for a committee of 11 to draw up laws to control liquor in the event the Volstead Act is modified.

In the roll call on the Kane resolution, Representatives James H. McClure, Glassport, and William A. Walker, Bellevue, were the only Allegheny County members to oppose the resolution. It was sent to the Senate Law and Order Committee today for consideration.

REPEAL STRENGTH

Action on the Conner-Sowers measure was deferred to await the substitute legislation, but leaders interpreted last night's show of repeal strength as assuring House approval of both the repealer and its accompanying measures.

The alteration of plans to push through the repealer follows the announcement Saturday by Gen. Edward Martin, Repub'can state chairman, that the Republican state organization favors repeal of the Snyder-Armstrong Act, providing a substitute is enacted.

Martin, following a conference with William S. Vare, Philadelphia organization leader, announced his group's position, but added legislation must be enacted to regulate the sale and manufacture of liquor if the repealer is to be passed.

Legislative Cigar Proposed for Policemen

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The House was asked today to hand a legislative cigar to the policeman.

The Lynch (Allegheny) bill reported favorably by the Cities Committee, directs that policemen in second, second-class and third-class cities be given two weeks' vacation with pay. In addition, the bill provides that the officers be allowed two days off each month to improve their efficiency.

STATE 'JUNKET' BILL DOOMED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Representative Joseph G. Steedle, Allegheny Republican, said today his $2,500 appropriation bill for a legislative "junket" to the Roosevelt inaugural will not be brought to the floor of the House if Democratic members are against it.

Advised that Democratic representatives at caucus last night voiced their opposition to the measure, Steedle said:

"If they don't want it, then the bill will lie on a desk in a committee room."

He added the "appropriation bill was introduced for the benefit of the Democrats and not for the Republicans."

Steedle introduced the measure at the request of Democratic House members from Northeastern Pennsylvania and before doing so it received the sanction of Gov. Pinchot.

The Allegheny Republican's attitude generally was regarded in legislative circles as the end of the attempt to send the Assembly, the Governor and his cabinet to the Roosevelt inauguration in Washington, March 4, at the state's expense.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN.

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person, University Park, Iowa.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

UTILITY INQUIRY SHOWDOWN AT HAND

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—The fate of the Senate Utilities Committee investigation hangs on a meeting to be held this afternoon at which time it will be decided whether the committee will continue to mark time, as it has done for weeks, or proceed with its inquiry and make a real effort to have reported from the Senate Appropriations Committee a resolution allotting the committee $100,000 for its future work.

Today's meeting is in response to a telegraphic demand from Oliver K. Eaton, chief counsel for the committee, who is represented as being restless at the failure of the committee to continue in such fields of inquiry as are left open by the various court injunctions tieing up the committee appropriation made in the special session of 1932 and preventing the subpeaning of personal papers of present and former members of the Public Service Commission.

Eaton, according to one member of the committee, is insistent that the committee shall proceed with its work, holding hearings on proposed legislation at which witnesses might be called. It is suggested that these witnesses might be consumers, utility officials and members of the Public Service Commission.

This Senator was of the opinion today, in advance of the meeting, that the injunctions would not hamper the committee in the examination of witnesses along any lines which might bear on legislation.

Attorney Eaton, as well as some members of the committee, are understood to hold that the committee's work is far from completed, and should be continued at once. This Senator, refusing to permit use of his name, feels that the committee has been negligent and should either immediately proceed with an examination into alleged corruption surrounding utilities, as well as perfection of the public service company law, or confess in a public manner its unwillingness to go ahead.

Some of the Senators playing for delay have fallen back upon the sub-committee of the Judiciary General Committee, named to examine utility legislation, as an excuse for inaction. This alibi has not been well received by others of the committee, and is understood to be scouted by Eaton. The latter, however, is only an employe of the committee, and has no authority to force action.

If the committee does not adopt a positive course today it is predicted there will be fireworks, dragging the unquestioned stalling into the open. One result of a decision for further inaction may be the resignation of some members of the committee, as well as counsel for the inquisitors.

Demands Council Of Education Be Abolished

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Senator Leon C. Prince, Cumberland, last night introduced a bill providing for the abolition of the State Council of Education.

Prince in a statement said the Council of Education is "an imposing title to designate one of the many appendages which have made the state government top-heavy."

He charged that council members are hand-picked by the Department of Public Instruction, "whose views it presumably reflects and whose suggestions it presumably follows."

COYNE REVIVES 'METRO' PLAN

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—A metropolitan form of government for Allegheny County through the federation of 122 municipalities into a "Greater Pittsburgh" is a step nearer fruition today with the Senate acting favorably on a resolution to amend the State Constitution to permit such an amalgamation.

The resolution, first passed in 1931, was introduced again last night by Senator James J. Coyne. Its passage at this session is virtually assured, and it will be laid before the voters of the commonwealth for ratification at the general election next November.

If then adopted, the session of 1933 will present a charter which may be voted on by the citizens of the county.

HARRIS TO TALK ON VOTE LAWS

Senator Frank J. Harris will speak on election law reforms pending in the State Legislature in Assignment Room No. 1, Allegheny County Court House, at 10 a. m. Saturday. This will be the first meeting of a monthly open forum, to be conducted under the auspices of the League of Women Voters.

Pressing their study of government, the league is sending a delegation of members to Cincinnati tonight, where they will observe the workings of the city manager plan, as guests of Charles P. Taft II. The delegation is headed by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, Mrs. J. O. Miller, Mrs. Frank A. Bond and Mrs. Nathaniel Speer.

Robinson to Give Address on Credit

A. C. Robinson, chairman of the board of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, will speak on "Finance and Credit Control" at the Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg, tomorrow night. His talk is one of a weekly series on the general subject of "Rehabilitation."

'BUY AMERICAN' APPROVED BY LEGISLATURE

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—The "Buy American" movement was approved in the House last night with but few dissenting votes.

Sentiment of the House was determined on the resolution of Representative William Roan, Luzerne County. Representative Hiram Andrews, independent from Johnstown, spoke on opposition, but only a handful of the members followed his lead. The Roan resolution reads:

"Whereas, depreciated currencies and low wages in many foreign countries are permitting the flooding of this commonwealth with foreign goods, and

"Whereas, the importation of these goods in excessive quantities is extremely harmful to Pennsylvania and seriously increases the difficulties of our citizens in finding remunerative labor therein, and

"Whereas, the American Patriotic League has been organized as a non-sectarian, non-partisan, non-profit-seeking and patriotic corporation under the laws of this commonwealth for the purpose of encouraging the purchase of goods made in our own country employing the services of citizens of our own country and for the other good and patriotic purposes, therefore be it

"Resolved, that this House of Representatives indorse this corporation, commend its purposes and recommend the participation of the citizens of this commonwealth in its activities and membership."

A bill introduced today by Representative Kane, Allegheny, would prohibit removal from foreign manufactured products labels showing they were not produced in the United States.

Modified Primary Repeal Bill Offered

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A semi-primary repeal bill was introduced in the Senate last night by Senator Leon C. Prince, Cumberland, co-author of the complete primary repealer now in committee.

Prince's new bill provides for selection of national party convention delegates and nomination of state-wide candidates at party conventions while legislative and local office candidates would be nominated under the present primary system.

Hoover Appointee As Diplomat Dies

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 14—(INS.)—Judge Robert N. Matson, named last week by President Hoover as Minister to Greece, died at his home here today.

State Insurance Bureau Linked To Politics

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Charging that the Insurance Department has been made "a political football to pay off political debts," John A Dalzell, of Pittsburgh, has asked State Senators to investigate it.

This request was made by Dalzell in a letter to each of the 50 Senators.

He said he had appealed to them unofficially after he had failed last year to receive decisive action on his complaints to the Insurance Department and to Gov. Pinchot.

HARRIS TO AIR RELIEF FEUD

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—Senator Frank J. Harris, who recently resigned as Allegheny County chairman of the State Emergency Relief Board, is sponsor of a Senate resolution designed to show that the drive for adoption of the commissary plan of feeding the needy in Pennsylvania is in reality a child of the Republican state organization.

In the controversy between proponents of the food order and commissary plan of relief Gov. Pinchot has borne the chief burden of attack, being heralded as the real exponent of the commissary plan. The Harris resolution asks the Governor to inform the Senate whether the commissary plan has been adopted by the relief board, and to produce the minutes of any meeting which considered the subject.

The minutes, it is understood, will show that Republican State Chairman Edward Martin moved adoption of the commissary plan, and was seconded by Lieut. Gov. Edward Shannon, also an organization man.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

PERSONAL TAX BAN URGED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—The personal property tax, collection of which has caused a stir in Allegheny County, will be wiped out if the House adopts a bill introduced by Representative Joseph R. Lynch, of the First District, Allegheny County. Lynch's proposal does not turn the tax back to the state, as the personal property tax originally provided, but rescinds it entirely.

Representative Frank Reed, Clairton, has a bill before the House which would exempt personal property valuations of $5,000 from the tax.

MAKES WOMEN LOSE FAT

Miss Rea M. Haines of Dayton, Ohio, writes: "I weighed 180 so started to take Kruschen. I never was so surprised as when I weighed myself the first week—I lost 7 pounds. I just bought my 3rd jar and am down to 145—am still taking them and never felt better in my life." (June 17, 1933).

To take off fat—take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents—get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and harmless way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.

Don't accept anything but Kruschen because you must reduce safely.

Don't Cough Your Lungs Out!

You need Foley's Honey and Tar—the quicker the better. For there is nothing finer than HONEY to stop that tickle or irritation—and what is better than TAR to loosen the phlegm so you can cough up the unhealthy germ-laden mucus? But it must be tar compounded by Foley's special "tar-ex" process. Only Foley's is made this way. Foley's is safe, harmless, pleasant. Contains 12 proven ingredients. Over 100,000,000 bottles used.

Ask druggist for Foley's Honey and Tar. Look for the name Foley's on the yellow package. Take no substitute. 30c, 60c everywhere.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

As SMOOTH as an Old Gold

NO FORM of enjoyment is ever complete unless it's SMOOTH. A bumpy road can spoil a bobsled ride. And harsh, biting tobacco will ruin your cigarette enjoyment.

There's no "throat-scratch" in an OLD GOLD, because it's made from the tenderest queen-leaf Turkish and domestic tobacco. Sun-ripened and cured until it's as mellow as moonlight. Man! What smoothness! What throat-ease and flavor! Smoothness is OLD GOLD'S unwritten trade mark. You'll love it at first light.

NEW MATERIAL LENDS ITSELF TO MANY YOUTHFUL FASHIONS

CLOQUE (pronounced cluck-ay) is a comparatively new word in the world of fashions. It means blistered, and describes, fairly accurately, the new material which continues to be used in varied mediums by a number of prominent dressmaking houses.

PROBABLY the only material which approaches cloque, and which is at all familiar to anyone but a dress designer, is the old-fashioned matelasse, which might be a cousin to cloque, in the way its surface is blistered. Matelasse, however, had something in its weave which delegated it at once to use by older women only, whereas cloque appears in frocks designed for young girls who are anywhere distant from the short-sock age.

TWO DRESSES, designed for young women, have been chosen for today's sketches to illustrate the idea. Both are all-white, both are youthful, yet each has a character of its own.

THE DRESS at the right, in classic design, follows the lines of dresses designed for older women, save that the back decolletage is as high as the front. The skirt, with its bias cutting, falls softly over the hips, without the swathing effect of a straight, tight skirt. Arm-eyes and neckline are bound with the fabric.

Masefield's Talk Before Centure Club Ends an High Note of Hope

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

There was a spiritual and almost wistful quality about John Masefield's talk at the Twentieth Century Club yesterday that was widely commented on and praised afterwards. The lecture of England's poet laureate ended on a high note of hope in "this time of suffering, depression and anxiety" and a statement of belief in communication between this world and the next, "a world of splendor and order and beauty" to which the spiritual part of man opens the doors.

At the beginning of his lecture, Mr. Masefield sketched his early life, recalling his birthplace in Herefordshire, his years before the mast and the time when he was employed in this country. He commented on the ancient British traditions that are unspoiled by the flight of time, and he mentioned, too, the drinks that are made in his native spot. These, he remarked, must be a source of great envy in this country. He spoke of mead as "indeed a drink, an insinuating drink and you never can tell when you begin upon it where it will lead you." He advised his hearers "not to venture upon it." It was a record audience of men, as well as women, by the way, that heard him.

Poetry has been squeezed out of the theater and has no place in it today, Mr. Masefield said, advocating verse speaking to bring poetry before living audiences. It is only within the last 10 or 12 years, he stated, that he has realized the enormous power of poetry, properly spoken, on the human heart and the extraordinary moving beauty of lovely speech. Verse speaking contests, he said, have been held in Great Britain, Australia, Canada, the United States and China.

Mr. Masefield told a story learned at sea, gave an exposition of a play and read some of his poetry, including "Sea-Fever," from "Salt Water Ballads," the closing stanzas of "The Everlasting Mercy," and a part of "Reynard the Fox."

"One COLD after Another"

Is Usually the Same Cold Repeating Itself!

Many persons who "catch one cold after another" during the winter think it's a different cold each time. As a matter of fact, it's often the same cold repeating itself. Uncured in the first place, the cold keeps coming back and all the time weakening your system and exposing you to more serious complications.

A cold requires decisive treatment or it will persist and make trouble for you. Many a serious illness had its start in a "slight" cold.

A COLD Remedy for a Cold

A cold is a specific condition and calls for specific treatment. Preparations good for half a dozen things besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. Many of these preparations actually make a cold more difficult of relief because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A cold, moreover, calls for internal medication. For, a cold is an internal infection. Local or outside applications only allay a few of the symptoms and do not reach the real seat of the trouble.

The Four Effects Necessary

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine knocks a cold and knocks it right because it does the four things necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels. Second, it kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Effective, but Harmless!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is safe for young and old to take. It contains nothing harmful. Also, it may be taken with impunity whether you stay indoors or go out. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Get yourself a package today and be forearmed against colds. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Be suspicious of the dealer who offers you a substitute.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to fortify your system against infection.

Benefit to Aid Clinic

The proceeds of the benefit card party to be given Friday evening in the Elks' Hall, Sheraden will be used to equip the recently established eye clinic.

Six local organizations are sponsoring the benefit. Bruce Cobaugh, of the Board of Trade, heads the ticket committee. Mrs. R. W. Litzinger, of the Langley High School Parent-Teacher Association, the card room committee; Mrs. Edwin M. Wilson, Women's Club of Sheraden, the hospitality committee; Miss Alice Jessup, Junior Women's Club, candy committee; Mrs. Carl Remmler, Harwood Parent-Teacher Association, refreshment committee; Mrs. Sarah Grow Jackson, American Avenue Parent-Teacher Association, the prize committee.

Thirty-two needy children have already been provided with glasses and 60 more have had preliminary examinations.

Does 'Going Steady' Imply Serious Intentions

"Going steady"—just what does it imply?

Does it mean that the boy friend should have serious intentions? And has the only girl the right to make her plans accordingly?

Or is "going steady" just a play arrangement, carrying no responsibilities or obligations?

A silly questions? Anything but! It's the most serious question on earth—to many a bewildered girl who is staking her future and fortune on the outcome.

"Is he or isn't he in earnest?" she whispers to herself, as date follows date, through carefree months and years.

"If he is, why doesn't he say so? And if he isn't, what should I do about it? Let him play along in the hope that we'll drift into marriage? Or cut it all short, even though it breaks my heart?"

Thousands of anxious girls, everywhere, asking that question; and generally it's the girl who does the worrying. But once in a blue moon the man, himself, grows a little anxious—wonders what he has let himself in for, and where does he go from here. Bob, for instance—Dear Miss Robinson:

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

My problem may not seem to deserve an answer, but it is a very grave one to me, so I am asking your help.

For quite a few [illegible]s I have been going w[illegible]y. I am 30 years o[illegible] is a trifle older. The[illegible] of marriage has come [illegible] often, and lately it h[illegible] bothering me. Here is wh[illegible] real problem comes in:

I am not [illegible] I want to marry her. She is [illegible]e, and good company, but m[illegible]rriage is somehow different. I like her, but I am not sure I love her. I get just as much enjoyment out of other girls' company as I do out of hers, and sometimes more. I have never led her to believe I would marry her, yet she seems to take it for granted. I have tried to get her to see my point of view, and to go out with other men, but she doesn't want to do that. And here is the biggest part of the problem.

NOT READY TO MARRY

She is a college girl, and belongs to all kinds of societies, while I am a poor laboring man. She earns around $150 a month and spends it mostly on herself. I earn less than $100, and it is all I can do to keep myself on that. How could I support a wife? She has, and likes, polished people, while I care more for ordinary folk. I like outdoor life; she likes society.

I try to tell her all this, but she won't listen. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but what can I do? I realize I am no infant, and should know my own mind, but I don't. I would like to go with other girls for a while and try to find out just how I feel, but she won't hear of that. What do you think?

Do I really love this girl? Or is it just friendship I feel? Would it be right to marry her, feeling as I do? And if I really do love her, why do I find all these questions in my mind?

I feel sure that I am not ready to marry yet. What do you think? How can I get her to see all this without hurting her feelings? Please help me.

BOB.

A big bunch of questions. How would you answer them if Bob had sent them to you, stranger?

Question No. 1—Does he love her?

Maybe yes; maybe no. Who can tell what love is, anyway? Each human being has his own definition. What one man calls "love" another man would consider greedy selfishness. On the other hand, what another couple calls "friendship" may be nobler and more enduring than the most flaming Grand Passion. So, judging from the symptoms, what's your vote? Does or doesn't Bob love his Mary?

OTHER QUESTIONS

Question No. 2—But if he loved her, would he be asking these questions?

Again, who can tell? Each man acts, and loves, according to his nature. Some people rush headlong into a decision. Some people ask questions about everything. Perhaps Bob's a chronic questioner. Or perhaps he is so happy-go-lucky that he's constitutionally unable to make up his mind about anything. What's your estimate?

Question Number 3—Should he marry "feeling like this?" Feeling like—what? Not knowing exactly what he wants? But we never know exactly what we want. We're always torn by conflicting motives. And many a bewildered bride or groom has made a most enthusiastic wife or husband.

But if, on the other hand, "feeling like this" means an actual feeling of distrust or dislike—would you advise Bob to marry Mary?

Do you think marriage would turn such distrust to love?

Or do you think it's better to call it off now, even though it will hurt her so terribly; than it is to enter into the certain inferno of a loveless marriage?

Or do you think that it's Bob's duty, regardless of how he feels, to marry Mary?

There's the story—both sides of it. You've often wished that you could "run a column like this." Well, here's your chance. What's your answer to Bob?

Careers for Women Change Marriage Customs—Fay King

NOW DAYS THE YOUNGEST DAUGHTER MAY BE MARRIED FIRST
I'M NOT TO MARRY UNTIL MY OLDER SISTER IS MARRIED
I PREFER A CAREER
FAY KING

By FAY KING

We have all smiled over the story of the father of five daughters who, meeting a friend, said that his last daughter was married on the previous Sunday.

When his friend asked who was the lucky man, the father replied, "I am!"

Getting daughters married off was once the most important, family problem. It was sometimes made a rule that the eldest must always be married before any of the younger daughters. In order to marry a younger one with whom he was in love a beau often made a great effort to find a husband for the older daughter, to hasten his own marriage.

Madge and Mary Discover Strange Signs at Tea Room

Mary tightened her clasp upon me as I told her that she might as well come with me if she had promised to trail me. She never had taken her arms from around me since she had told me of the injunction Dicky and the rest had laid upon her. But now it was a bear hug she gave me, one that left me breathless.

"Yuo ARE such a good egg!" she said, explosively. "And don't be mad by me if I jump around a little for joy because I'm going to have something to do! I never would have emitted a single yip if Uncle Dicky hadn't sprung this on me; but since he has, I can't help feeling a bit woof over the chance to get out with you. Waiting for something to happen that you can't help is the deadliest thing! Don't you think so?"

"Indeed I do, dearest," I told her, "and I couldn't be 'mad by you' even if I wanted to. You know that. But I think our waiting is nearly ended. It is going to be action, I am sure, from now on."

"Oh! What is it?" she asked breathlessly. "I knew something had happened. Can you tell me?"

"Yes. I will tell you everything I know myself, but as we go. Hurry!"

"Oke! Give me the keys. I'll start the car, have its nose turned toward the road, and be in the other seat by the time you—ought to get there. You shouldn't hurry like this, you know."

REACH TEA ROOM

"I thought you wouldn't want to go through the village," Mary said, as I climbed into the driver's seat.

"Thank you. That was right," And then we were off, driving as fast as I dared until we were a mile up the mountain road. A glance at my wrist watch told me that I had two or three minutes to spare, and I slowed down while I told Mary hastily of the telephone message I had received from the Chinese in Newark, and the bizarre directions he had given me, which I was about to follow.

"What a wow!" Mary commented explosively. "But here we are! I like this place better every time I see it."

As we crossed the bridge the door to the tea room swung open, framing a tall, Junoesque, middle-aged woman, whose welcoming, pleasant face and calm eyes yet held in them the look which the initiated know— the look of physical ills and grueling hardships met and conquered by sheer strength of will. Just behind her towered her husband, as dark as she was fair, lithe, sinewy, with the same look of self and hardships conquered that his wife's face wore.

OTHERS HURRIED AWAY

"I thought it was you," Mrs. Merton said cordially, coming down the steps with outstretched, friendly hand. "I said to Ellery when you got out of the car, 'That's Mrs. Graham.' I know."

She turned to Mary with playful reproach.

"You didn't tell me your auntie was up here, when you came up last night."

"Did you expect her to think of anything so unimportant as an aunt last night?" I asked quickly, purposefully; for I did not wish her to learn the truth—that Mary had been careful to make her visit with Noel to the tea room appear as a stop made on a trip through the glen.

"But I'm very much here now," I said, "and we're both ravenous. Will it take long to give us some tea and waffles and creamed chicken—if we can get it in a hurry?"

"In 10 minutes," she promised. "Everything's at hand, for some customers disappointed me just now. Oh, they paid for their meal; but they didn't wait for me to put it on the table—just hurried away, only a few minutes before you came."

I almost winced at the nudge which Mary surreptitiously gave me. Evidently she shared my excited conjecture that these queerly acting customers might have some connection with the mysterious summons which had brought us to the tea room.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Early Care Is Essential in Epilepsy

For many years the diagnosis and treatment of epilepsy have been pretty unsatisfactory undertakings. It is only recently that it has been possible to control the disease and in some instances to effect a cure.

Dr. Copeland

Unfortunately many parents believe it is "natural" for children to have certain diseases. They think these ailments come "in the course of events." I know of a case where the mother ignored the convulsions of her child, because in her own childhood the mother suffered from a similar affliction. On this account, she thought every youngtser must have the same affliction.

Epilepsy is a serious disease and must never be neglected. It is a disturbance of the nervous system characterized by attacks of unconsciousness. These attacks may be associated with convulsions. When convulsions are present, it is known as "grand mal." An attack without a convulsion is known medically as "petit mal."

In children epilepsy is often confused with simple convulsions. Convulsions are commonly seen in infants and children. They may be caused by the absorption of some body poison. This may come from the intestinal tract, from disturbances of the kidneys or liver, or it may be associated with marked undernourishment. When the cause is determined and remedied, the convulsions disappear.

Though the cause of real epilepsy has never been determined, certain factors, such as excessive fatigue and nervous excitement, injuries received at birth, chronic alcoholism and hereditary tendencies must not be overlooked. Contrary to the popular idea, the brain of such an unfortunate sufferer is normal. There is no mental impairment.

Sufferers from this affliction should receive medical attention at an early age.

The epileptic should be free from worry, embarrassment and distress, which cause attacks. Proper diet, sufficient exercise, plenty of fresh air and sunlight, regular elimination, an abundance of sleep in a well ventilated room, are a few of the simple rules advised.

In certain cases, particularly where there is definite evidence of birth injury, surgery is beneficial. The operation in many instances is a serious one, but the results in many instances are gratifying. The best results are obtained when the operation is performed in childhood.

Every case of epilepsy requires constant medical attention. Careful observation and treatment diminish the number and severity of the attacks. Prolonged care is essential, but it is rewarded because in many cases complete recovery is assured. Undoubtedly further advances may be expected in the treatment and cure of this affliction.

Answers to Health Queries

F. M. O. Q.—What causes Bright's disease? I am only 19 and have been told that I have this trouble.

A. — This disturbance may be due to a number of causes; it may be acute or chronic. Careful diet will often bring about relief and increased comfort. Your doctor will outline specific advice.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Overcalling in an Adverse Suit

The immediate Overcall of an adverse bid by a bid in the same suit is used, as almost all Contract players know, as not only a guarantee of ability to take the first trick if that suit should be led, but as a call Forcing to game. Of course, this implies that a player using this bid not only is able to control the first round generally of the adversely bid suit, but has a strong hand, which justifies requiring partner, who is probably very weak, to continue the bidding until game is reached. In the higher stages of bidding, the Overcall of an adversely bid suit is a strong Slam suggestion. In certain hands, however, it is desirable to have opponents lead the suits which they have bid, and to make a call which might inhibit such a lead is much likely to defeat the contract, whether it be game or Slam, than it is to bring about its success.

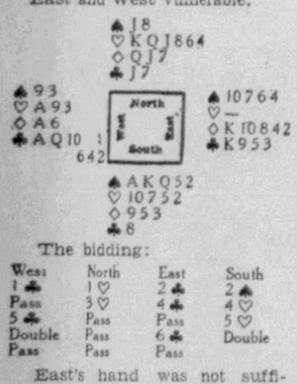
West—Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	1 ♡	2 ♣	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♡	4 ♣	4 ♡
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	5 ♡
Double	Pass	6 ♣	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

East's hand was not sufficiently strong to warrant a bid of two hearts over North's Overcall of his partner's Opening bid. With numerous losers in spades and a diamond suit of doubtful value, East rightly reasoned that the best lead possible, with West eventually playing the hand at clubs, would be a heart, and for these joint reasons he elected not to overcall in his opponents' bid suit. Besides, his partner had opened the bidding, and his hand was far from Slam caliber. South's bid of five hearts, inviting an adverse Double, was certainly an overbid, which West recognized as such by the Penalty Double, but East, feeling that after all the penalty that could be inflicted was in all likelihood inadequate, determined to risk a Small Slam—an unwise choice in my judgment.

Against the Slam contract, North, for some reason—possibly the failure of either opponent to overcall his heart bid by showing no losers in the suit—elected to open the King of hearts, and, of course, the contract was then made without difficulty, and an overtrick as well. The diamonds were established, after the adverse trumps were drawn, and the spade losers in the Declaring Hand discarded on Dummy's good cards.

I feel quite sure that North made a very bad selection of an Opening lead, but this was partly influenced, no doubt, by the fact that South's bid, as his own, was an Overcall, and that he had a vague hope, by leading the King of hearts, of making certain of a trick in hearts, in addition to his partner's practically sure trick in spades, and thus bringing about the defeat of the contract. He gambled and lost.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North and South have a part-score of 70. North opens with a bid of one heart and South raises to two hearts. What bid, if any, should North make with the following hand?

♠ A K 2 ♡ Q J 5 4 3 ◇ A K 8 ♣ J 9

Answer: Six hearts. South's bid of two hearts was not Forcing. However, it was a Slam invitation, and North, in view of his holding of 4½ honor-tricks, should bid the Slam.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Danish Pastry

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how Danish pastry is supposed to be eaten? I was always under the impression that it should be cut with the knife and fork and eaten with the fingers.

DORIS.

It should be eaten with a fork. It is not necessary to take it in the fingers.

The Hostess Tips

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Kindly let me know who tips the waiter or waitress when invited out to luncheon or dinner at a hotel, the guest or hostess?

S.

The hostess tips the waiter or waitress. This detail is part of her hospitality, part of the dinner or luncheon check.

"My roommate needed to hear this . . . .

"My roommate comes from a lovely home, and she's a darling girl, but even she needed to hear about this. She didn't know why people avoided her—why men hardly ever danced with her twice . . .

". . . One night I was reading a Lux advertisement about the very fault she had. It pointed out how many girls are guilty of perspiration odor because they don't Lux underthings often enough . . .

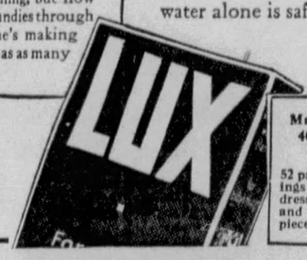
". . . I couldn't help reading it aloud. My roommate didn't say anything, but now she does just as I do—puts undies through Lux suds every night. She's making heaps more friends now—has as many dates as I have."

Avoid Offending

Underthings absorb perspiration odor. Protect daintiness this way:

1 Wash this 4-minute way. One tablespoon of Lux does 1 day's undies, stockings, too! Squeeze lukewarm suds through, rinse.

2 Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.



Mrs. Dingman washed 408 pieces with just 1 box of Lux: 52 pairs socks and stockings; 58 pieces lingerie; 6 dresses; 44 men's shirts and undergarments; 164 pieces linen; 84 towels.

INMATE GUILTY IN PEN SLAYING

Carrell Jackson, Negro, 30, already serving a life term in Western Penitentiary for a Hill district murder, was adjudged guilty of second degree murder by Visiting Judge S. John Morrow, of Fayette County, after he had pleaded guilty to killing another penitentiary inmate with a piece of pipe. In view of Jackson's life sentence, Judge Morrow suspended sentence for the second killing.

Jackson fractured the skull of Sam Culmore August 18. Several other inmates of the penitentiary were brought, closely guarded, to the hearing, and their testimony taken.

Your Income Tax

Business Trip Costs May Be Deducted

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the twentieth of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income tax payers.

Traveling expenses for trips taken for business purposes form an important deduction from income on the returns of many taxpayers. Expenses of trips taken for pleasure or for purposes not directly connected with business may not be deducted.

A journey undertaken for the purpose of securing employment does not provide an allowable deduction. Trips taken by suburbanites to their places of business are not considered a deductible business expense.

In order to claim deductions for business traveling expenses, it is necessary for the taxpayer to attach to his return a statement showing the nature of his business, the number of days spent away from home during the taxable year on account of business, the total amount of expense incidental to meals and lodging and the total amount of other expenses. Among the other expenses are tips provided they are reasonable in amount.

In order to be deductible, business traveling expenses must be reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it.

Claims for deduction of traveling expenses must be substantiated, when required by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, showing in detail the amount and nature of the expenses incurred.

JUDGE ASSAILS VOTE CHEATS

Communities which tolerate election thievery and gun warfare in their streets cannot have good government, Judge Ralph H. Smith, of Common Pleas Court, declared last night in an address before the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Speaking on the theme, "Good Government and Retail Credit Morale," he said:

"It is idle to boast of the liberty we are supposed to enjoy when a community permits thieves to carry away the ballot boxes when the polls close and permit murders to be committed at the rate of one every 72 hours. There can be no liberty in any community where such things are tolerated."

E. L. Feldman, manager of the collection department of the merchant-owned credit bureau, told how it teaches debtors to budget their obligations.

President B. J. Lindberg presided. Col. Franklin Blackstone was chairman of the committee for the meeting. Maj. John D. Meyer, Deputy Attorney General, introduced Judge Smith.

BANKER LENDS SUPPORT TO SCRIP PLAN

Harry S. Hershberger, president of the West End Savings Bank and Trust Company, last night gave his approval of the scrip plan of the Exchange Association of Pennsylvania at a public meeting of the organization in Langley High School, Sheraden. He said:

"This plan is certainly feasible, and I am heartily in favor of anything which can be worked out of it. There is no doubt in my mind that conditions can be measurably improved in this district if the business men are willing to lend their co-operation and confidence."

AUTHOR SPEAKS

George L. Kinter, of Crafton, author of the plan, outlined its important features. He said:

"It is entirely different from any of those which call for the swapping of things for labor or commodities, in that the exchange plans to issue scrip, backed by the liquid assets or stocks of merchandise of merchants who enter the agreement.

"The scrip will be issued in denominations of United States currency, up to $20. We hope to increase the buying power in the community and at the same time protect the local independent dealers and tradesmen."

Loans would be made as in a bank, the borrower giving his note for the amount of the loan. Loans would be made only to persons of sound financial standing. The borrower would agree to honor the scrip by accepting it at face value for anything he has to sell.

HOPES FOR SURPLUS

Asked if he thought it possible to operate without a loss, Kinter replied:

"A certain percentage of loss must be expected, but we believe the interest collected, the usual six per cent, will carry the overhead of the association and build up a surplus to offset any losses. The interest we charge, or a part of it, would go into circulation and benefit business people in the area in which the plan is operated."

No definite action was taken on the plan. Howard W. Miller, president of the group, and C. A. Schaner, a member of the committee, invited all business men in the district to attend a meeting next Monday night, in the West End Board of Trade Rooms, Wabash avenue and Steuben street, West End.

SHANTY TOWN'S 'MAYOR' EXILED

George Toth, who sought to rule as mayor of "Stantytown" on the face of Duquesne Heights cliff, near Point Bridge, and three of his henchmen, have been exiled from the colony. Magistrate John J. Sweeney, in West End Police Station, sent them to the workhouse for 30 days in lieu of a $25 fine.

In a battle over the right to reign last night, 42 were arrested. Thirty-seven were discharged and one, George Davis, 42, is in South Side Hospital with a possible skull fracture due to being struck by an ax. Jacob Europ, 70, struck on the chest with an iron bar, was treated at the hospital, arraigned and discharged today, and ordered back to the hospital.

Lieut. David Walsh and Plainclothesmen Leroy Gibson and Louis Cardell raided the colony to quell a fight in which more than a dozen participated. Today those discharged trooped back to their shanties.

The record-breaking crowd that attended the usual Sabbath night entertainment in the basement at Old St. Patrick's had an unusually good time Sunday night because Louis L. Carnegie Foresaw Great Expansion In Iron Business

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
by BURTON J. HENDRICK

VII.

Carnegie resigned from the Pennsylvania Railroad in March, 1865. He was then in his thirtieth year. His business training had already been extensive and various. He had been a pioneer in sleeping cars before Pullman. He had made a comfortable fortune in oil when the name of Rockefeller was unknown. Apparently neither of these occupations, however, appealed to him as a career. Stranger still, Carnegie abandoned railroading at the very moment when it was opening brilliant vistas to less imaginative men. The American railroad "magnates"—the Vanderbilts, the Goulds, the Garretts, the Huntingtons, the Hills—were creations of the era that followed the Civil War. Instead of tempting fate in such novel fields, Carnegie turned to an industry as old as Tubal Cain. Moreover, the iron trade was abundantly filled and highly competitive.

Yet the young Carnegie, performing day by day his part in the expanding railroad, could see a new future for the great metal of civilization that was probably not so evident to most observers. The fact is that the change from a railroad office to a rolling mill was not an unnatural one. The new transportation system had given an entirely different aspect to the iron trade, as it was destined afterward, in infinitely greater degree, to do the same for steel. In 50 years following the Civil War, one half the iron and steel produced in the United States was consumed by railroads.

'Old Pipe'

Carnegie's interest in iron came as a result of one of those personal associations which had much to do in determining his career. No man had a keener eye for the new and unique in human nature. His translation to Altoona, in 1856, in his twenty-first year, had made him the daily intimate of one of the choicest personalities in his somewhat assorted collection. Here conversational relations were immediately established with "Old Pipe," a huge, iron-muscled son of Vulcan, then generally recognized as the ablest mechanic in the Pennsylvania shops.

Piper was not only a contemporary enthusiast but a prophet. He foresaw the day when all his wooden bridges would disappear and their places be taken by iron. Metallic structures over streams and valleys were not unknown; however, the cheaper wood was almost universal, destruction by fire and flood being among the commonest of railroad casualties. The whole railroad system was destined to reconstruction, he would explain, and everywhere iron would take the place of wood. But Pipe spent only a brief part of his time in talk; his serious energies were devoted largely to invention. Already the "Piper & Linville" patents for metalic bridges were introducing the new order. Carnegie was converted one day when his instructor disclosed, with infinite pride, the first iron bridge manufactured in the Pennsylvania shops. It was a tiny affair, but there, said the exultant maker, was the device which, in the next 20 years, was fated to carry American railroads over difficult places. It exerted the same magic upon Carnegie as had the Woodruff sleeping car, the result becoming apparent in the earliest days of his prosperity. The inventory of earnings for 1863 contains an important item: "Piper & Sons $7,500." This discloses that Carnegie had profited from his chats with Piper, held nearly 10 years before. As soon as he had acquired a little cash, one of his first acts was to request Piper to come to Pittsburgh and join in forming a company for the manufacture of iron bridges.

A Company Formed

Piper came, bringing with him J. H. Linville, the Pennsylvania's bridge engineer the designer of the little bridge that had caught Carnegie's fancy, and Aaron Shiffler, who had general supervisions of bridges on the Pennsylvania line. This was in 1862, and the firm, operating under the name of Piper & Shiffler, became immediately successful. Its success, indeed, was probably the argument which convinced Carnegie that his days as a railroad executive were finished—that his real opportunity lay in manufacturing. Only a month after leaving the Pennsylvania, Carnegie organized the Keystone Bridge Company — which was merely the Piper & Shiffler concern with new capital, new men and a new name. Prosperity was its lot from the day its business began. The great industrial and agricultural development that followed the

POLITICS

Cupidity Displaces Cupid at Capital

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—Cupidity rather than Cupid is the emblem of today in politics, and this acquisitiveness is directed principally toward the next state-wide primary, so far as the political activity of the Legislature is concerned.

Mr. Shields

Though they work diligently and sincerely at the tasks before them members of the Legislature cannot help but have some thoughts of what may happen in the state next year. The subject is in the atmosphere about the Capitol, where county and sectional leaders are frequently in attendance.

At the moment there is a general disposition to believe that Justice John M. Kephart is in a most advantageous position because of the foundation of strength he has in Philadelphia, together with some western support as well as assistance in the hard coal region. In Philadelphia it is forecast that even a chaos in the leadership there would still leave Kephart in the van.

The old-time Vare leaders, including Sheriff Richard Weighen and the Trainer brothers, are said to lean to Kephart, at least in the preliminaries to the campaign of next year, and there is always in the background Gen. W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Personal Appearance Tour Called Off

Kephart's activity now is more real than apparent. Some months ago the Supreme Court jurist was traversing the state making speeches on varied subjects, but each appearance was interpreted as a political feeler. Some of Mr. Kephart's friends explained to him that there was danger of becoming too prominent too soon and these personal appearances were dropped.

Already there is a definite effort under way to weave a pattern of organization support behind Kephart which would include in addition to the bulk of Philadelphia, Paul Houck, of Schuylkill County; Charles Johnson, of Montgomery; Senator John McClure, of Delaware, and Senator James J. Coyne, of Allegheny.

The inclusion of McClure is made despite previous reports that McClure himself was considering a gubernatorial candidacy. Friends of the Delaware County leader now profess a conviction that he is not concerned about the executive's place in Harrisburg. They see him aiming at something else, the U. S. Senate, for illustration.

Situation Envisions Trouble for Reed

And this ambition would fit perfectly into the jig-saw of Pennsylvania politics, though to the disadvantage of Senator David A. Reed. The supporters of McClure point out that should Kephart be the regular Republican gubernatorial nominee it would be difficult for Reed to run successfully for the Senate.

In that case should Senator James J. Davis take all of the hurdles confronting him, and decide to remain as a Senator, the set up would give the section of the state west of the Allegheny Mountains two United States Senators, both residents of Pitts-

PROBER CLAIMS 'JUGGLING' OF ASSESSMENTS

Burgess Cavanaugh, 5 Others Accused in Informations

Six prominent residents of Homestead, including Burgess John J. Cavanaugh and School Superintendent Port Eckles, were named in informations filed today charging the men with having conspired to juggle assessments in Homestead during the 1931 triennial assessment.

In addition to Burgess Cavanaugh and Eckles, the informations named C. J. McBride, former secretary of the Board for the Assessments and Revision of Taxes; William Dee, former assessor and Councilmen Jesse Rose and Martin Delaney.

The informations were signed by W. F. Windhorst, of the County Board of Claims and Investigation, before Alderman Edward W. Haas, of West Liberty avenue. A charge of conspiracy was filed against all six men and in addition, McBride and Cavanaugh were each charged with forging and uttering records and with making false entries and altering public records.

TO SERVE WARRANTS

Alderman Haas announced that warrants would be served today and that time for preliminary hearings would be set later.

Leo A. Riordan, head of the County Bureau of Investigation, his investigators and Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair, cooperated in drawing up the informations. Not satisfied with the informations as first drawn by Harry R. Phillips, indictment expert for District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Riordan conferred with Adair and then had Assistant County Solicitor Ralph Frank prepare the charges.

The information charging conspiracy states that the six men on several days of July, 1931, "devised a scheme to procure for themselves a false and fraudulent political prestige, esteem, credit and support and then and there unlawfully and maliciously combined, confederated and conspired to and with each other to unlawfully make assessments and valuations of lands and buildings for county, borough and school taxation and unlawfully to make assessments and valuations of lands and buildings in amounts not based on surveys and examinations of views thereof."

The misdemeanor charge against McBride declares that he, as secretary of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, unlawfully and maliciously changed the records of assessed valuations of certain property. The informations also state that Cavanaugh, a member of the County Tax Board, instructed clerks in his office to make changes in the records of assessments.

REPORT TO COUNTY

The matter was first brought to light last September when Riordan made a report to the County Commissioners. To his report was attached a report by George E. Meyers, now chairman of the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes. Meyers reported that the total assessed valuation of the Fourth and Fifth wards of Homestead was increased 35 per cent as a result of the juggling.

The report stated that exonerations were granted by Cavanaugh and McBride amounting to 48 per cent of the increased assessment, which was their individual action.

Meyers reported:

"Cavanaugh and McBride allowed these reductions without consent of the board, as the minute records absolutely do not show any records of any action on the part of the board allowing any exonerations which appear on this report, which makes these transactions illegal and unlawful."

Dee, named as a sub-assessor in the informations, has since been given a state position during the term of the Legislature. He was given a position as a transcribing clerk at $7 a day.

McBride, who also is Republican chairman of the Thirty-first Ward, was named appraiser in the inheritance tax division by Auditor General Charles A. Watters. However, it is understood that he turned down the appointment. He is at present drawing $100 a month pension from the county. McBride is a treasurer of the Republican County Committee and former member of the Legislature.

Alderman Haas fixed the bonds at $17,500 each for Cavanaugh and McBride, and $2,500 for the other four men.

West View Battles To Save School Head

Parent-Teachers Join Citizens in Fight To Keep Hennon

A committee of seven men and three women today had been named by the West View Parent-Teachers Association in the citizens committee fight for the renewal of the contract of H. N. Hennon, supervising principal of West View schools.

The Board of Education of West View last week by a 4-3 vote decided not to renew Hennon's contract July 1, overriding the protests of a large number of citizens of the borough.

The enlistment of the Parent-Teachers Association into the fight was a part of the citizens committee to force a reversal of the stand of the Board of Education. A petition has been circulated in West View asking the retention of Hennon, bearing more than 2,000 signatures.

'UPRISING' CITED

The action of the residents in voicing their opposition to the board's action was described as an "uprising in the borough" in the text of the resolution.

None of the majority bloc of the board attended the meeting last night. William A. Magee, scheduled to speak before the association, sent word he was unable to appear, and a committee was sent to his home to bring both Magee and his speech to the meeting.

The committee, headed by Ezra Zartman, however, returned only with the "paper," but announced they "got somewhere" in a two-hour talk with the school director.

CHARGES PERSONAL ISSUE

William Herman, former Duquesne University instructor, and formerly active in West View school affairs charged in an address that Hennon's dismissal was a personal matter involving one member of the school board.

A letter commending Hennon and his school system, sent to County School Superintendent C. E. Dickey, was read at the meeting. The letter had been read at the board meeting a week ago, and was re-read last night, because A. E. Jones, who presided, said "it was read in a low tone" at the board session. The letter was signed by John F. Brougher, assistant director of secondary education.

It was brought out at the meeting that a strategy move to bring about harmony on the board was the only avenue open to the retention of Hennon.

The "strategy committee" includes, Mrs. Thomas M. Reed, Mrs. Fred Starz, Mrs. A. E. Jones, Jr., J. J. Davey, Walter Dyck, Omer Richey, Joseph H. Nash, the Rev. O. B. Emerson, Harry C. Galbreath and A. E. Jones.

CHARGES BRASS PUT IN LUNCH

Mike Lucas, 46, Castle Shannon miner, was held for court at a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace Beatrice K. Popp, of Castle Shannon, following accusations of William Lewis, 21, fellow miner, that he placed brass filings in the latter's lunch.

J. P. Federoff, mine foreman, said a bottle partly filled with filings was found in Lucas' possession when he volunteered to be searched, following complaints from Lewis.

Lucas said he had carried the filings for several years to sharpen tools.

Valentine Made in Japan

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

After reading Japan's valentine it looks like the dove of peace has built a love nest right in Mars' whiskers.

It tells the League where to get off, throws its baggage out on the platform and pulls the bellrope.

It's the daintiest little hunk of valentine you ever read. Japan tells the League it has any size war desired.

And the League of Nations has the same choice the tourist has about Niagara Falls. He can take a picture of it, jump into it or let it keep on running.

The League is in no position to protest. It consists of a lot of diplomats who are physically over the draft age and mentally under it.

So it looks like Japan will keep Manchuria for a while. If it ever does lose that country it will never be in a handwriting test.

Fewer Frills Mark Valentine Day Here

St. Valentine Day was being observed in Pittsburgh today in the 1933 style with less frills and lace.

A Schenley High School girl put it:

"Sentiment will speak with fewer adjectives this year."

Supporting the same belief, a Pitt co-ed explained:

"Yesterday I was looking at some of the valentines I received a few years ago—those kind with lace and painted borders that have to be pulled like bellows before the sentiment can be found. If you want my opinion, I think they're so much bosh!"

However, if Valentine Day has taken a turn in the modern direction, there still were parties in the schools and in many parts of the city to celebrate the day.

Members of the Masquers, composed of alumni of local colleges, will hold their annual Valentine Ball tonight in the roof garden of the Mayfair Hotel. John T. McMahon will be general chairman.

A contest in making valentine costumes was to be held in the gymnasium of the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street, attended by the workers at the industries. Following the judging of the costumes a full course dinner was to be served.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Holland had a mutiny on one of her battleships, now she is about to have one on their other one.

Will Rogers.

Our Navy is out at sea in the Pacific trying to solve what they call problem 14. They better see if they are going to be able to solve problem 13 first. Problem 13 is to get the government to give 'em enough money to have a navy. If problem 13 ain't solved, they better just go to Japan and say, "We will give you California, but you got to take their Chamber of Commerce and Hollywood." That would start Japan to thinking.

Yours,
WILL.

BLAST VICTIMS BELIEVED KIN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Two men who died in an explosion and fire that destroyed three houses Sunday had been tentatively identified today as a father and son—Mike Daleo, 50, and Mike, Jr., 20.

Police say the Daleos are missing, and there are certain characteristics about the two bodies in a mortuary that lead to belief they are those of the missing men. Members of the family were to view the bodies today.

Authorities meanwhile are continuing investigation of the explosion, with four cans said to smell strongly of gasoline as their only clues. The cans were found behind the residence of Joseph Colosi, in which the explosion occurred Sunday night. Colosi and his family were away from home.

One body was found in the alley between two of the destroyed houses Sunday night, and the other in the ruins of the Colosi house yesterday.

'BUY AMERICAN' EMPHASIZED BY POTTERY

Thousands of Pittsburghers yesterday got their first glimpse of how pottery is made, and how "Buy American" benefits the pottery and glass industries, when they saw the pottery and glass exhibits in two Pittsburgh stores.

With expert craftsmen demonstrating, the potters of the American Ceramic Society gave a demonstration in Kaufmann's. The old process of hand-made merchandise was contrasted with the new.

Four work benches and a miniature oven erected for this week were cared for by half a dozen workers from the East Liverpool and adjoining district, the heart of the clay and pottery district.

Most fascinating in the exhibit was not the forming of plates, the moulding, or casting of tea cups, sugar bowls, or the lining and coiling of the ware, but the work of Marion Shively, "a hand thrower" of East Liverpool, O.

One of the few left from the days when urns and pots and jugs were made by hand, he demonstrates with pillars of play just how a piece should be made. He plasters the clay on a revolving wheel, forms it into many shapes with his hands. In Horne's, a glass exhibit is on display, showing the work of American glass manufacturers. It is also a part of the "Buy American" display in connection with the convention.

A conference of national "Buy American" leaders will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce, while Thursday afternoon, Judge M. A. Musmanno and others will speak at the "Buy American" day program of the convention.

COLORED CHINA DISCUSSED

Color of chinaware goes a long way in harmonizing with food and making it appetizing, Mrs. Mary L. Hull, ceramist and color expert, of Salem, O., today told a convention session of the American Ceramic Society at the Hotel William Penn.

Citing that yellow and blue find the most popular favor with women, with red actively disliked, Mrs. Hull condemned the manufacturer who puts forth green dishes to harmonize with even a cup of coffee.

She said:

"Colors must follow the law of suitability of purpose. Now unfortunately, there are a good many green dishes on the market. Green is a beautiful and popular color. Most women like it, but it is not suitable for a tea or coffee cup. Neither is it suitable for all foods, because its color is out of harmony with the color of coffee and most teas, of the skin of a baked potato and most meats."

There is a stimulation of the romantic emotions in rose and pink, she said, urging simplicity which is restful and provides the feminine mind the sense of getting somewhere.

burgh—though vicariously — with the Governor, Justice Kephart being a resident of Cambria County.

This is something that it is inconceivable the remainder of the state would accept, particularly as the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court also comes from Pittsburgh.

The way would be open for the central part of the state to demand representation on the geographical basis, and the first demand would be made for one of the Senatorial positions.

Thus comes the opportunity for McClure.

No one questions the fact that the Delaware County statesman envisions himself as a recipient of preferment. His whole course in the Senate and in public life exemplifies that belief. The Senator's friends believe he is fit timber for Republican state chairman, and they go farther and recall the days of Penrose, Quay and Cameron, when the state leader was also a member of the United States Senate.

That is the way politics is being discussed on the St. Valentine's Day in Harrisburg. And if Cupidity and his darts ventilate the political anatomies of some gentlemen now serenely enjoying public life, why that is just too bad for the gentlemen struck.

'SUNNY' MAKES SELF AT HOME

"Sunny" is one dog that doesn't mind being chased out by the landlord—especially when you can steal a juicy meal of roast beef in your new home.

The six-month-old American bull pup was formerly owned by the Shafer family, of 37 Cushman street, Mt. Washington. Since they are moving March 1 to a new address where the landlord does not allow dogs, they offered the dog to any person who would provide a good home.

H. C. Frye, of 126 Tenth street, Turtle Creek, who saw a picture and a story of "Sunny's" plight in yesterday's issue of the Sun-Telegraph, decided he would get the black-eyed pup. It was just the kind of a pet he wanted for his two boys, Sonny, 7, and Kenneth, 16 months old.

It didn't take "Sunny" long to make himself at home and find his way around the house, for shortly after arriving he got his nose into the Frye's family dinner—three pounds of roast beef. Mrs. Frye said she is still getting many telephone calls today from friends, who ask:

"Will you invite us over for a roast beef dinner?"

Ellenbogen to Talk In Primary Defense

Congressman-elect Henry Ellenbogen will address a mass meeting tonight in South Side High school to protest against attempts to abolish the direct primary. At the request of the League of Women Voters, he will also urge endorsement of the city manager bill. Grady, legislative representative of the Electrician's Union, will preside.

LAWRENCE HITS G. O. P. RULE

The pleadings and desires of Pennsylvanians in legislative matters will not be respected in Harrisburg until the Republican party receives the same treatment in the state that it got in the nation last November, David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman, said last night in a Lincoln Day address before the Women's Progressive Club of McKeesport.

Lawrence said if Lincoln were alive in 1932 he would have been found "supporting the policies of the Democratic Party and Franklin D. Roosevelt, just as did Senators Norris, Johnson, Cutting, La Follette and millions of others who once called themselves Republicans.

Turning to state politics, Lawrence said:

"Our party offers to you the opportunity to assist in the recapture of our state government from the control of Grand Old Public Utility Party. The favoritism shown the special interests in the distribution of the billions set aside for relief by the national government proved to the people of the nation that the Republican party in the nation had degenerated into a tool of the special interests. The day by day unfolding of events at Harrisburg is rapidly convincing the people of Pennsylvania that there is no difference between a Republican machine at Washington and a Republican machine at Harrisburg."

GUARD POSTED AT HOSPITAL BEDSIDE

An Irwin youth was under police guard in Pittsburgh Hospital today with a bullet wound in the chest inflicted by Detective John Daly, of the automobile squad, in a chase that followed his alleged attempt to steal the automobile of a fight fan in the East End last night.

The prisoner told detectives his name was Maynard Kinsman, 23, of Irwin, but fraternal organization cards found in his pockets bore the name of Maynard Baker, Daly said. Physicians said his condition was fair.

Cruising in Center avenue, Daly and Detective William G. Long observed "Kinsman" tampering with an automobile. Daly alighted and questioned "Kinsman" while Long examined the engine. When Long found a "jumper," a device used to start an automobile without a key, "Kinsman" started to run up Center avenue.

In the chase Daly fired five shots and captured his quarry in a shed along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, about five blocks from the scene of the would-be theft. A patrolman was ordered to guard him at the hospital.

The car was owned by Walter Berman, of 1600 Center avenue, who was attending a prize fight at Motor Square Garden, Daly said.

S. B. CHARTERS, CHAIN PIONEER HERE, DIES

Death early today ended the career of S. B. Charters, 76, pioneer in the retail grocery business in Pittsburgh, in his home, 4040 Bigelow boulevard.

Beginning with a modest corner grocery at Third avenue and Grant street, in 1881, Mr. Charters expanded his business until 1924 when he sold his chain of 79 stores to the United States Stores Company.

He introduced many innovations into the business, starting the first "cash and carry" store in Pittsburgh and being the first retail grocer to advertise 'n metropolitan newspapers in the United States.

Besides his commercial undertakings, Mr. Charters was an active member of the Third United Presbyterian Church, having served as chairman of the finance committee and as a member of the United Presbyterian Board of Publications. He was also a member of Washington Lodge, F. & A. M., Pittsburgh Consistory and Syria Temple and the Pittsburgh Country Club.

He leaves two sons, R. T. Charters, Mt. Lebanon, and W. J. Charters, Pittsburgh, and three daughters, Mrs. Joseph Phillips, Jr., Los Angeles; Mrs. A. K. Barnes, Lancaster, Pa., and Mrs. R. P. Snyder, Pittsburgh.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday, with interment in Homewood Cemetery.

PITT MAN SEES JAPAN REVOLT

Belief that Japan faces revolution in the event Tokio disregards the League of Nations in the Sino-Japanese trouble, is held by Dr. Benjamin H. Williams, professor of polilal science at the University of Pittsburgh. Late reports indicate the imminence of a break between Japan and the League, Dr. Williams believes. He said:

"A financial and munitions boycott against Japan, such as would be employed by the League if Japan flouts the body's decisions in the dispute with China, would lead to financial distress and subsequent revolution.

"If Japan should withdraw from the League, the League, with the co-operation of the United States, would take a strong stand involving a munitions boycott, and possibly a financial boycott. Due to the resultant financial distress, the Japanese government might be overthrown by a revolution and a settlement effected."

ACCIDENT RATE IN SCHOOLS CUT

Two accident reduction records were revealed yesterday at the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council in the Chamber of Commerce. One announced by R. M. Sherrard, assistant superintendent of public schools, showed accidents to school children during 1932 were reduced to four-tenths of one per cent time lost, as against 1931's three-tenths of one per cent time lost.

He said the 1931 record was based on an enrollment of 100,000 pupils for a 100-day semester, totaling 10,000,000 days, during which time there were 4,098½ days lost, and that the 1932 record showed an increase in enrollment or 107,000 pupils attending school 10,700,000 days during the semester of 100 days.

A. P. Huckestein, of the State Department of Labor and Industry, reported that Western Pennsylvania, due to the efforts of the members of the Safety Council, had shown 26 per cent accident reduction as against an 18 per cent reduction of the rest of the state as a whole.

Praises Radiant Method of Heating

Radiant heating is the most economical and healthful method, T. Napier Adlam told members of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers last night in the United States Bureau of Mines. He said:

KIRSCHLER DIES; LAST MAYOR OF ALLEGHENY

Charles F. Kirschler, president of the Provident Trust Company, North Side, and last mayor of Allegheny, died at his home in Allison Park early today. He has been in ill health for several years.

Simon Kirschler, a brother, prominent in North Side real estate circles, died last week.

Active in business and civic affairs until his death, Charles F. Kirschler served one term in Council, following which he was elected Mayor. After the Republican party had been split by the Citizens' party he welded the old organization together and was elected Mayor, only to have the office swallowed up by annexation of Allegheny to Pittsburgh. Kirschler, who still had a year of his term left, served as Deputy Mayor under George W. Guthrie, then Mayor of Pittsburgh.

During later years Mr. Kirschler, although still interested in politics, had not taken an active part in affairs of his party.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ida May McClurg Kirschler; two daughters, Mrs. J. M. Diaz, of Hackensack, N. J., and Miss Christine; a son, Charles F. Kirschler, Jr., at home; a brother, Andrew Kirschler, of Sewickley, and a sister, Mrs. Emma Hadfield, of Jacksonia street.

The Duquesne Heights Civic Association today announced the appointment of a committee to cooperate with other groups in the city toward gaining for the voters the right to determine whether they wish the city manager form of government.

CARDS KEEP DAZZY AS SPOT PITCHER

REPORTS THAT THE Cardinals had no intention of keeping Dazzy Vance, but would ship him right along to the Giants in a second deal, are denied from both ends, which ought to make the denial just about official. The Giants, the only club in the market for the veteran pitcher, say they would give solely cash for Vance, and not a whole lot of that, while Branch Rickey wants it understood that the Cardinals obtained Daz for their own use and that he will be neither sold nor traded to New York.

Dazzy Vance

Many fans have been wondering what use the Redbirds could make of Vance, inasmuch as they already had six starting pitchers in Dean, Hallahan, Derringer, Carleton, Walker and Mooney, with Haines, Lindsey and Stout for relief roles. Rickey explains that the very fact of their having so many other hurlers is what renders Vance valuable. It makes it possible for the Cards to carry Daz as a spot pitcher, and use him only about once a week against picked opponents. That's why he was obtained, Rickey says, aside from a belief that his reputation and color would help the St. Louis club in the matter of home attendance.

CHARLEY GELBERT, disabled Cardinal shortstop, still on crutches as the result of a November hunting accident in which he shot himself in the left leg, does not believe that his ball-playing days are over, but admits the resumption is many months away.

Gelbert thinks that by June he will be ready to go to St. Louis and put on a uniform. He does not expect to play regularly as soon as that, but figures that a month or so will put him in shape.

THE RED SOX expect to flash one of the most improved pitchers in the majors this year in Bob Kline, the giant right-hander, who stands 6 feet 3 inches and weighs 210 pounds.

One reason for Kline's improvement is the development of a sinker ball. Wilcy Moore taught him how to throw it. When a batter does manage to hit it, the ball is knocked down into the ground and in some instances barely moves.

THE LATEST PROGRESSIVE step by Bill Benswanger in bringing Honus Wagner back to baseball made as big a hit in other National League cities as in Pittsburgh. Joe Vila writes in the New York Sun: "The new Pittsburgh magnate capped the climax in his progressive policies when he engaged the once incomparable Honus Wagner as a coach. That move has been applauded not only in Pittsburgh, but all over the National League circuit. Thousands of young fans will have an opportunity to see the famous Dutchman in uniform for the first time when the Pirates swing around the loop."

Owen Carroll

AMONG THE BASEBALL men who refuse to concede that the Brooklyn club lost anything in letting Dazzy Vance go to St. Louis in exchange for Owen Carroll, is the one most concerned, Manager Max Carey.

It isn't only that Carroll is 10 years younger than Vance, Max argues, though that's a long time in the measurement of baseball futures. The Dodger pilot believes that he got the better of it in straight pitching value, as well, and hasn't a doubt that Carroll will win more games for Brooklyn than the Dazzler would have won for that club.

LIKE MIKE LYNCH, when the latter came to the Pirates from Brown in 1904, Carroll was handicapped in having a great deal expected of him when he went to the Tigers from Holy Cross as the greatest college pitcher in many years, but even at that good judges insist he would have made good from the start had not something gone wrong with his arm.

Carroll has been let go by four big league clubs—the Tigers, Yankees, Reds and Cardinals. However, he was beginning to look like a real pitcher in the latter part of 1932.

HOLDING THE BREATH is important in sprinting. Bob Dunbar, of Boston, relates a trial in which Jack Ryder, Boston College track coach, sought to find out how well Arnold Adams, the Bates quarter-miler, could run the 100-yard dash. First time, Adams could do no better than 11 3-5 seconds. "You take two, three, maybe four breaths during the hundred yards," Ryder said. "Now run it again, and hold your breath to the finish." Adams dashed off the century in 10 2-5. The greatest of sprinters usually take a deep breath before they get set, and hold it to the finish.

IF MAX BAER should defeat Max Schmeling in their June ring battle, and then go on to win the world heavyweight fistic championship, California will have made almost a complete job of stealing the sports show. Whether it's due to the boasted climate or something else, they surely breed champions out there.

Welker Cochran's recent success in winning the world three-cushion billiard crown, the only time it ever has been taken by a balkline specialist, added still another kind of title to a vast and varied collection that makes California the outstanding state of the Union in the production of sports leaders. It has kings or queens in almost everything from rope-climbing to football and pugilism.

FOR TWO YEARS, the University of Southern California has ruled the college gridiron and the Rose Bowl. With the exception of 1924, the I. C. 4-A. track and field championship has been won every year since 1921 by the University of California, Southern California or Stanford. Last year it was California.

University of California's crew also swept the college rowing world in 1932, winning the eight-oared honors in the Poughkeepsie regatta and going on to triumph in the Olympic Games. Tennis? Don't mention it. There's hardly anything left for outsiders.

Ellsworth Vines

ELLSWORTH VINES again walked away with the men's net honors here and at Wimbledon in 1932 and Helen Jacobs topped the nation's women, while Helen Wills Moody was cleaning up at Wimbledon and in France. Keith Gledhill, Gene Mako, Jack Lynch, Joe Coughlin, Gracelyn Wheeler and Elizabeth Ryan took almost everything else. Olin Dutra won the P. G. A. golf championship. Jake Schaefer hung onto the 18.2 balkline billiard crown. Fred Frame won the Indianapolis Speedway automobile race. Jackie Fields, welterweight boxing champion, is a native of the Golden State. Lefty O'Doul is batting champion of the National League. Buster Crabbe, Georgia Coleman, Jennie Cramer, Mickey Riley Galitzen, Maiola Kalila, Dorothy Poynton, John McKelvey and Ted Wiget are swimming and diving champions. Frank Wykoff holds the world sprint record for 100 yards as the fastest human. Other track and field titles went to Herman Brix, Dick Barber, Ben Eastman, Bob Kiesel, Ralph Hill, Harry Hinkel, Bill Graber, Nelson Gray, Bill Miller and Bob Jones. Jack Van Bebber become a national amateur wrestling champion. Randall Bryden captured the national title at rope climbing. Phil Erenberg beat the country at club swinging, and C. E. Ward and the Los Angeles police won the individual and team championships at pistol shooting.

Fidel La Barba, of Los Angeles, former flyweight champion of the world, knows how to fight southpaws. They don't bother him in the least. Therefore, it didn't make any difference to him when Mose Butch, local featherweight, crossed him up and came out fighting as a lefthander instead of in orthodox fashion before a packed house at Motor Square Garden last night and continued to perform as a southpaw throughout. La Barba won handily, taking every round but the fifth, which was even.

Now, that sounds as if it was a very one-sided and uninteresting exhibition. It wasn't. It was one of the finest fistic spectacles the local fans have seen in months. It was a test of Mose's desperate fighting qualities against the showmanship and greater experience of a man who once won and resigned a world championship and still is up there fighting the best of them after more than 10 years in the ring.

OH—THAT EBERLE!

After the bout, in his corner, La Barba praised Butch, saying:

"He's a fine, tough, young fighter. He can take a punch and keeps coming in all of the time. He made me hustle. If he has any flaw it is that he lacks a bit in experience and confidence. No, I wasn't handicapped because he turned southpaw against me. I like to fight southpaws. I can reach over their right hand with my high left hooks, as I did tonight. How was the fight? Did it please the crowd? I hope so, because I tried to give them a good show. And, say, this announcer of yours — what's his name, Ray Eberle?—is pretty hot himself. He's a showman, all togged out in full dress. He'd go over big in California. My manager, George Blake, and I got quite a kick out of watching him do his stuff."

Asked about a heavy bandaging he wore on his left side, La Barba said he suffered an injury in training, a few days ago, but did not want to call off the fight or ask for a postponement. He said the cartilage had been torn loose from the ribs. He plans to leave tonight for Chicago, but may return here for another bout before going to the Coast, where he intends to retire from boxing and re-enter Stanford University as a junior.

GOOD FIGHT BY MOSE

La Barba was right about Butch. Mose fought a very creditable fight. He was in there trying all of the time and doing much of the leading, only to find the alert La Barba taking advantage of every opening and hooking cleanly to the body and head with his left and battering away to the body in the clinches.

In fact, it was at close quarters that La Barba did his most damage. Time after time he trapped Mose against the ropes or in a corner and blazed away until the latter either grabbed a clinch or began to swing back in desperation and fight off his man. La Barba himself turned southpaw on two occasions in the second round, but ran into stiff punches and quickly switched back to his natural pose.

There were no knockdowns and neither man ever was in serious trouble. A trickle of blood came from the side of Mose's right eye in the fourth round, and, in the sixth, the local man sent two good lefts to the mouth, cutting La Barba's lower lip and drawing a trace of crimson. La Barba eased off a bit in the fifth round, during which Mose spurted, with honors even.

DRAWS LARGE CROWD

La Barba, who scaled 126¼ pounds against 122½ for Butch, showed the fans a lot of fancy boxing tricks and clean punching, especially with his left hand. Also a willingness to trade with his opponent such as is not evinced by many of the topnotchers. He will be welcomed back any time. Butch may write the fight down in his little book as one of experience in which he came through with flying colors, although defeated.

At $1.10 and $2.20 prices, the show did a gross business of $3,043, big money in the fight game in these times. The recent Ted Yarosz-Eddie (Kid) Wolfe bout in the same arena topped this by several hundred dollars, but ringside seats for that show sold for $3.

Bruno Sala, of Donora, bested Carl Montebano, Braddock middleweight, in all but two rounds of the eight-round substitute semi-final, arranged on short notice, but the judges disagreed and Referee Jack Henderson's vote awarded the bout to Montebano an unpopular verdict, which was hooted down by the fans. Judge Frank Brown voted for Sala and Judge Freddie Lux for a draw. Sala fin-

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: WAGNER'S LUCKY 13—The great composer's connection with the number 13 might serve as a refutation of the superstition anent that number. In addition to the nine instances enumerated in my cartoon, in which number 13 stalked through Wagner's life, there is the name of his father-in-law, Franz von Liszt, containing 13 letters. Cosima Wagner, his wife, died in 1930 (which adds up to 13). Two of Wagner's operas were begun and finished on the thirteenth of the month. Three operas had their premiere performance on the thirteenth. An edition of his collected works was begun in 1912 (adding up to 13). His mother's name was Johanna Wagner. THE GREEK BREAKFAST HOUR P. M. in Greece stands for Pro Mezimbrian, meaning forenoon. Seven P. Sharkey Describes Schaaf's Fatal Blow

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Jack Sharkey, who left here hurriedly last night in hope of reaching the bedside of his protege and former shipmate, Ernie Schaaf, before the fighter died, told just before he left of the blow that dropped Schaaf during the Primo Carnera fight. He said:

"Johnny Buckley (Schaaf's manager) didn't see the blow, but I saw it. It was a left—a jab. Ernie sagged and half turned. I knew he was hurt. Schaaf reeled a little and we saw his eyes—blank as could be. Then he went down. All I can see ever since is that kid lying there, his face like a mask and looking so pitiful."

Schaaf's Death Recalls Other Ring Fatalities

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The tragic death of Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, in the full flower of manhood and following on the heels of his most important bout, a bid against Primo Carnera for a match for the championship of the world, recalls the fact that death strikes some of the finest physical specimens in this rugged sport, while the less imposing escape.

Luther McCarthy, most promising of the White Hopes who were being primed to defeat Jack Johnson, died even more dramatically than Schaaf, expiring in the ring following a quick knockout by the second-rate Arthur Pelky in a bout in Canada in 1912.

Max Baer, now matched to box Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, killed Frankie Campbell in a bout in California during his early days and friends say he still is haunted by the memory. The same Baer knocked Schaaf cold as the bell ended their 10-round bout in Chicago several months ago, and this incident now is being pointed to as the beginning of Schaaf's fatal collapse. Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, killed Bull Young in one of his early bouts.

FATAL ENDINGS HERE

There have been many other instances of deaths as a result of injuries suffered in ring battles. It is surprising that there are not more, considering the great number of battles fought. In recent years we have had deaths in professional bouts in McKeesport and at the Moose Temple and in an amateur bout in East Pittsburgh.

Sometimes the fatal injuries are due to concussion of the brain caused by the head striking the floor in falling. Sometimes a blow does the damage. Oftener, however, a hemorrhage of the brain, as in Schaaf's case, is caused by fighting on and taking punishment when the boxer is physically exhausted. That is why competent referees and seconds are quick to stop a bout when a boxer shows utter fatigue. The fans may jeer such an action, but an ounce of precaution is better than a million regrets later.

EXHAUSTION CAUSES DEATH

This writer one night saw a boxer named Charley Holman collapse during a bout in Baltimore. Efforts to revive him were futile and he died in the small hours of the morning, with his young wife, who had fainted at the ring, by his side. For 10 rounds this boxer had been winning the bout easily. Then he went to pieces and took a severe pummeling in the eleventh. He was "out" in his corner at the end of the eleventh round, but he had only one more round to go and his seconds shoved him off the stool to answer the bell. He fell as his opponent rushed at him and never regained consciousness. Exhaustion had caused a lesion in the brain.

The pity in Schaaf's case was that he was injured in a bout the honesty of which was questioned in advance and ended with the fans who jammed Madison Square Garden, the world's leading boxing center, jeering his finish. An almost similar scene was enacted during a wrestling show in Motor Square Garden here last winter, when John Maxos, of New York, collapsed under the pressure of the headlocks of Strangler Lewis and lay inert in the ring for some 10 minutes and then

MAUREEN WINS MEDAL HONOR

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14.—The first round of match play in the annual women's golf championship of Florida is being contested today over the Palm Beach Country Club course. Among those participating is Mrs. C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, who is opposing Mrs. Edwin Goodman, of New York, in the third flight.

Mrs. Scott qualified yesterday with a card of 53-56—109. Erratic putting caused the Pittsburgh woman to add several strokes to her score.

MISS ORCUTT MEDALIST

Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., one of America's "big four" in women's golf, won the medal by a five-stroke margin, her tally being 39-39—78.

Second-place honors went to Mrs. Opal S. Hill, western titleholder, who carded 42-41—83, to finish three shots in advance of Miss Diana Fishwick, 1930 British women's champion, who tied for third position with Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, of Hutchinson, Kan.

SOCCOLI, DURAND MEET

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Don Soccoli, of New Britain, Conn., and Celest Durand, Jr., Brooklyn, have advanced to the final of the annual St. Valentine's Day golf tournament at the Miami Biltmore Country Club. They will meet in scheduled 36-hole match today.

In the morning round yesterday Soccoli defeated Jim Dwyer, of Chicago, 1 up in 18 holes, and in the afternoon eliminated H. F. Bowbeer, of Chicago, 4 and 3.

PROBE ORDERED BY NEW YORK GOVERNOR

Schaaf's death, at 4:26 this morning at the Polyclinic Hospital here, was due to natural causes, rather than injuries sustained when he was knocked out in the thirteenth round of his bout with Carnera at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Dr. Charles W. Norris, chief medical examiner of New York City, said:

"There is absolutely no evidence that Schaaf died as a result of injuries received in the bout. Death resulted from pressure by a substance within the cranium, the nature of which will have to be determined by microscopic examination."

This statement put a different light on the tragedy and strengthened the theory that Schaaf either had experienced injury previous to the fight with Carnera, or was not in first-class condition prior to entering the ring, possibly from the effects of recent influenza.

Pending further results of the autopsy, Dr. Byron Stookey, brain specialist who performed the operation with the assistance of Dr. Harold Meeker, agreed that the conclusions of Dr. Norris "probably were correct."

Dr. Stookey, who previously blamed Schaaf's condition upon an injury received in the fight, explained that the medical examiner had "the brain in his hands and alone is in position to tell what was in it."

GOVERNOR ORDERS PROBE

Activities in the state Legislature today indicated that state officials regarded the causes of Schaaf's death as other than natural. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman ordered the State Athletic Commission, of which James A. Farley, Roosevelt's campaign manager, is chairman, to investigate all the circumstances surrounding the bout, and Senator Henry G. Schackno, Bronx Democrat, said he would move within a few days to repeal the state boxing law.

Gov. Lehman was asked:

"Do you intend that this shall be an investigation generally into boxing?"

The Governor responded:

"I want to know all about this case before taking the next step."

Assemblyman Saul Streit, Tammany Democrat, said he would introduce a bill throwing stringent restrictions about the matching of opponents on unequal weight, regardless of the division in which they fightt.

MOTHER AT BEDSIDE

The fighter's life had been despaired of since yesterday afternoon, when a delicate operation, which consumed more than three hours, was performed to relieve intra-cranial pressure, caused by a deep-seated blood clot and odema of the brain.

Death came to the boxer while his mother, Mrs. Lucy Schaaf; his sister, Mrs. May Daley; his manager, Johnny Buckley, and a priest grieved at the bedside. Schaaf had failed to recognize them just before the surgeons operated in a desperate attempt to stop the brain hemorrhage with which the fighter was taken to the hospital.

Schaaf had been practically in a semi-coma for the approximately 78 hours that ensued since the knockout, which the unthinking had declared to have been "assumed." They would not believe Schaff had been injured by the comparatively light left under which he collapsed and even yesterday they held tenaciously to their belief. Only by death was he able to convince them.

The pugilist never completely regained consciousness at any time since the injury, although he had momentary periods of lucidity. In one of these yesterday morning, his mind penetrated the fog long enough to reply gently to the stricken woman who stood pleading for recognition:

"Yes. It's you, mother."

These were the last words uttered by Ernie Schaaf, cut down in the full flush of his youth by death.

Schaaf's mother had rushed here from Boston Saturday morning as soon as she was informed of her son's collapse. The rotund Buckley, who realized from the first the seriousness of his fighter's injury, had remained constantly at the hospital since Friday night.

RELATIVES SUMMONED

For several hours last night it seemed that the desperate operation performed by Dr. Byron Stookey yesterday, when relief from an intra-cranial hemorrhage became imperative, would save Schaaf's life. At midnight his condition was excellent, though he had not regained consciousness.

But about 3 a. m. his condition took a sudden change for the worse. Hastily his mother, sister, manager and nearby parish priest were called to the bedside in Polyclinic Hospital.

As his life ebbed away they prayed. A house physician felt for the slowing pulse. A candle

DUKES FACE FORMIDABLE TEST IN GROVE CITY TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

This decidedly is not another of those "just-another-ball-game" situation that confronts Duquesne University's long undefeated Dukes tonight as they test their blades on Grove City's armor in the Grovers' own bailiwick. Its dollars to dimes that Coach Chick Davies wishes his charges had most any other team in the section to meet tonight.

The first meeting this season between the Grovers and Dukes resulted in a one-sided victory for the home boys. The Dukes won almost with ridiculous ease, which, while it was sweet enough at the time, has made it difficult for Coach Chick to whip his players into the proper frame of mind for tonight's return clash, and to enter a game in Grove City against a quintet so potentially formidable as the Crimson thinking you have a setup is just like trying to stop the Broadway Limited with a baby carriage.

TWO STARS OUT

Besides, the Dukes must go into the fray still minus the services of the stellar forward pair, Art Feldman and Paul Birch. Feldman's sore side still is bothering him and Birch has a charley horse which has turned out to be a pip; he'll be out of tonight's game and may have to miss the important tussle with Pitt Friday.

For his starting lineup tonight (and maybe the lineup which will have to stick in there and finish) Chick is using Capt. Bunk McGeever at center, with MacDougall and Brenner at the forwards and Reiter and Moore at the guards. Frank Derany, who started and played through most of the West Virginia game, will be returned to the bench—for the time being at least.

Tartans Victors

Carnegie Tech's five game losing streak came to an abrupt crash last night while the ruck in which Wash-Jeff's passers have been plodding became even deeper as the Plaid took the Presidents in their return game at Washington, 55 to 36.

The contest was a wild affair in more ways than one. It marked Tech's first win in the last six starts; was the ninth defeat in a row for the Presidents and had the timekeeper so excited that he permitted the action to run five minutes extra, which didn't make much difference as the Tartans enjoyed a 10-point advantage at the time when the game should have been over.

Three Skibos were good for 10 markers apiece, they being Smith, Stentz and Jagnow All in all the Skibos threw themselves 21 field goals, which isn't half bad. The lineup:

International News Photo Service pictures taken at various stages in Ernie Schaaf's fatal bout with Primo Carnera last Friday night, showing the huge Italian, Carnera, clubbing away on Schaaf's neck with the deadening rabbit punch, which is barred by the rules, but frequently permitted by lax officials. It is believed the cumulative effect of these punches brought about Schaaf's collapse in the thirteenth round from a blood clot on the brain for which he was operated on yesterday, never to recover, although an outopsy report today said the young heavyweight died from undetermined "natural causes."

ERNIE SCHAAF AND HIS MOTHER . . . SHE WAS NEAR WHEN HE DIED AFTER OPERATION

Mrs. Lucy Schaaf, mother of Ernie Schaaf, seen with him in above International News Photo Service picture, rushed to him through a snowstorm when she received news of his serious injury and was near him when he was operated on and died. He spoke his last words to her.

TAD Tells How Jeffries, the Pupil, Came on to Whip His Master Twice

EDITOR'S NOTE: Owing to the critical nature of James J. Corbett's illness, a review of the big moments in the career of the great heavyweight champion of other days is especially timely now. Following is the inside story of the two Corbett-Jim Jeffries fights by the late Tad, the immortal writer and artist in the field of sports.

By TAD.

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—When Jim Corbett was training at Carson City, Nev., for his fight with Bob Fitzsimmons he had a sparring partner, a big, raw boned, 230-pounder, 22 years of age, by the name of Jim Jeffries.

This big fellow was brought to the camp by Billy Delaney, who was Corbett's chief trainer.

Jim taught the big, good-natured giant the ins and outs of the boxing business and treated him well. He did not take advantage of Jeff and cut him down or mark him up, as modern champions do with sparring partners, but really helped him.

Jeff was chief bottle handler on the day of the fight that Corbett lost to Fitzsimmons.

Jeff watched the great fighters closely that day, and, on the night after the fight, told Delaney he could lick Fitzsimmons. Up to that time Jeff hadn't done much in the fighting line, but picked up from then and went right along.

MEETS FORMER PUPIL

A year later he did meet Fitzsimmons at Coney Island and knocked the freckled wonder kicking, taking the world title away from him, and Delaney, who was formerly with Corbett, was now with the new champion.

Two years after that Jeffries was matched to fight his former teacher, Jim Corbett, in New York, and the match was made for 25 rounds. Jeff at this time was 25 years of age and had Tommy Ryan and Delaney with him. Billy Brady was his manager.

Corbett was 34 years of age, in the autumn of his career. That fight was one of the greatest in the history of boxing For 22 rounds that night Corbett made a sucker of the champion. He danced around Jeff, poking a tantalizing left into the latter's face and making him miss 100 times a round.

Among those who backed Jeffries to win was Tom O'Rourke, the veteran manager. Seeing his money floating away, round by round, he made his way to Jeff's corner and persuaded Billy Brady to make Jeff change his tactics. Tommy Ryan, who was handling Jeff, had the big fellow trying to box with Corbett. O'Rourke showed Brady how senseless such tactics were, and, taking Ryan's place, he sent Jeff in to slug, even though he missed nine out of ten, and to keep on swinging.

KNOCKED OUT COLD

He was knocked stiffer than a board.

That was 1901. Now we come to San Francisco, two years later. Jeff at this time was 28 and right in his prime. Corbett at 37 was to try once again to win back his old title.

Jeff went to Harbin Springs to get in shape, and Corbett repaired to Croll's Gardens in Alameda, across the bay from Frisco.

The fight attracted a great deal of interest. It was, in fact, the biggest gate that was ever handled in California.

Jeffries was a 10-to-4 favorite in the betting. He was cocksure of winning, but, just the same, bet $4,000 on Corbett to save himself in case he was outpointed. He couldn't forget their last meeting.

JEFFRIES REPEATS

Bob Fitzsimmons and Billy Delaney trained and handled Jeff, Tommy Ryan trained and seconded Corbett. As the men faced each other that night they made a great picture. Corbett, tall and thin with the face of a professor; Jeffries, big and wide, with bulging muscles and bubbling youth.

Corbett got by the first round nicely. He was boxing superbly and worried the swarthy giant, who was the titleholder. In the second round, however, Jeff ripped a left to Corbett's midriff and almost tore the ex-champion apart. It was a sickening thud that seemed to squash Corbett's insides. The latter fell on Jeffries' shoulder and held. He didn't fall, but he was hurt badly. He told this writer afterward that it was the hardest punch he ever got in his career. It killed whatever chance he had. He was never the same Corbett after that.

He was slowed down, and when another, almost a duplicate of that punch, got him in the fourth, he fell to the floor. He got up at nine and the bell saved him. In the fifth, Jeff hooked him above the ear with that same left with such force that the glove burst and Corbett fell to the ropes as Referee Graney stopped the fight in order to get Jeff a new mitt.

That rest saved Corbett again. When they got going again, Jeff forced Corbett around the ring, swinging viciously. He took no chances with his boxing skill, but tore in, taking what the weakened Corbett had in order to rip his own left to the body. He had no pit for his former teacher. Corbett danced and jabbed, ducked and sidestepped, but the punch in the body in the second round had sapped his strength so that he was a mere shadow of the Corbett of other days.

There was no count. Tommy Ryan, seeing his man drop, threw the towel into the ring. Corbett was paralyzed and had to be carried to his corner.

FATAL BATTLES RECALLED

failed to revive in the dressing room. He was rushed to a hospital and it was hours before he came around. The promoter later explained that this was a common ending in a Lewis bout, saying the pressure of the powerful headlocks shut off the circulation of the blood in one of the victim's temples and the condition continued for hours. The crowd that night jeered, too, scenting a fake. If the wrestler had died, what would have been its thoughts?

If, as charged, the Carnera-Schaaf fight had been a fake, and could have been proved to be such, boxing in New York State might have been killed. Much better so than to have Schaaf die in an honest effort, with the jeers of a blood-thirsty mob remaining as a shameful memory. Schaaf was a big, rough, tough youngster, a former sailor. Until he was beaten by Baer, he stood out as one of the most rugged of the heavyweights. It had been written of him that he couldn't be hurt with a punch. So finely built was he that he was chosen for a model by the sculptor who designed the Muldoon-Tunney trophy which stands ironically in Madison Square Garden, the scene of his fight to the death.

In his life story, which recently was published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Gene Tunney said it was fear of permanent injury or death which followed in the wake of a training camp accident that caused him to make up his mind to quit the ring at the first opportunity. He bumped heads with a sparring partner and walked about in a trance for several days.

SCHOOL FIVES MEET TODAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

Undefeated, yet in danger of being nosed out in the race for the City League basketball championship, is the unusual situation that faces South High, leader in Section I, and Perry High, pacesetter in Section II.

Four more games remain on the City League calendar before the two winners engage in a playoff series to determine which of the two sectional champions will represent District VI in the P. I. A. A. eliminations, yet those four games promise to be the toughest the local leaders have faced this season.

PERRY IN TWO TESTS

The Perry High quintet, rebuilt after the close of the first-half schedule due to the graduation of Jimmy Manning and Arthur Geis, must overcome two obstacles this week if it hopes to represent Section II in the City championship series.

Perry's next two games are with its most important rivals. This afternoon Perry meets South Hills at Perry. South Hills, defeated twice, must defeat the North Siders to have a chance for the championship. In event Perry emerges with a victory, the North Siders will face another menace Friday afternoon when Allegheny is encountered in Phipps gymnasium.

SOUTH MEETS PEABODY

South High, coached by Grover C. Washabaugh, will meet Peabody this afternoon, but its real test will come Friday when Schenley is met at the South Side Market House Friday afternoon.

Two victories this week for Perry and South will clinch the laurels for the respective contenders.

The basketbal committee of the W. P. I. A. L. will meet tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock in the Fort Pitt Hotel for the purpose of drawing up plans for the annual championship elimination tournament. Tentative dates and plans for the tourney were made at a meeting held last week, but with many ties anticipated and indicated in the various sections of the league, the committee will plan on possible play-off sites.

SCHAAF DIES, PRIMO FREED

in one of Schaaf's hands burned low. As the doctor finally shook his head and loosed the other hand, wrapped in rosary beads, Mrs. Schaaf kissed her son's finger and whispered:

"He's gone. My darling boy."

The body was taken to the city morgue. The case thus went out of the hospital's hands to the city health examiner.

The Schaaf family will return to Sheldonville, Mass., 30 miles from Boston, where Ernie had provided a home with his first ring earnings. Schaaf's body was to be sent there today in a steel casket.

No services will be held here, and the burial will be from the Schaaf's Sheldonville home on Friday.

Found Road Rough

Schaaf's climb to the position as title contender was a long and arduous one, but one that was studded with sparkling successes.

He first showed a liking for boxing while in the U. S. Navy and met Jack Sharkey, who later was to become heavyweight champion of the world.

Schaaf was born September 27, 1908, at Elizabeth, N. J., of German-French and American parents.

He started his professional boxing career in 1925, engaging in four fights, winning all of them, two by the knockout route. Sergt. Jim Harvey and Sailor Sampson were the victims of the hard right hand punch that later carried him to greater triumph.

Schaaf began to make a name for himself the following year when he blasted his way through the preliminary class, knocking out 16 opponents and winning four decisions in 20 bouts.

Fight fans tabbed him as a comer because of his hard hitting even at that early date.

Although not as active in 1927 Schaaf continued to pile up knockout victories and earned his spurs in stopping Jack Gagnon and Ad Stone, who were highly regarded heavyweights at the time.

Winning a 10-round decision over the veteran Johnny Risko, trial horse of the heavyweight division, stamped Schaaf as a future contender in 1928.

Again in 1929 he knocked out Jack Gagnon and also stopped Murray Gitzlitz. He won two 10-round decisions from Al Friedman and added another important victory to his list when he outpointed the veteran Jack Renault.

The clever Tommy Loughran, Max Baer, Johnny Risko, and K. O. Christner won decisions from Ernie the same year. The next year he came back strong to even matters with Loughran and Christner, outpointing Tommy on two different occasions and getting the verdict over the Okron, O., scrapper in another match. Babe Hunt beat Ernie in a 10 rounder the same year.

1931 BIG YEAR

The year 1931 marked a definite point in Schaaf's advancement. He engaged leading contenders during his campaign that carried him through 14 bouts with but one defeat and another contest that went 10 rounds to no decision.

He scored knockouts over Dick Daniels, Jimmy Maloney, twice, Jack Gagnon, Leo Williams, Angus Snyder, Vittorio Campolo and Roberti Roberti. He also won decisions over Dick Daniels twice, Loughran, James J. Braddock and Tuffy Griffiths, and fought 10 rounds to no decision with Paul Pantaleo.

In recent months Schaaf lost a decision to Unknown Winston only to come back later and even matters by scoring a kayo. Out in Chicago Ernie met Max Baer again, winning the decision in a bout that ended with him unconscious on the floor. Eight rounds before the end of the fight Ernie went down and was saved from being kayoed by the bell. Shortly before the Carnera fight he knocked out Stanley Poredea.

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Fidel La Barba defeated Mose Butch, 10 rounds; Carl Montebano won referee's decision over Bruno Sala, 8 rounds; Ray Winbush defeated Tony Constantino, 6 rounds; Tony Di Piero defeated Chuck Mullins, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Tommy Loughran defeated Walter Cobb, 10 rounds; Ray Impelletier knocked out Charley Wegner, 1 round; Obie Walker knocked out Joe Doktor, 2 rounds; Johnny Pilc and Eddie Houghton drew, 8 rounds.

LA BARBA WINS OVER BUTCH

ished the bout under the handicap of a cut left eye, received in the fourth round.

Tony Constantino, of Soho, had to tincan and clinch his way through to last the six rounds against Ray Winbush, Hill Negro welterwieght, in the second bout, and Tony Di Piero defeated Chuck Mullins in the six-round opener, a light-heavyweight affair.

Al Grayber refereed the main and second bouts and Henderson the other two. Tommy Grant and Chuck Borland were the timers.

Pete Sanstol, Montreal bantamweight, stablemate of La Barba, was introduced before the main bout, along with George Blake, famous referee and manager of Fidel.

Between Rounds

Young Rudy, of Charlerol, boxes Paul Oger and Jimmy Reilly meets Tony Vecchio in two eight-round bouts at Fairmont, W. Va., Friday night. Reilly also boxes Billy Williams at Charleston, W. Va., in a 10-rounder Friday night of next week.

Joe Rugguzzoni, of Detroit—you know, bees-a no bologny—who recently registered a hit in his battle with Frankie Goosby here, returns to headline the card at the Moose Temple Wednesday night of next week, meeting Anson Green, Negro middleweight, of Homestead, in an eight-round main bout. The show originally was booked for tomorrow night, but Rugguzzoni asked for more time to train. The Moose will go fightless this week.

Punch 'Em Paul Delaney, of New York, who meets Frankie Goosby in the main bout at the Arena on Friday night, is one of the newest Irish favorites in the big city. He went there from California and has won his spurs in bouts with Jack Rosenberg, Hans Mueller and others whose names are familiar to the fans. His stablemate, Georgie Riley, formerly of Detroit, boxes Johnny Datto in another 10-rounder on the same card. He has boxed Johnny Pena, Pete DeGrasse, Ray Meyers, Young Gino and Johnny Mitchell, among others.

STOCKS FIRM AS SELLING SUBSIDES

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A sharp selling flurry in the stock exchange soon spent itself today, and after midday the list turned quiet. Leading shares recovered from fractions to more than a point.

The banking holiday in Michigan was mentioned as an unsettled factor, but Wall street was soon reassured that the emergency situation there was being effectively met, and selling of stocks abated in the second hour of trading. Extreme losses ranged from 1 to more than 4 points in many principal issues.

Rails turned rather heavy in advance of publication tomorrow of the report of the National Transportation Committee, although railroad financing quarters expressed the opinion the report would be decidedly constructive, frankly with the entire situation.

American Telephone gave way rather decidedly under the early flurry of selling. Directors meet for divided action tomorrow and brokerage quarters still pointed to the remarks of President Gifford in the annual report issued last week as indicated a strong inclination in the management to maintain the regular scale of disbursements.

One of the first railroads to report its loadings for last week was the Santa Fe, showing a total of 19,660 cars handled, slightly above the total for the previous week, which was 19,147 cars, but still a fair margin under the like week of last year, in which 23,262 cars were handled. The St. Paul and Chicago and Northwestern showed declines in loadings compared to the previous week, but Wall street expected the big eastern coal-carrying roads would show fair gains when their last week's loadings are reported.

The report of savings banks deposits in New York state for January was one of the brighter aspects of the week-end news, showing the second successive monthly gain, and a new high both in the total and in the number of deposits. Bankers described this piling up of savings as a favorable fundamental development, indicating a big reservoir of latent purchasing power.

A continued decline in commercial insolvencies was also stressed as a decidedly hopeful factor. R. G. Dun & Co. reported the total for last week as 629, against 660 and 702, respectively, in the two preceding weeks. The total for January was under that month of each of the two preceding years.

TRADE DEMAND LIFTS COTTON

After advancing to 6.20 at the start, May reacted to 6.13, and October sold off from 6.49 to 6.44 by the end of the first half hour, making present crop positions 2 to 3 points net lower.

The market steadied up slightly toward the end of the first hour on trade buying to fix prices, but this demand was soon supplied and prices eased later under continued realizing or liquidation promoted by the action of the stock market. May sold down to 6.01c and October to 6.31c, with the market easy at net declines of about 10 to 15 points at midday.

America's Cry This Moment Is for—Work!

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT IS the most clamorous, the most insistent, the most impressive cry going up from America?

A cry for revolution? No.

A cry for escape from taxes? No.

A cry for paternalism, for relief from individual responsibility, for riches without effort? No.

Mr. Forbes

A cry for confiscation of wealth and its distribution among all? No.

The most clamorous, the most insistent, the most impressive cry going up from America today is for —WORK!

DOES THAT suggest decadence?

Does that incite fears for America's future?

Does that shake or shatter faith in American manhood?

Should it not, rather, thrill us with pride, thrill us with satisfaction, thrill us with glorious vision of where America is destined to go and what America is destined to be?

HISTORY BEARS record of peoples who clamored for frivolity, of peoples who clamored for luxuries, of peoples who clamored for relief from toil.

In America the loudest, profoundest, most unceasing cry of all is for work, for more work, for continuous work.

What testimony to the worth of the people of this nation!

What testimony to their innate honesty, their self-respect, their craving for self-reliance!

No; only work, work, WORK.

Romans accounted it great to be a Roman citizen eighteen centuries ago.

Are we not justified in accounting it great to be a citizen of this American nation of today, a nation whose people and prayer are for opportunity to be of use, to be of service, to be helpful to the world?

POSSESSED OF such a citizenry, who can doubt the destiny of this land of this people?

LET US gird up the loins of our mind and wrestle with the thickly-besetting difficulties of the moment in full assurance that we can successfully battle our way toward a less beclouded tomorrow.

MICHIGAN BANK DIFFICULTIES LOCALIZED

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The Michigan bank holiday was described as a local situation by leading Wall street bankers, who today saw no reason for concern over the action.

Michigan has had a double problem—that of the farmer and the automobile worker. Both industries have been greatly depressed and have aggravated the real estate situation there.

New York bankers have been aware of the situation there for some time, and believe that the present holiday will give the State's bankers time to straighten out their affairs.

THIRD STATE "HOLIDAY"

Only twice before have bank holidays been ordered for an entire state, although several communities have tried it with good success. Nevada last year had a 45-day moratorium, following the difficulties of the Wingfield chain of banks. The Wingfield banks have not reopened, but the other banks in the state are doing business and reported in a strong position.

FARMS TIED IN

Louisiana 10 days ago ordered a one-day bank holiday to give the largest bank in New Orleans time to meet a run started by an attack in Congress on the bank's president.

Most of the banking troubles, forcing the holidays, have been due to difficulties of the farmer. Michigan had this, plus the problems brought on by the depressed condition of the automobile industry.

MEMBER BANK'S LOANS DROP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities on February 8 gives the following summary of the principal assets and liabilities of these banks with changes from a week ago and a year ago (in millions of dollars):

	Week ago.	Week ago.
Loans and investments, total	18.573	*152	*1.212
Loans, total	10.028	*138	*2.688

HOLMES WARNS OIL TRADE

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—In a statement in which he pointed out that if the oil industry fails in its co-operative efforts to provide opportunity to all existing fields to supply an equitable portion of the market requirements, R. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Company, today said "the consequences would be the dissipation of all of the world's larger reserves of crude oil and the other assets of the industry at a tremendous cost to every one concerned."

The statement was issued in support of the recent adoption by the American Petroleum Institute of a set of principles upon which the industry may base its co-operation in administration of so-called "market-demand" statutes of the oil producing states. Mr. Holmes is a member of the A. P. I. executive committee.

By failure of co-operative effort, Mr. Holmes said, "the inevitable result will be that the lowest-cost production would be produced first. California, East Texas and South Texas, Northern South America, Persia and two or three other sections of the world could alone for a time, by opening up the valves, supply nearly all the world, making it utterly impossible for pumping fields or any of the older fields to produce at all."

The consequences would be, he said, "the dissipation of all of the world's larger reserves of crude oil and the other assets of the industry at a tremendous cost to every one concerned."

URGE LEADERS TO BALANCE PAY, PRICES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Corporation executives, who have felt the necessity of reducing wages owe it to the general situation to make sure that the advantages are passed along in correspondingly lower prices.

In order to be able to do this, redoubled efforts must be made to pull down overhead expenses, if necessary, through scaling down of capital charges. The bankruptcy revision bill, which has passed the House, is intended to facilitate such voluntary readjustments. In order to re-establish a trade building equilibrium, it is desirable, in so far as practicable, to bring all items into line with one another. The vicious circle of depression has been widened by the tendency of fixed overhead per unit to go up as the gross volume of business declined.

Mr. Rukeyser

PLANNING NEEDED

Where feasible management should seek to heighten the restoration of balance by writing down corporate assets to their real worth under present conditions rather than keeping them at inflated valuations of the pre-boom period. On account of the vast declines, managers who during the boom were criticized for ultra-conservatism are now free to say that they did not go far enough in writing down assets.

The fundamental difficulty in individual situations of course springs from the unstable character of our economic society. In the future it is hoped that the swings can be mitigated by more intelligent economic planning and social stabilization.

BANKS SET EXAMPLE

Meantimme, as current annual reports come out, the interesting fact is whether resources have been taken up at prevailing values, or at some more arbitrary and unreal level.

Among the New York banks, the United States Trust Company and the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company set fine examples in making public the details of their investments.

Heretofore banks have been in the anomalous position of requiring revealing financial statements from their customers while refusing to make them themselves.

In its annual report the Commercial Credit Company opened the windows, letting in light concerning assets and other details of operations.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

Civil War kept the Keystone's chimneys belching day and night, and all the rosy prophecies Piper had unfolded in the Altoona shops speedily became true. Wooden railroad bridges everywhere vanished and sturdy iron structures—eventually steel ones—rose in their stead.

The Keystone was only one of the enterprises that Carnegie called into being at this time. The business of iron now began to assume many forms. In 1864 he organized a company for the manufacture of iron rails. In 1866 he founded the Pittsburgh Locomotive Works. The ever-extending railroad, in one guise or another, remained the economic basis of Carnegie's career. Practically all his activities at this time had some connection with the occupation in which his early days had been spent.

A Trip to Europe

Certainly one might conclude that for a man of 30 Andrew Carnegie had business interests enough to occupy his time. Besides his investments in outside concerns, such as Columbia Oil, Woodruff Sleeping Cars, Adams Express, several banks and insurance companies in Pittsburgh, and here and there a street railway line, he had at least four large enterprises in which he was the most active manager and whose success was largely dependent upon his personal oversight. These were the Union Iron Mills, the Keystone Bridge Company, the Superior Rail Mill, and the Pittsburgh Locomotive Works. Having engaged his energies to this formidable extent, Carnegie's next step was entirely characteristic and consistent with the business principles of his subsequent career. He boarded a steamship and sailed away to Europe. One of the books which the Homewood fraternity had passed from hand to hand was Bayard Taylor's "Views Afoot;" it had implanted a desire in Andrew for a tramping trip of his own. He spent the succeeding five months wandering through France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, surveying mountain scenery, attending theaters and operas in European capitals, descending the craters of volcanoes, admiring medieval structures, forming his first-hand acquaintance with art. That anyone could question the propriety of such a departure would have seemed to Carnegie absurd. The business of life was not the manufacture of iron—then, as afterward, this seemed almost a side issue; the important purpose was the rounding out of a man's mind and character. Regarded from the most worldly viewpoint, new scenes and strange excitements stimulated the imagination and thus promoted even the practical side; but Carnegie's main reason for his protracted vacations—from now on he seldom spent more than six months a year at hard labor—was the desirable expansion of his soul. No business man is worth his salt, he would say, who does not have his affairs so expertly organized that he can drop them at a moment's notice and leave for parts unknown.

Moves to New York

In the latter part of 1867 Carnegie left Pittsburgh and took up his permanent residence in New York. His brother Thomas had married Miss Lucy Coleman, the daughter of William Coleman, now the proprietor of Judge Wilkins' place at Homewood, and a man who was afterward to become a strong support to the Carnegie enterprises. The bridal couple moved into the Carnegie house, the mother accompanying her older son to the new headquarters on Manhattan Island. The expansion of the business sufficiently justified this change, yet other interests made desirable Carnegie's presence in the financial capital. Great banking houses had found that he possessed ability as a negotiator of securities, especially with English firms—talents that, in the next five years, poured many large commissions into his hands. An office somewhat nearer Wall Street—an inferno that Carnegie in after years heartily avoided—became necessary. Probably other considerations than business made New York an attractive home Carnegie's tastes were expanding; his love of literature, music and kindred arts was becoming more intense; his friendly circle was increasing; and a city that gave wider opportunity for personal growth than Pittsburgh was a pressing need. In subsequent years much time was spent in the native region of coal and iron; the regard for Pittsburgh remained constant, but the growing metropolis became Carnegie's settled abode.

Decline In Building Affects National Fireproofing

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE DECLINE in building activity as well as the curtailment of expansion work by electric power companies has sharply affected the operations of the National Fireproofing Corporation.

The company reported a loss of $1,125,239 for 1932 after deducting all charges. This compared with a loss of $136,827 in 1931 and a net profit of $852,102, or $4.22 a share on the common stock, in 1930.

The organization manufactures a wide range of tile products. Hollow tile, used in building construction, comprises the principal product, with conduit tile, used by the electric power companies, running a close second under normal conditions.

Sales Volume Drops Sharply

DURING 1932 the company had to contend with the lowest volume of business in its history. Sales of hollow tile and conduit tile dropped from $8,124,100 in 1929 to $6,330,500 in 1930, to $3,391,600 in 1931 and to $1,305,400 in 1932.

The loss from operations before deducting depletion, depreciation and idle plant expense amounted to $423,267 in 1932. Depletion, depreciation and idle plant expense amounted to $411,629. In addition, the decline in market prices necessitated an adjustment of inventory, which is carried at the lower of cost or market, in the amount of $290,342. These items constituted the loss for the year of $1,125,239.

Working Capital Reduced by Loss

THE LOSSES encountered during the year had an inevitable effect on working capital. Current assets declined from $2,388,424 on January 1, 1932, to $1,431,098 on January 1, 1933. Current liabilities during the same period dropped from $861,484 to $828,009. This resulted in a reduction of working capital from $1,526,940 at the beginning of 1932 to $603,089 at the beginning of 1933.

Cash stood at $77,319 on the last balance sheet and receivables amounted to $247,295. Notes payable amounted to $351,024.

The principal item of funded debt consists of $2,661,000 of 20-year 5½ per cent sinking fund debentures due in 1947. Against this, however, $847,000 par value of the debentures are held in the treasury.

Dividends have been in arrears on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock since July 15, 1931, when the last dividend was paid.

In commenting on the development of new products Greer McIlvain, executive vice president, said:

"During the year the Structural Clay Tile Association caused to be incorporated the Cellular Clay Corporation, to to which it sold the Bole patents covering the manufacture of cellular clay. Your corporation purchased 5,644 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred voting stock of this corporation. This represents 56 per cent of the total authorized voting stock of the Cellular Clay Corporation. The corporation also obtained a license from the Cellular Clay Corporation permitting it to utilize these patents. It is the opinion of your management that this process will prove of considerable value.

"During the year corporation added to its line of products a complete line of roofing tile, and also a spray glaze 5x8 finished face wall tile in two pleasing colors. Also, during the year your corporation caused to be incorporated a wholly-owned subsidiary company known as the Mellotone Muffler Company, which company will manufacture and sell exhaust mufflers for automobiles, trucks and buses. The muffler uses a core of the cellular clay product referred to above."

Cleveland Banks Aid Real Estate

CLEVELAND, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Completion of plans for the formation of a $5,000,000 corporation to "unify and generally improve conditions relating to the financing of real estate mortgages" was announced last night by Cleveland Clearing House banks and associate members.

A statement issued in behalf of the sponsors said that "existence of such a corporation will facilitate the wider use of the resources of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which will probably be asked to aid in the project."

Get going on this one. This really is a good cipher. It's Cipher No. 57 submitted by William H. Dulz, of McKees Rocks.

If you do this in five hours you're a marvel. It is about the hardest cipher you have had. But don't be discouraged. Keep trying and you will succeed—maybe. You'll probably need the tip tomorrow.

Write the Cipher Editor if you need help.

As for Cipher No. 56, did it worry you much? It was not an easy one. The alphabet code printed today should help. Here's how it was done:

You will notice that a, b, c and d are the only letters used in this cipher. Therefore the cipher is based on permutations and thus, the number of possible permutations of the four letters (a, b, c, d) when taken three at a time is 24.

The various possible combinations are shown in the table printed today. The message was:

Clever Neckline

Pattern 2554

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Fashion demands something clever in the way of necklines since spring and summer bring a lack of sleeves on which to concentrate. Here is the ultra smart . . . a scarf cleverly slipped through a diagonal tab detail, smartly buttoned and stitched. And we ask . . . what could be more perfect than a blithe silk or cotton print with a rich solid color for contrast?

"You get below," Charlie shouted. "Quick! Bring your things into the after cabin! Sleep there! Air'll be a little better."

Sue clutched at his arm, steadied herself, and shouted back (with a sudden impulsive glow in her brown eyes that he didn't see):

"But Charlie—where'll you sleep?"

He was lashing himself, with eight or 10 feet of free line, to the steering post. "Here, if anywhere! Jump now!"

She was nearly thrown in getting to the companion—a mere step or two. There, for a moment, she clung. The black line across the northwestern horizon was rising against the sky . . . coming nearer . . . closing in.

While he wasn't looking, Sue, in the mood of a purely instinctive wild creature, flung herself sobbing upon him. Fastened on him. Clung. He fought her off, or tried to; but she had got within his guard. Sue was a strong girl.

SUE ORDERED BELOW

He finally stopped her frenzied kisses by wedging in a hand and literally shoving her face away.

"You called me a crazy damn fool!" she sobbed.

"Well, you were! You are! Get down there—quick!"

"I know it! You're right, Charlie! But I'm mad about you! I don't care what happens! I'd go through anything . . ."

"That's all right! You're going to! Now get . . ."

"Charlie, I've been a skunk! Can't you believe that I love you?"

"Oh, sure, as long as I'm around!"

"You're cruel!"

"You're just a four-flusher! Get down there or I'll throw you down!"

The wind was roaring. The air was full of that stinging spray.

Sue obeyed. Slipped on the steps and lay, moaning, on the cabin floor.

Charlie, without so much as a second glance at her, slammed the doors and drew the slide. Then groped his way to the wheel.

It was only a moment or two after that before the big blow struck them. The first big blow, that is. There were to be others. Bigger ones.

Toward three in the morning, there was a lull in the storm. The seas ran mountainously high, but the ketch rode them crazily, merrily. Rode everything. The rigging appeared to be intact. The sea anchor still held. All lights were burning. Unlashing himself, Charlie crept forward and opened the cabin skylight. It might be the last chance in quite a while to get a little fresh air below.

As he worked with one hand, holding on with the other, seated on the wet deck, a pleasant odor came to his nostrils. Coffee! That would help. And, at least, she hadn't died. He crawled back to the cockpit and slumped down on deck against the coaming. His head felt heavy. He rubbed his smarting eyes to keep them open.

The next thing he knew his head was in Sue's lap. Drowsily his eyes opened. She had found an oilskin coat and a sou'wester. He could see her bare feet on the deck. Half awake, he looked up into a serious face. There was a bruise on her cheek bone.

"You're hurt?" he muttered.

"Well—naturally I've been thrown around some down there. I'm going to stay up here now."

"But my God . . .!"

STORM GETS WORSE

"If we're going to be wrecked, I might as well be wrecked where you are. You go to sleep, Charlie. You'll need it. I can handle the wheel. The minute it looks any worse I'll wake you. I've got hot coffee here in a vacuum bottle, and some sausage. But you'd better get some sleep while you can."

"Well . . ." He was yielding, against his will. The soothing note in her voice softened him. He must watch out for that sort of thing. Mustn't be disarmed. If he could only get his head up he'd be all right . . . a swig of that coffee . . . he was muttering. "Watch that she doesn't yaw too quickly. Mustn't let that line break, up forward . . ." He was asleep.

Sue wakened him at a quarter to 5, and held the coffee bottle to his lips. That freshened him. Up ahead the blackest storm yet was rushing down on them. He stuffed a slice of the sausage into his mouth and hurried to close skylight and companion. Then lashed Sue and himself.

The earlier hours of it had been, it appeared now, only a preliminary announcement of their real troubles. In its first burst, this new blow swept the deck almost clean. Sue lay on the floor of the cockpit, partly sheltered, but Charlie took the blast full in the face. He couldn't breathe. But once over the crest of the first big wave, he managed to open his eyes.

BOAT DAMAGED

Dimly, by the early-morning light, he could see that the dinghy was gone, leaving a few frayed rope-ends to flap in the wind, and taking with it the port rail. It had gone right through the three-eighths-inch wire rope. A halyard had been torn loose and now was stretched out down the wind, high overhead. The running-lights were still on, however, up forward, and masts and standing rigging looked to be all right.

Sue looked up with a dazed expression; shook her head; smiled, rather faintly, and promptly dropped down again on the floor. That was the beginning of a six-hour struggle with fate. They hardly spoke. For that matter, they couldn't make themselves heard without screaming. They could only hold on.

Toward noon, the gale abated. An hour or so later, Charlie was able to patch the port rail so that he could go forward with some safety. Sue lay flat in the cockpit, sound asleep. By mid-afternoon the wind was dying away, and Charlie had the grand little craft going again under staysail and mizzen, though the ocean was a mere welter of towering seas. Late in the afternoon the sun appeared, and set gloriously, as if nothing untoward had happened.

Charlie's problem now was to find out where they were. It wasn't easy. He could only guess at their drift. He'd been counting on Elbow Cay for his landfall in the Bahamas. If he missed it, wandering in among a hopeless tangle of coral reefs, anything might happen.

And while he was puzzling this out, after an hour over the chart on the cabin table, now back at the wheel, drowsiness once again overcame him. He contrived to keep awake barely long enough to lash the wheel; then stretched out along the seat.

Another, a new worry was stirring in his mind as he dozed off. Something that would have to be thought out.

Synopsis

Young Charlie Janes, formerly engaged to Sue Hemingway, finds that sudden wealth and a prolonged trip to Europe have turned her head and taken her out of his world. Charlie buys a boat, intending to try forgetfulness in voyaging. Sue returns unexpectedly. Her father tells Charlie she is planning a trans-Atlantic flight with a young aviator she met abroad. Sue goes for sail with Charlie. To try and bring her to her senses, Charlie starts on his voyage with Sue on board. Angry at first, Sue finally becomes submissive. SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

"Dodo" Chico, the youngster who walked up to Manager Frank Roberts of the Enright Theater about three weeks ago and asked for an opportunity to entertain the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, has proved the "find" of the year.

Ann Helfgott, "official reporter" of the Enright Chapter reports the following:

"Who wouldn't feel jolly after hearing little "Dodo" sing "Pink Elephants." During the past year we have had many entertainers at the Saturday morning meetings, but believe you me, not one of them has captured the hearts of the members like "Dodo."

"When "Dodo" comes out on the stage everyone including Mr. Roberts and all his assistants stop whatever they are doing just to listen to him. Incidentally, "Dodo" has developed his talents with the help of his mother. Under her guidance he has not only become a good singer but also plays the piano exceptionally well, and in addition to this all the members think he is a great tap dancer.

"The best news of all however, is that he is going to continue to entertain the members of the Enright Chapter every Saturday morning for a long time to come. He told me that he is going to learn a couple of new songs each week, just for these meetings."

A Simile Worth Reprinting

The lad calling himself Frank Wilstach seems to think it his duty to gather the yearly similes in one soggy lump and smack the public in the face with them.

Reprinting a simile without the reason for its use is like sending the Flying Cloud to sea again minus its spars and sails.

A simile is written to picture something visually. And to reprint it is just as educational and amusing as doing a jig-saw puzzle on camelback.

It's the old story of the acre of cream puffs. One at a time is enough. Nobody wants to eat a million of 'em.

In addition, Frankie thinks his critical office seems to give him the authority to credit many of this writer's efforts to other muggs. He also credits many to our old well-known pal Anon.

However, one he reprinted is worth commenting on because the next President's adviser verifies it this year.

We said that a politician is like an ant eater. He cannot make a living and keep his nose clean at the same time.

Mr. Howe states that you cannot make an honest living in politics.

You've got to chisel the edges a bit and knock off a plum or two in or out of the fruit and berry season.

That's what we have always claimed. And that's what Mr. Howe corroborates. Probably, he doesn't include the next administration so we'll save him the trouble. That goes into the same brackets.

Even when the Republicans were running the works the Democrats managed to keep some meat on their bones. Now that the Democrats are in the driver's seat we know they ain't going to wear boxing gloves in the Treasury Building.

'Tis sad. But true. And, in a rough sort of way, Mr. Wilstach has served a purpose. He digs up one of our similes that can always be pasted on your eternal windshield. And, whether the time be the dark ages or a thousand years from now, the date will still be correct.

Further Sedition of the 72d Congress

History threatens to repeat itself in the crippling blow which the Senate has just struck against our Navy—the history of the blowing up of the "Maine".

There are outstanding differences, however, in this threatened repetition.

Only one battleship of the United States fleet was destroyed when the "Maine" was blown up in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, thirty-five years ago Wednesday.

And that disaster in 1898 was due to the act of an alien enemy.

But the legislative torpedo which, on motion of Senator Bratton, of New Mexico, has just been launched against our Navy, is aimed at the entire United States fleet.

And the attacking force in the case of this threatened disaster in 1933 is not an alien enemy operating in a foreign harbor, but a so-called American Senate legislating in our own Federal city.

The Bratton torpedo takes the form of a Congressional order to the incoming Roosevelt administration to make an additional five per cent cut in next year's expenditures for the Navy.

This cut is ordered by the Senate despite the fact that naval appropriations for the next fiscal year have already been reduced by executive order and legislative act far below the danger level.

This additional five per cent would have to be made regardless of the gravity of any international situation that threatens now or that may develop after Mr. Roosevelt becomes President.

How utterly disastrous this legislative blowing up of the United States fleet would be is not a matter of speculation. The wreckage that would result is itemized by Charles Francis Adams, the retiring Secretary of the Navy, in one of the most sensational communications ever addressed to any Congress.

Secretary Adams warns the conferees on the Treasury-Port Office appropriation bill that unless the Bratton "rider" to that measure is eliminated, the torpedo that it conceals would cripple the Navy by the following blows:

It would tie up the United States fleet on one coast, close many East Coast Navy yards, slow down the work on all ships now building and modernizing, at great loss of time and increase of cost.

It would necessitate the discharge of 4,500 civilians employed at Navy yards in keeping the fleet in condition.

It would restrict all naval reserve activities, stop all naval enlistments and reduce the naval personnel by another 9,000 men.

It would force out of active commission the following combatant ships: Two battleships, two heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, 31 destroyers and 12 submarines.

This would leave in full commission and ready to defend the nation and protect its commerce in an emergency only 66 per cent of the number of British and only 56 per cent of the number of Japanese ships which are now in full commission or fully manned and ready for their mission.

It would reduce the Marine Corps by an additional 1,150 men and destroy its effectiveness as an auxiliary of the fleet.

Our Navy and Marine Corps are already 20,000 men short of the number absolutely necessary to man effectively our ships in commission.

"It is evident," Secretary Adams tells the Congress, "that this further cut of 10,159 enlisted men would cripple our national defense for years, seriously injure the morale of the service, and, taken altogether with the discharge of 4,500 civil employes, result in an increase of 14,650 unemployed."

No enemy in time of war, no foreign power at a peace time conference have ever struck against our Navy the disastrous blow involved in the Bratton amendment which the Senate recently adopted.

To intimate that Senator Bratton, who organized this attack, or any Senator or Representative in Congress who abetted it, was acting with the knowledge or consent of Franklin D. Roosevelt or John N. Garner is, as we believe, to libel the President-elect and the Vice President-elect of the United States.

President-elect Roosevelt and Vice President-elect Garner are patriotic citizens while the torpedoing of the United States fleet by enactment of the Bratton amendment would be a definite act of treason by the seditious Seventy-second Congress.

A Threat to Pittsburgh

Cheap Japanese Pig Iron is a Menace to One of the District's Important Industries.

Fresh confirmation of the Sun-Telegraph's assertion that cheap Japanese pig iron presents a menace to one of the Pittsburgh District's important industries is furnished in a statement by Charles J. Graham, president of the Bolt, Nut and Rivet Manufacturers' Association of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Graham reports that 300,000 tons of Japanese pig iron was offered in the United States last fall, for delivery at any of the Pacific, Gulf or Atlantic ports, at a price about $4 a ton under the domestic cost.

What the loss of that much business by American producers would mean to American workmen is indicated by Mr. Graham's remark that 300,000 tons of pig iron would require about 600,000 tons of ore, 600,000 tons of coal, 150,000 tons of limestone, 150,000 tons of coke, and other ingredients, including manganese. And, of course, American railroads and American railroad workers would lose the business of hauling these materials.

The situation makes it imperative that protective measures be adopted.

"Buy American!"

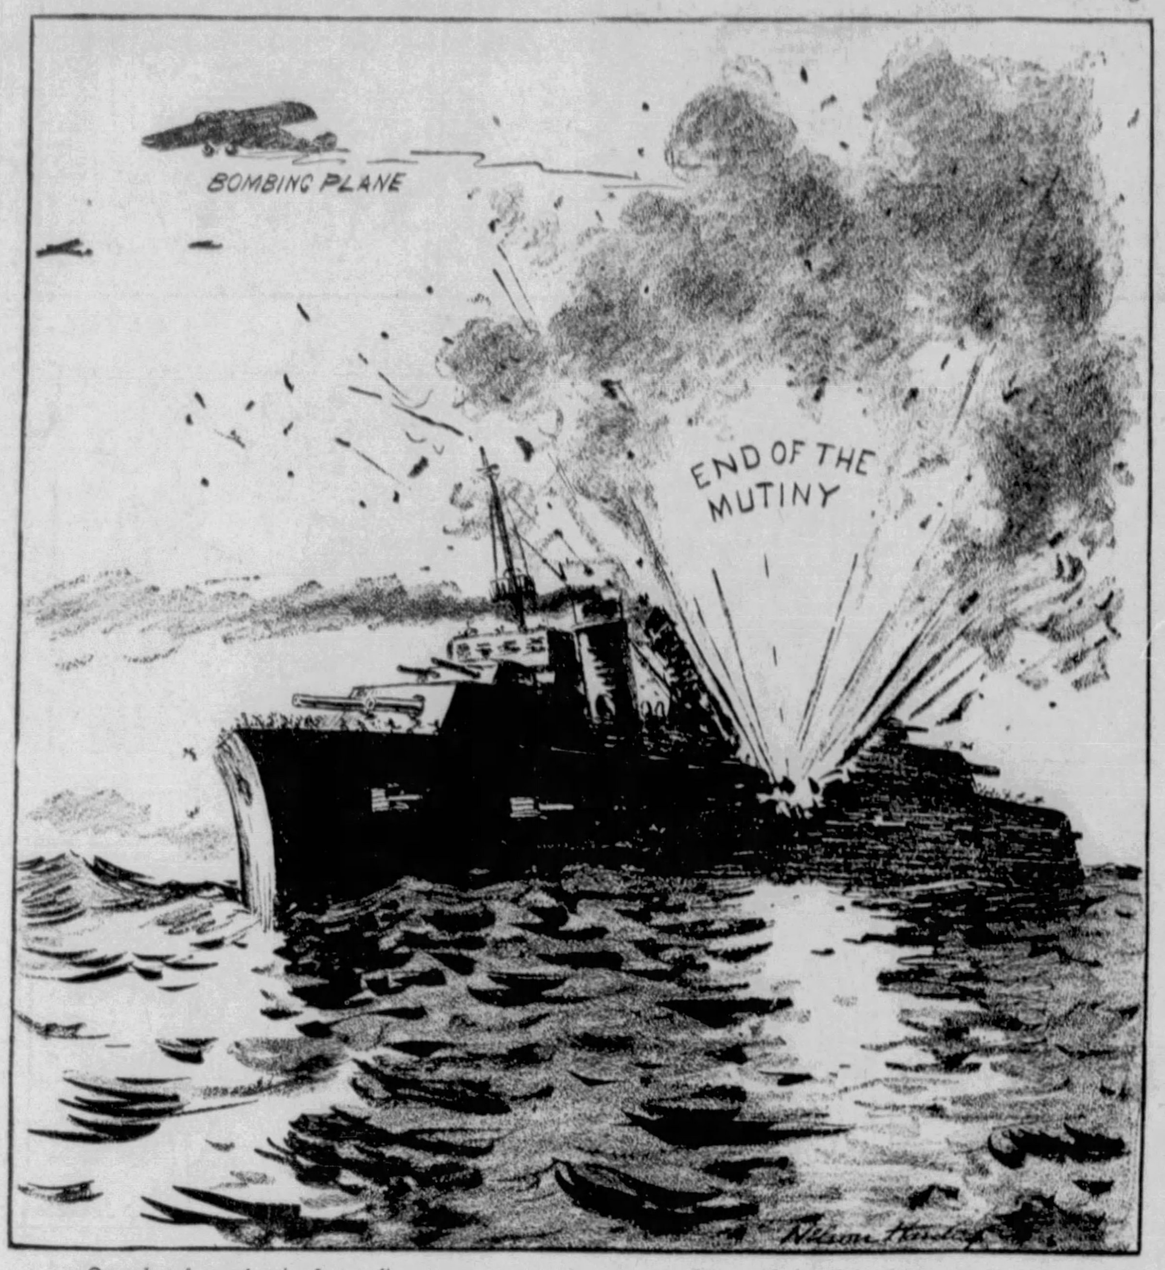
A Lesson in Air Defense

By Nelson Harding



One shot from the air, descending
On that warship, brought surrender,
One bomb accurately landed
And the mutiny was ended.

Clear and simple is the lesson
In this true and tragic story
Of the battleship and airplane,
If America will heed it.

A Limited Autocracy Loan Policy of R. F. C.

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Snell, Republican leader in the House, pretends to be shocked at the proposal of that branch of Congress to give the coming President more autocratic power in the reorganization of the Government than was agreed to by the Senate. He complains that the House plan gives him more autocratic or dictatorial powers than any ruler except Mussolini, and that "the country is not ready for a dictator," and that the granting of such powers means we may as well "abolish Congress."

It is absurd, of course, to say that it is proposed to give the President the autocratic powers of Mussolini. The "dictatorial powers" proposed are rigidly circumscribed. The President cannot levy taxes; he cannot set aside the bill of right; he merely has absolute power to do whatever he thinks necessary in reorganizing the executive branch of the government in the interest of economy and efficiency.

And experience has shown that this is the only way the result can be attained. Left to 500 men, each having constituents involved in the reorganization necessary, it is impossible of attainment. Each is willing to sacrifice the last of his colleague's constituents, but not one of his own. For a long time it has been apparent that the only way we can hope to end duplication and waste is to grant power to someone to smash through and do whatever is necessary to be done. And the reorganization and readjustment of the executive machinery is necessary in these days of appalling taxes and mounting deficits.

Attitude of R. F. C.

We are glad that some one of influence has had the courage bluntly to tell the Reconstruction Finance Corporation what the country thinks of its illiberal policy in the distribution of the enormous sums of money put at its disposal for the relief of the country. Gov. Smith put it with characteristic bluntness when he said:

"The R. F. C. can act like a suspicious banker with two glass eyes, or take up its social responsibility and put men to work."

Its attitude has been that of the "banker with two glass eyes." The purpose of the loans authorized by Congress was not to make as much money, through interest rates, as possible; not to strike a banker's bargain with business necessities. The R. F. C. is not created as a permanent body; it would not have been created at all under normal conditions. It was created to meet a serious crisis, and to act upon the theory that it has social functions to perform.

And while in the case of some loans it has not been the "banker with two glass eyes," since loans have been made on worthless or inadequate security, it has been rigid as the commercial banker in the matter of loans for self-liquidating projects.

New York Projects An Example

This attitude probably reflects that of the present administration, and we are not prone to criticise the members of the commission holding their credentials under it.

The meeting of the commission with representatives of New York asking a $75,000,000 loan for self-liquidating projects was devoted largely the first day to a discussion of policy in the making of loans. The commission heard the public voice demanding a liberalization of its rules and for a reduction of its interest rates for public work of a sound sort which will put men to work. Senator Wagner was within the record when he said that the present policy of the commission has "been frustrating rather than aiding the program to put men to work." Just now, in the case of the New York projects, every one of them sound, and every one calculated to put men to work, it has been haggling over half of one per cent interest—demanding 5 per cent when New York was demanding 4½ per cent.

Since the Commission is getting its money at 3 per cent and has been insisting on five and six per cent interest on its loans, its evident thought has been banker-wise, to make as much as possible on the loans. That is not the reason the R. F. C. was created; that is not the reason these billions were put at its disposal. If the Government is protected against loss it can well afford to make loans at interest rates equivalent to the rates it pays for the money it loans, if public construction can be started and jobless men restored to the purchasing class. Indeed the original idea of Senator Wagner to make self-liquidating loans at an interest of one-half of one per cent in excess of the rate paid by the Government can be justified by the necessities of the times.

R. F. C. Was Created as Emergency Organization

It is not as though low interest rates interfere with bank loans; for the banks are not making these loans. It is because the banks are not making the loans that the money was appropriated to the R. F. C. that it might make them. This has been sufficiently impressed upon it by Smith and Wagner who have rendered a real service not only to New York, in the case of the loan it seeks, but to the entire nation. The sooner it is realized that the R. F. C. was not created as a banking institution for money-making purposes, but as an emergency organization for the service of humanity in distress, the better.

And so we come back to where we began with Smith's blunt but true explanation of the national understanding of the failure of the R. F. C. to meet popular expectations:

"The R. F. C. can act like a suspicious banker with two glass eyes, or take up its social responsibility and put men to work."

The Issue Is Clear-cut

Of world-wide importance is the latest development in the contest between Japan and the League of Nations over the Japanese policy of aggression in Manchuria. To end the hair-splitting, the league has bluntly put the question whether Japan accepts the plan for the restoration of Chinese sovereignty in Manchuria, and has received an equally blunt reply that she does not. The issue is clear-cut. In her determination to spread, Japan has deliberately determined to defy the league and world opinion. It remains to be seen whether the league will act. Japan has taken full advantage of the league's procrastination in the beginning.

Meanwhile, with the smaller nations determined to test the efficacy of the league in protecting the sovereignty of the weak, England and France have moved to their side. But Germany has parted company with the powers on the proposal for the creation of a neutral body in Manchuria to determine upon the date for the withdrawal of Japanese troops. In the case of the Japanese withdrawal from Shanghai, she favored such a course.

And this reversal is ascribed to Hitler.

It is common knowledge that the new German Chancellor is not enamored of the league. It remains to be seen whether, out of hostility to the organization at Geneva, he is willing to array Germany against world sentiment.

Slim Summerville claims that when he was a boy he was so thin he had to look in the mirror twice to see himself once.

People are always ready to praise the man who climbs to the top of the ladder of success, but they never give a thought to the fellow who held the ladder.

Some of the little extra girls in Hollywood are so cold that every time you kiss one of them you get frost-bitten.

Daylight was invented so that people in night clubs can tell when it's time to go home.

Once Overs

—By J. J. Mundy—

As a businessman, or one who numbers prominent firm members as friends, you should not ask any of these men to provide employment for your son or your daughter.

Places of employment are curtailing expense and turning off help.

It is difficult for employers and superintendents to make the required reductions and keep going.

Men and women temporarily laid off have been promised their jobs back again as business picks up.

It makes it embarrassing for the employer to turn you down, and equally hard for the head of affairs to disappoint reliable workers.

As an intimate friend the employer would like to favor you, of course.

You say that if you ask for the favor you think you will get it.

Isn't that a selfish attitude to take?

Is that considerate to the worker who has no influential friends?

Every firm has to drop faithful workers and owes it to them to employ them as business warrants taking on help.

Besides, your insistence works against your friendship, and so you lose that friendship.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Relaxing Broadwayites turn to odd companionships in lighter moments. George M. Cohan usually will be found with Hap Ward, old-time comedian, or Steve Reardon, a former policeman. They seek some out-of-way spot for a night of roaring capering.

Ziegfeld, glummest of producers, got most of his wry smiles by heckling his British valet, Sidney. Jack Donahue, too, had a valet-stooge, and George White depends upon Irving Caesar for his quota of quips. Lou Holtz squired fluty-mouthed Lyda Roberti about to hear her mispronouncing before she went to the films.

No one stirs Marie Dressler's risibilities like Polly Moran. Sid Silver heckled Paul Baker into a job as a stooge. Al Jolson's friendship for Harry Wardell is the result of the latter's blundering impersonations. And there's Earl Carroll's shadow, "The Count," a back-log in the nightly blaze.

One of the staunch friendships around the Lambs is that of Billy Gaxton and Robert Hague, the oil man. Gaxton frequently has been Hague's guest on junkets to Europe and South America. Hague plays straight, introducing Gaxton as his friend, Baron de Blowitz, who is very deaf.

Fannie Brice has a toupeed, sad-eyed harlequin named Roger Davis in every show. He is no shakes as a comic on the stage, but his brand of cut-uppery at parties convulses the actress. Joe Cook has a midget buffoon, and W. C. Field's sawed-off mime, Shorty, is his personal clown.

The rejuvenated Algonquin is displaying 22 of the town's literary and playwrighting grandees in its celebrity corner. The caricatures were done by young Sam Berman, a talented limner, in his early 20's. Under the jutting crevice that is Irvin Cobb's mouth, Cobb autographed: "What a place to throw old razor blades!"

Somewhere, yellowing on a dump-heap or in ashes in an incinerator, are the original manuscripts of those glowy "Bagdad-on-the-Subway" tales O. Henry wrote for the Sunday World. They were the property of the late beloved William Johnston, long on that paper. Recently, in clearing Johnston's desk for the storerooms, an unknowing workman tossed the manuscripts among the debris.

* * *

O. Henry was a constant maverick in the editorial roundup. When a story was due, his voice, like that of a motherless calf, would bawl his despair. He had no ideas, words would not come and please, O please, gracious sire, grant your unworthy hireling a few days grace! After such agonies of prickling premonitions, the story finally would arrive late, but always a gem.

* * *

One of O. Henry's favorite eating places was Moquin's, on Sixth avenue, where he was known as Col. Porter. By way of contrast to the celebrity sandwiches and dishes on current menus, Moquin's once asked O. Henry if they might name a certain potato soup, which he enjoyed, for him. He told them they might, but if they did he would never enter their restaurant again. They didn't.

* * *

It seems that much of New York's joy of eating-out has vanished with the retirement of Theodor—a temporary gesture it is hoped—from the restaurant front to the Rompanico hills. There are many bowing Theodors and Theodores, but only one—Theodor of the Ritz! He is the sauve maitre d'hotel you read about in almost every novel by his friend, E. Phillips Oppenheim. Behind his obesiance is the indefinable air which marks the gentleman. He is known in Constantinople, as well as New York, London and Paris.

* * *

Theodor, to me, is a symbol of trigger thinking. A night, years ago, on the Ritz roof, the smart place of that day, a tipsy deoutante insisted on her escort dancing a fox trot. In the middle of the floor she suddenly lurched into a passout. Like a flash the room was in darkness. When the lights came on, nothing seemed amiss. Theodor had switched off the lights and, himself, carried the girl to the ladies' waiting room for restoratives.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There's a dreadful sense of drifting nowadays, isn't there?

You start to do something; find yourself wondering if anything's worthwhile; drop the job in hand; move on aimlessly; start something else—

And everyone you know is in the same box. No one seems secure any more. Nothing seems settled. Life's lost in a fog.

What's the answer? When will things clear? No one knows, yet. But there is one device by which you can hold yourself steady and prevent your own demoralization.

MAKE HABITS.

Habits? You've never prized them very highly, have you? In fact, you've rather despised them. Doing the same thing, over and over, at the same time. That idea certainly doesn't appeal to the restless American nature.

Yet, rightly used, habits are life savers.

Commonplace habits — simple, prosaic gestures — have carried desperate men and women across the chaos of despair.

There is the authentic story of a great American general. He had been sent with his men to explore the western wilderness. For months they had been traveling, seeking the best route across the continent. Misled by a guide, winter trapped them in the Rockies, walled them in with snow.

Terrible days followed—days that slowly but surely blurred the memory of civilization, turned men into beasts. Food failed. Disease broke out. Horribly—there was evidence of cannibalism. Mutiny began to smolder. Hour by hour the general saw his men slipping toward madness, which he seemed powerless to prevent. Yet he did prevent it, and by the simplest expedient.

Each morning, blue with cold and gaunt with hunger, he took his stand in front of his ragged shelter and went through the gestures of civilization. He washed, shaved, brushed his teeth. And each day, through dazed and desperate eyes, his men watched him—and followed his example.

Relief came at last. Once more they took the trail. Their bodies were skeletons. But their eyes were sane. They had been saved by a habit!

Millions of stories like that. You know some of them.

Heartbroken women, groping their way through black hours of loneliness by routine gestures; doing the simple chores, over and over, as if they were a rosary—until strength comes at last to kiss the cross!

Frantic men, going through the motions of industry; steeling the eye; steadying the chin; making the hands move on a familiar schedule—until, at last, the worn gears mesh again!

Habits, seemingly so unimportant in themselves, but beautiful as banners and brave as bayonets in the hour of need!

Have you lost your job? Seen your savings go? Wrecked your health? Made a mess of your reputation? Seen everything that was dearest in life vanish into a six-foot slit in the ground?

Even so—do not despair!

You CAN carry on! You CAN win your way back! The means lies within your own will.

FORM HABITS. STEADY YOURSELF WITH THOSE HABITS!

Make a schedule for your days and force the frenzied hours into that schedule. Make a routine for your shaking hands, your dragging feet, and compel hands and feet to go through the motions.

The motions will be meaningless at first—or an agony— and your broken self will shriek against the discipline. But go on. GO ON! THERE IS HOPE AHEAD!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

In Darkness

I can scarcely see
The waving boughs
Of the willow tree!
And the garden gate
Is a blur of white,
But faintly glimpsed
Through this shrouding night.
Though I know for me
Your heart is kind,
The love in your eyes
I can not now find.

Look up! Look away
From the things too near;
On the darkest night
Then the stars are most clear;
And when the dusk
Hides your tender face,
I can gain the more
Of your spirit's grace!
